Police Seeking Link Between Oswald, Ruby

CRUSHED UNDER CAR BOY, 3, CRITICAL

By LESLIE MILLIN

A three-year-old boy on a tricycle was crushed under the wheels of a car near the James Bay fishermen's ramp at noon today.

City police rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was described as in critical condition with multiple injuries.

The boy was identified as Samuel Davie, 136 Dallas Road.

Shipyard workers atop a ferry being built at nearby VMD shipyard said they heard screeching tires on Dallas Road, and looked down to see two cars apparently in a head-on collision.

When they ran down to investigate, they found the cars had touched only lightly—after one driver apparently swerved into the other lane to avoid the child and tricycle in his path.

Both cars, and the tricycle, were stopped a few feet beyond the driveway of 72 Dallas Road when police arrived.

The tricycle was under the passenger-side front wheel of a black, late-model sedan that was over in the southbound lane near the launching ramp.

Both cars were damaged only lightly.

Road surface was dry, and there were only short skid marks near the rear wheels of the black sedan, indicating low speed.

GASTOWN HYSTERIA OUT OF GAS?

PRE-GAME HUSH SETTLES OVER CITY

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — This city has finally achieved the blase plateau in its attitude toward the Grey Cup.

It its fourth try at hosting the biggest sports spectacle in the land, Vancouver is currently in a state of unusual calm as the day approaches. The numbing effect of the Kennedy tragedy of course is the big factor but even before it, the natives were showing no signs of the tribal rowdiness that marked the 1955, 1958 and 1960 games here.

The football-haters in the city (and there certainly are plenty of them — natural products of the gridiron worship that prevails in high places) are at last happy. They maintain that the whole show has now been put in perspective. They're glad to see the Grey Cup reduced to the status of a simple football game.

If the rah-rah atmosphere doesn't reach the heights of hysteria of the other three Grey Cups in the west, it won't be for lack of planning. The Grey Cup festival which officials have done up with a glittering array of events and the parade, as usual, is expected to be the best ever. It's just that the sickening events of Dallas have upstaged the whole show and Vancouver citizens don't feel much like frolicking in the streets — not this week anyway.

Prime Minister Pearson has cancelled his planned appearance as star guest at the festivities but otherwise everything else will go on as scheduled, when Hamilton Tiger-Cats and the Lions bare claws.

Vancouver organizers, eager to show up the Toronto versions of the football classic as rather dull affairs, have packed dozen of events into this week. There's everything from an octopus hunt to a tiddledywink tournament to frostbite races to a tennis tournament.

Officials even managed the formidable feat of listing Friday night's appearance of the Royal London Philharmonic Orchestra as a Grey Cup event. As yet, there has been no rush or VANCOUVER (CP) — The weatherman, off in some of his recent predictions, held firm today to his forecast that it will be cloudy with some rain on Grey Cup Day.

Vancouver today is basking in sunshine for the third consecutive day. The good weather has been a help towards drying out the field at Empire Stadium for the Saturday game.

Once Near Neighbors

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas News reported today that investigators have learned that Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin of President Kennedy, and night club owner Jack Ruby who killed Oswald, apparently were former neighbors.

The News said unnamed peace officers disclosed that a man matching the description of Oswald once rented a room close to Ruby's home.

"This could be the key that we have been seeking," the newspaper quoted one officer as commenting.

So far authorities have not said whether they found any ties between Ruby and Oswald.

In other developments today, a New Orleans library official said the FBI had examined records which showed Oswald last summer checked out books on President Kennedy, political assassination, spying and Communism.

Oswald was a native of New Orleans and spent several months there before going to Texas last August.

Chief librarian Jerome Cushman said he would release only the titles of the books which appeared on Oswald's library card for different dates earlier this year.

They included "Portrait of a President," a Kennedy biography by William Manchester; "The Huey Long Murder Case," an account of the assassination of Louisiana Sen. Huey P. Long, by Hermann B. Deutsch; and a number of cloak-and-dagger novels.

Also on the list was Robert Payne's biography of Red China's Mao Tse-Tung, "Portrait of a Revolutionary" and "Russia Under Khrushchev" by Alexander Werth.

RE-ENACTED

The assassination of the president was re-enacted Wednesday when a grey convertible, similar to the black one in which President Kennedy made his last ride, rolled past the Texas school book depository building.

A man and woman sat in the back seat, just as president and Mrs. Kennedy did last Friday. Two men were in the front.

Looking down on this scene were investigators, and a cameraman. They perched in the same window from which the fatal shots were fired.

This was another phase of the

Did Johnson Plead in Vain For Action?

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Millions of Americans sit down to their traditional Thanksgiving dinner today, their holiday darkened by thoughts of their assassinated president. But though the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy has aroused a flood of national sympathy, it appears to have left the political climate unchanged.

In fact, the U.S. now appears to be moving towards a period of shaky indecision and legislative paralysis as wrangling within Congress returns, shattering hope for early passage of Kennedy's key programs as a memorial to the fallen leader.

Though President Lyndon B. Johnson fervently appealed Wednesday for swift approval of such important bills as those strengthening Negro rights and reducing federal taxation, the old opposing forces clearly indicated the death of Kennedy has not changed their opinions or positions. Their opposition will continue.

Indeed, one Republican congressman, Bruce Alger, an extreme rightwinger from Dallas, Tex., where Kennedy was slain, accused Johnson of playing politics with Kennedy's death and warned he will continue to battle the encroachment of big government on American liberty as he has done in the past.

And Senator Harry Byrd, Virginia Democrat who heads the Senate finance committee, has made clear he sees no opportunity at this time for early passage of the tax cuts proposed by Kennedy. The conservative Byrd opposed the tax cuts in the past and as committee chairman has effectively bottled up the legislation in his committee.

Johnson had hoped in his first speech to Congress to urge legislators to remain at work until the key bills had been passed. But a quick private survey by his aides indicated the situation was hopeless at this time. Johnson instead called in his speech for "earliest possible

'HIS HEART IN EXCELLENT CONDITION'

Calver said he gave the 55-year-old president a "complete and thorough" physical examination within the last six or eight weeks—including an electrocardiograph test of the heart that suffered a coronary attack in 1955. The then vice-president was found to be in "excellent shape," the physician said in a telephone interview. He is in Florida.

MP CLAIMS ATOM ARMS 'BROUGHT IN SECRETLY'

EDMONTON (UPI)—Progressive Conservative member of Parliament William Skoreyko (Edmonton East) has charged that nuclear weapons have been brought secretly into Canada.

Skoreyko told a constituency meeting Wednesday night that the weapons were brought in from the United States and taken to the Bomarc missile base near North Bay, Ont.

Skoreyko said his information came from "very good authority" but refused to disclose how he had learned of the move.

The MP said there are "thousands" of American troops in North Bay and nuclear arms already have arrived.

"I don't want to drop any bombshells," he said. "I hope the minister of defence knows."

IN VENEZUELA

Red Terrorists Grab Aircraft

CARACAS (AP) — Terrorists seized a twin-engine Venezuelan airliner on a domestic flight today, hurled pro-Communist leaflets over the city of Ciudad Bolivar and then forced the crew to land the plane on Trinidad.

This incident came as police combed Caracas for Lt.-Col. James K. Chenault, a U.S. Army officer kidnapped by pro-Cuban foes of President Romulo Betancourt. All exits from the Venezuelan capital were blocked.

Armed with machine-guns, five men and a woman, who were among 14 passengers, seized control of the plane, a Convair, after it took off from Ciudad Bolivar, 110 miles east of Caracas, for a flight to Maiquetia, six miles north of this Venezuelan capital. The plane, owned by the National Avensa Airline, carried a crew of three. The pilot was John Power.

Power landed the plane at Port of Spain, the Trinidad capital, in the Caribbean 380 miles east of Caracas.

Presumably the plane seizure was carried out by members of the pro-Cuban Armed Forces of National Liberation, which is trying with a campaign of terror to overthrow Betancourt and block a presidential election set for Sunday.

All the passengers of the plane were believed to be Venezuelans.

A dispatch from Port of Spain indicated the terrorists were arrested promptly upon landing.

Antonio Avila, a passenger, said the group pulled their guns on the crew shortly after the takeoff at 6 a.m.

The Venezuelan ambassador in Port of Sapin, Rafael Echevarria, described the group as extremists financed by Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba. He said efforts have begun to extradite them.

TO BOOST EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

'Have-Not' Provinces To Get More Money

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The Pearson government, while delaying any overhaul of the tax-sharing system pending a study in depth, indicated Wednesday it will propose to the federal-provincial conference Friday an increase in equalization payments starting next April 1.

It is likely to work out details of the proposal today while the conference leaves the central issue of fiscal relations to break into committees.

Premiers made no comments when they went to the committee meetings this morning. Premiers Stanfield, Shaw, Lesage, Robarts, and Roblin attended a committee meeting on pensions, which proved to be the largest meeting.

Other committee sessions were held on the economy, Indian - Eskimo administration, and lotteries.

A committee on health and welfare was to meet later so that its members, including chairman Judy LaMarsh, national health and welfare minister, could attend the pensions committee, over which Mr. Pearson presided.

It was announced at the lunch breakup of the committee meetings that the conference delegates would go back into plenary session tonight to discuss the broad question of cost-sharing programs.

The conference was to discuss in a plenary meeting Friday proposed changes in the tax-sharing agreements between Ottawa and the provinces, including equalization.

Prime Minister Pearson's statement came early Wednesday. A federal source said there was "very little opposition" to the federal position on equalization.

This appeared to be the main import of the federal stand:

1. It is ready to reshape the tax-sharing system, and recognizes the provinces' needs for more money—especially for education. It pointed out that progressively - rising federal tax abatements—to 18 per cent next fiscal year—recognize these rising needs. But in the light of current studies by tax commissions, and the need for a full

WIRE BRIEFS

Security Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson got a quick briefing on United States security today and then turned to the traditional U.S. observance of Thanksgiving Day. He conferred at his home in the Spring Valley district with John A. McCone, director of Central Intelligence Agency.

Ticats Favored

TORONTO (CP) — Local oddsmakers have established Hamilton Tiger-Cats 7-to-5 favorites in Saturday's battle with B.C. Lions for the Grey Cup. They give the Ticats a two-point edge on the points line.

RCAF Jet Crashes

Warrant Issued

LONDON (Reuters) — A judge today issued a warrant for the arrest of Terence Chandler, 23, one of the leaders of Britain's anti-nuclear Committee of 100 which advocates civil disobedience.

No Agreement

Premiers Talk Pensions

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson today led most provincial premiers in a detailed discussion of the controversial Canada Pension Plan — the proposed federal scheme to provide extra benefits to contributing workers.

Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec (which has served notice it will contract-out of the plan) and Ontario (which has expressed several reservations) were said to have participated most actively in the debate.

Neither Ontario Premier John Robarts nor Quebec Jean Lesage would make any detailed comments to newsmen. The committee meeting, one of four being held within the federal - provincial conference, was to continue this afternoon.

Commission Urged For B.C. Hospitals

LANGLEY (CP)—Dr. Patrick McGeer, Liberal MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey, has proposed that a politically independent commission be established to manage the affairs of British Columbia's hospitals.

He said the commission, which would give the health professions a voice in the operation of the hospitals, would help resolve conflicts between the hospitals and the provincial government and would remove the hospital problem from the field of partisan politics.

Dr. McGeer told the Langley Liberal Association Wednesday that the conflict, which flared again recently at a B.C. Hospitals Association convention, is a symptom of a disease which "like any other will tend to get worse until a proper diagnosis is made and an effective treatment program started."

Bennett 'Not Satisfied' With Conference Progress

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA — The B.C. government is not yet ready to assess the federal government's proposal for increased equalization grants to "have not" provinces.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today he was examining the proposition and was not yet prepared to announce a position on it.

He said he was "not too satisfied with progress" being made by the current federal-provincial conference here, characterizing it with the quotation, "the more things change, the more they are the same."

The B.C. premier had demanded at the opening of the conference the total abolition of equalization. His brief said equalization "does not contribute to national harmony or efficient use of public moneys."

UNDUE SUBSIDIES

"The grants are undue subsidies to certain provinces at the expense of others," the B.C. submission stated. As one of the "have" provinces, B.C receives no equalization.

A full assessment of the equalization proposal, Mr. Bennett said today, was not possible until all details of the scheme are given the provincial premiers. It is expected the proposal for amending the equalization policy will be outlined in detail to the conference by Prime Minister Pearson on Friday.

Meantime, Mr. Bennett's attorney - general, Robert Bonner,

'KOREAN KIDDIES FUND'

LUCKY COOLIE LABORER EARNS 12 CENTS DAILY

Fifty per cent of the employable labor force in Korea is unemployed. They have nothing.

The others have something —but not much.

In South Korea, a country not much bigger than Vancouver Island over 20,000,000 people are struggling to survive. Many are refugees who fled from the Communist north in search of freedom. What possessions they owned were left behind.

Today they live in a democracy but what freedom do they have when their bodies are chilled to the bone and their stomachs are empty?

A laborer, if he is lucky enough to find employment as an A-frame carrier, similar to a Chinese coolie, will earn 12 cents a day.

Average Korean family is three to four children. That means five people must try to live on 12 cents a day. Even in Korea that is not enough for one meal apiece.

Three cents will buy less than a handful of barley and eight cents will buy a bowl of soup made of scraps and pealings sold at the 8th Army Officer's Mess.

The Unitarian Service Committee provides milk and barley when possible but their supply is never large enough to go around all the millions that are hungry day after day.

Canadians helped to fight for their freedom, but the battle will be lost unless they keep on fighting.

Food must be supplied so they will at least have freedom from hunger. This is a freedom you can give when you give to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund."

Total contributions now stands at $1,222.27.

Donations should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas. Acknowledgement of gifts will be made in a daily list published in the Times and tax deductible receipts will be issued. The Bank of Montreal main branch, Yates and Douglas, will also accept donations.

Donations of clothing should be delivered to Dowell's Cartage and Storage, 1117 Wharf St.

SPOKANE, Wash.—The once Mysterious Mr. X. has lost his anonymity but not his generosity, so a lot of homeless men were having a warm turkey dinner with all the trimmings again today—Thanksgiving Day in the U.S.

Joseph Moris, a former Canadian and Alaskan prospector who will be 98 on Christmas, donated $160 to the Volunteers of America here this time so the city's homeless could have a hot holiday meal.

For many years past, Moris made his contribution—usually of five $20 bills—behind the mask of Mr. X. The money was left unobtrusively before both Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

The short, slightly-built Moris—who is nearly deaf, wears thick spectacles and has some difficulty moving about—lives alone in a downtown hotel. He kept his donations secret until about a year ago but when a friend revealed who the donor was, Moris didn't deny his identity.

"I can remember when I went without a meal or two," he said.

Born in Quebec in 1866, Moris is credited with discovering the Centre Star and War Eagle Mines near Rossland, B.C. He also was a legendary hiker, walking once from Kamloops, B.C., to Colville, Wash., and making a snowshoe trip from Trail to Rossland carrying a heavy piece of mining equipment.

The volunteers, who make good use of the meal money to feed hundreds of men at Thanksgiving Day and Christmas, say that because of the publicity given the mysterious donations in the past, there now are several Mr. and Mrs. Xs who contribute anonymously.

BRADFORD, England—Yvonne Nolan, aged three, was taken to hospital Wednesday with a ticking noise. She had swallowed a small watch.

A nurse stayed on special duty by Yvonne's bed to keep an ear on her progress. Physicians said Yvonne and the watch were both doing well and time would bring a natural cure.

LONDON — Member of Parliament Sydney Silverman told the House of Commons Wednesday night that British immigration control is so lax that even "Adolf Hitler" got in without trouble.

Silverman, a laborite, said a man who decided to test the system wrote his name "Adolf Hitler" on immigration cards and to the question, "born?" replied, "yes." He was not challenged.

SLOUGH, England — Betty Larking, the "flying housewife" who ran away to the United States 17 days ago, was back home today—and all is forgiven.

"Home—there's nothing so beautiful . . ." Mrs. Larking said after fixing breakfast for her husband and their two children. "When I read about the children missing me, I couldn't stay away any longer."

A letter from her husband, assuring her that "we miss you too much," brought her back to England.

Mrs. Larking walked out of the house two weeks ago Monday without saying a word to anyone and boarded a plane for New York, where a London employment agency had placed her as a housemaid.

She had been ill, her father died, and the children—16-year-old Anthony and 12-year-old Trudy—seemed to be growing away from her, Mrs. Larking said.

"I began to feel so unneeded," she said. "I was at the end of my tether. In the end, I just had to get away from it all."

Candidates Divided On Centennial Aims

A survey of council candidates in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt shows most are split between construction of University of Victoria residences or development of the Gorge Waterway for a 1967 centennial project.

The survey of candidates was conducted by the Association of Women Electors of Greater Victoria.

President Mrs. A. H. Gunning said Victoria candidates will be surveyed after close of nominations next week.

Mentioned, but definitely trailing in popularity for a centennial project, were recreational facilities of some sort, a civic auditorium and an Olympic-standard swimming pool.

Other questions in the survey asked candidates for their attitude towards recreation, master plan for the area and intermunicipal co-operation.

Mrs. Gunning said the survey was a success and more would be made from time to time in the future.

Meanwhile, answers of the candidates in the current survey are being printed and a total of 2,000 copies will be available to Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt residents. They can be obtained by phoning Mrs. R. Leir at EV 5-0551.

GUARDIAN REACTION TO TRAGEDY

'Guns Bought, Sold Like Can of Peas'

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sympathy and censure are at odds in overseas evaluation of the American tragedy.

On the emotional level, Europe and the United States are closer than at any time since the liberation. John F. Kennedy's death and his widow's nobly-borne grief unleashed a wave of trans-Atlantic solidarity.

"Never before has a man been mourned like this man," said British politician Patrick Gordon Walker.

"And the reason, I think, is that President Kennedy became the man whom the world . . . trusted to hold in his hand the thunderbolt of nuclear power."

On British television, a French commentator told how schoolboys, sensing Kennedy's greatness, were saving pictures of Kennedy. He said that now is the time for France and the United States to overcome their differences.

UNEASY FEELING

For the moment, in the stunned aftermath of weekend events, there seems a poignant, almost plaintive, desire abroad for some reassurance that the U.S. will remain on the paths Kennedy charted.

Along with the shock waves of sympathy and sorrow, a secondary theme is emerging—a feeling of uneasiness.

One London newspaper, the Daily Telegraph, refers to "ghastly deeds of violence and the lapse of the rule of law in Texas."

Revulsion against the streak of violence apparently inherent in some American communities comes also from the Manchester Guardian, which says bluntly:

GUNS EASILY SOLD

While accepting that it would be too simple to put the state of Texas in the dock for the assassination and what happened afterwards, the paper draws attention to what it calls the tautly-poised social structure of the U.S. and adds:

"What really matters is that . . . lawlessness comes easily to the underprivileged—the slum-dwellers, the colored people, the school drop-outs."

Similarly, in London the Daily Mail comments that Texas has a homicide every eight hours and "guns are bought and sold like cans of peas."

Politically, Europe dreads the extreme right more than the extreme left. On a British TV program Monday, international experts discussed the possibility of Texan right-wingers creating Fascist-style disorder along lines of the secret army organization in Algeria. British Professor Max Beloff thought this was a "danger"; Professor John Blum of Yale University was optimistic that no such eventuality would occur.

Driver Absolved

NANAIMO (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled that a truck driver was blameless in the death of Sylvia Nina Maurer, five. She was killed Nov. 18 when she ran into the side of a truck driven by John Biggs.

SERIOUSLY WOUNDED by bullet fired by assassin of President Kennedy as he rode in motorcade in Dallas, Gov. John Connally of Texas, is comforted by wife, Nellie, in his hospital bed. Governor is making recovery and Wednesday granted television interview in which he gave details of shooting. (AP Wirephoto.)

'Dum Dum' Bullets Used by Killer?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The assassin who murdered President Kennedy may have purposely fashioned outlawed "dum dum" bullets to produce maximum-size wounds, an expert on wound ballistics said Wednesday.

A Dallas doctor's report on the character of at least one of the president's two wounds suggests this possibility, said Dr. James Beyer of Arlington, Vt. Hospital.

Beyer is a civilian pathologist, formerly with the U.S. Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, who wrote the section of wound ballistics in the army's official medical history of the Second World War.

The White House disclosed Wednesday that a post-mortem examination has been performed on the president's body at Bethesda naval hospital, but it gave no immediate word about the wounds.

FLATTEN TIP

Dum dum bullets are conventional military-type bullets purposely deformed by filing or hammering the nose—so as to flatten the tips and thus cause the target to be struck by a larger surface. This makes for a larger and more destructive wound.

Dum dum bullets are now barred from warfare by the Geneva convention.

Beyer said in an interview that if the president's slayer didn't use dum dum bullets, he may have used hunting-type bullets—with the same large wound objective in mind.

He said those two alternatives—dum dums or hunting bullets—appear to offer the only satisfactory explanation for the "large gaping wound" which a Dallas doctor said was in the back of the president's head.

No description has been released of the bullets that felled the president—if, in fact, the bullets were recovered.

But Beyer said that with the type of high-velocity rifle reported to have been used—and the range of some 75 yards between the slayer and his target—a conventional bullet would have made only a relatively small hole at the point of entry.

Beyer said hunting-type bullets are those which are not fully jacketed, as conventional military-type bullets are. Upon impact the hunting type spreads out at its soft tip, producing a jagged and relatively wide-area wound.

'MY GOD, WHAT A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY'

Governor Describes Shooting

Texas Governor John Connally said this was one of his first conscious thoughts when he awoke in a hospital hours after a sniper assassinated President Kennedy and severely wounded the governor.

Connally recalled from his hospital bed Wednesday the fleeting seconds of that tragic Friday.

"We got into downtown Dallas. There were tremendous crowds, warmth, real understanding, real appreciation. The reception had been magnificent.

"The president remarked on it and so had Mrs. Kennedy, as a matter of fact not 30 seconds before the tragic incident occurred. Nellie (Mrs. Connally) turned to the president and said, 'Mr. President, they can't make you believe now that there are not some in Dallas who love you and appreciate you, can they?' "

"And then we had just turned the corner. We heard a shot, I turned to my left. I was sitting in the jump seat. I turned to my left to look in the back seat. The president had slumped. He had said nothing.

"Almost simultaneously as I turned, I was hit and I knew I had been hit badly. I knew the president had been hit and I said, 'My God. They are going to kill us all.'

"And then there was a third shot and the president was hit again, and we thought then very seriously. I had still retained consciousness but the president had slumped in Mrs. Kennedy's lap and when he was hit the second time—or the first time, it all happened in such a brief spah—she said, 'Oh, my God! They killed my husband! Jack, Jack!'

"And then after the third shot, the next thing that occurred . . . the secret service man said, 'Get out of here.' "

Connally, recovering from chest, wrist and thigh wounds inflicted by a single bullet, granted the interview—his first since the shooting—to Martin Agronsky of the National Broadcasting Company on a pool basis.

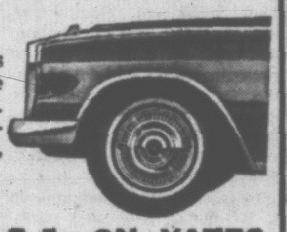

The Democratic governor was pale and obviously in pain at times during the 30-minute interview by other reporters on closed circuit television.

Mikoyan Praises JFK, Johnson

GANDER, Nfld. (UPI) — First Soviet deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan Wednesday night had words of praise for both the late President Kennedy and his successor President Lyndon Johnson.

Mikoyan, on his way back to Moscow after attending Kennedy's funeral and conferring with Johnson, said:

"It is apparent after President Johnson's first speech to the U.S. Congress today he is following the same lines and policies as set out by the late President Kennedy."

Speaking of the late president, Mikoyan said:

"There was every ground to believe Kennedy was dedicated to the purpose of peace. President Kennedy during his stay in office was always capable of resolving international disputes and making as remote as possible the dangers of war."

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy also came in for the Soviet leader's praise.

Western 'Summit' Likely Next Year

High U.S. sources noted that North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings include gatherings by government heads from time to time, and that four of the five big NATO powers — the United States, Britain, West Germany and Italy—have recently had changes at the top.

President Johnson has displayed a liking for personal diplomacy and has tentative agreements for talks with French President Charles de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard early in 1964.

Precise arrangements for these meetings have yet to be worked out. One alternative is to have the leaders meet as a group. This possibility could be discussed at the NATO foreign ministers meeting starting in Paris Dec. 16.

But as yet proposals for such a top-level parley have not come under active consideration, the U.S. sources said. Johnson first has much domestic business to tend to. He must shape up the federal budget for next year and present a program to Congress in January.

Farther in the future is any meeting between Johnson and Soviet Premier Khrushchev. U.S. sources believe that Khrushchev, as the U.S. leadership, is inclined against a summit conference without preparatory work and conditions likely to make the meeting fruitful. In the U.S. opinion such circumstances do not exist now.

Soviet Press Plays Up Call for Summit Meeting

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet press gave prominence Wednesday to a call for a summit meeting between President Johnson and Premier Khrushchev. Speculation here centred on neutral Stockholm as a possible site for such a meeting in June.

The feeling in informed Soviet circles was that Khrushchev would put no obstacles in the way of such a conference.

The official Communist party newspaper, Pravda, published a lead front-page article yesterday on First Deputy Premier Mikoyan's meetings in Washington with President Johnson and Secretary of State Rusk.

Pravda remarked that Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, had in a television interview "proposed that a summit meeting be held."

Publication of this call in detail in the official party publication was regarded here as tantamount to a stamp of approval.

Khrushchev is scheduled to visit Scandinavia in June, with stops in Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen, and Western observers speculated the Swedish capital would be a likely spot for a Khrushchev-Johnson meeting.

That two-day meeting, with no formal agenda and no negotiations, followed Kennedy's election in November, 1960.

RUSS PLEDGE TO SUPPORT INDONESIA

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—The Soviet Union has reassured Indonesia of its continued support for President Sukarno's campaign to break up the new federation of Malaysia, a foreign office source said Thursday.

The source said Ambassador N. A. Mikhailov gave the assurance once more when he introduced three visiting Soviet cosmonauts, Valentina Treeshkova, Andrejan Nikolayev and Valeri Bykovsky—to Foreign Minister Subandrio.

WORLD REACTION HOPEFUL

Johnson Wins Respect With Positive Speech

LONDON (Reuters) — Favorable, optimistic reaction continued to pour in from around the world today for President Johnson's first major policy speech.

Johnson's address to a joint session of Congress Wednesday was televised throughout Western Europe either live by the Telstar communications satellite or on film.

British diplomatic observers particularly endorsed Johnson's pledge that the United States "will keep its commitments from South Viet Nam to West Berlin."

A West German government spokesman said Johnson's pledge confirmed that country's faith in the continuity of American foreign policy.

Tass, the official Soviet News agency, and Pravda gave good coverage to Johnson's speech but did not comment editorially.

REACTION FAVORABLE

In France, Johnson's pledge to keep U.S. external commitments and his stand on the civil rights bill were both received with strong sympathy.

Britain's opposition Labor party sent a message of good wishes to Johnson welcoming the fact that "on vital questions that concern peace and freedom" he will follow Kennedy's policies.

Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson described Johnson's address as moving, impressive and encouraging.

Japanese foreign ministry sources said they welcomed Johnson's address and expressed high expectations for his administration.

The sources said they strongly agreed with Johnson on his promise to carry out Kennedy's concept of partnership in the Atlantic and Pacific, and on mutual aid and co-operation in Africa and Asia.

They also said they respected Johnson's determination to see the passage of the civil rights bill.

BRITISH RESPONSE GOOD

The British press gave Johnson's speech great prominence and accorded it a sympathetic response.

The Communist Daily Worker says Johnsons call for the passage of the civil rights bill will be welcomed far beyond the United States.

In Paris, the right-wing L'Aurore said Johnson's address was "the speech of a man who appears to be hardly inclined to fall back.

Legion Asks Pensions Board to 'Ease Up'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Legion expressed opposition Tuesday to a government bill which would give veterans the right to appeal rejection of their pension claims by the Canadian pension commission.

A brief submitted to the Commons veterans affairs committee by Legion Dominion Secretary Donald M. Thompson said that present veterans' legislation was "basically sound." But it criticized current operating procedures and administration of the pension commission.

The 43-page Legion brief said there was no need for court appeals to handle war pension claims, providing that the pension commission modified its current interpretations of the War Pension Act.

"Important immediate benefits would result from a more liberal and just interpretation of the Pension Act as it is now written," said the brief.

In the opinion of the Legion, the commission was incorrectly interpreting the "benefit of the doubt" clause in the Pension Act. The Legion brief contended that it was the commission's responsibility to draw "all reasonable inferences and presumptions in favor of the applicant seeking a pension."

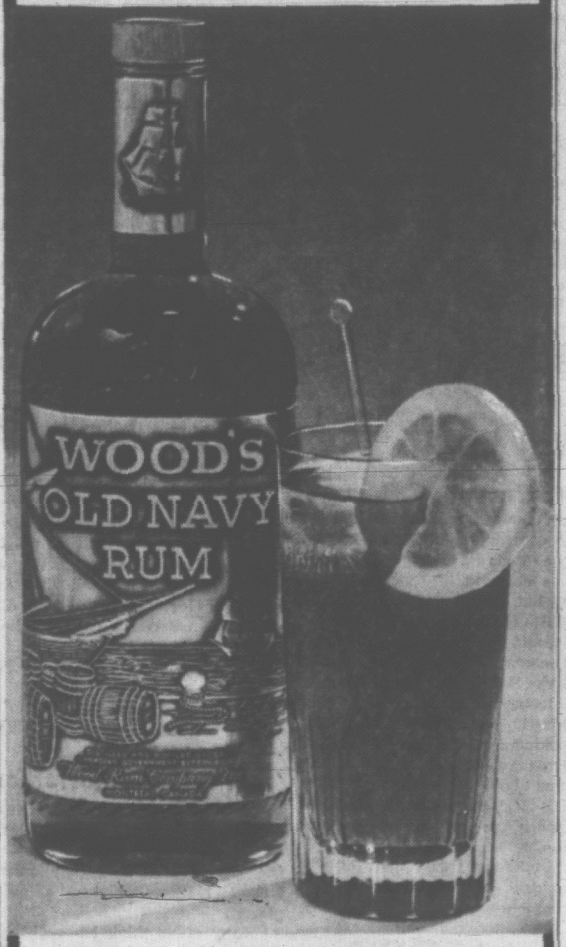

Biggest problems in the commission's administration, according to the brief, were lack of careful study in board room cases, reluctance to accept opinions offered by eminent medical specialists and refusal to be guided by decisions in cases based upon similar circumstances.

A Call to High Purpose

PRESIDENT JOHNSON, WHO uses speech for communication, not oratory, and who practises the art of the possible rather than the creation of visions, has nevertheless left an inspiring ideal with Congress in his first meeting as chief executive with the joint houses.

He has asked them fittingly to honor the memory of his predecessor by passing the civil rights legislation close to the late John F. Kennedy's heart. In the submission of that plea the new president has exercised the abilities for which he has been widely noted.

There were no organ tones in President Johnson's delivery, few soaring flights of eloquence. The man who has gained justifiable honor for his ability to reconcile opposing factions and to reach a goal of accord was speaking as he must have spoken thousands of times in his career as Congressman, Senator, leader of the Senate, and, less publicly as Vice-President.

For the achievement of a high purpose, he employed the effective instrument of quiet persuasion. The circumstances of the speech, as much as the speech itself, were charged with emotion. The man presenting it was appealing not only to the heart, but to the sense of dignity, fair play and honest generosity he believes inherent in the House of Representatives and the Senate.

To them he has given a pledge of respect and trust. From them he is entitled to expect the same. In times ahead, when the mantle of his office settles more firmly on his shoulders, there may be a difference in his demeanor, but scarcely in his regard for the legislative bodies from whom he has sprung, a true son.

In the course of his words he called for unity, for the re-assertion of what is good in the free society and in his own people.

He came before the Congress, Lyndon Baines Johnson, whom fate has thrust into the office he once sought in contest against his predecessor. They saw in him a man they know well, a man of unchallenged loyalty and a man who inspires that characteristic in others. His first request is implicitly one calling for bipartisan support—a gesture that could restore a sense of unity to representatives of a people sorely torn by dissension in recent months who now see the results of unbridled and violent difference in the shocking tragedy of their age.

Here, in clear focus, was an example of what Mr. Walter Lippmann has called "the healing arts of Lyndon Johnson."

We Can Still Have 'Green Belts'

IN CLEAR AND ENCOURAGING terms Mr. Hugh Stephen has laid before this community the alternative to sprawl and ungainly growth from the Victoria waterfront to Sidney. He has underscored the very specific stake all citizens in this region have in orderly development and the maintenance of natural attractions. And, on first reactions, his proposals have won a favorable response from the civic and municipal leaders of Greater Victoria.

The survey and recommendations placed before the Chamber of Commerce by Mr. Stephen followed by a day or two sharp warnings from Saanich's municipal planning expert, Mr. Tony Parr, that the northern municipality was dragging its feet—might actually be unable to catch up in services with the climbing demands of a mushrooming population.

Combined, the two submissions underscore the urgency for action at this time.

A constructive start on that action, as Mr. Stephen pointed out, could be the allocation of about half a mill's tax revenue from each Greater Victoria municipality, supplemented by provincial government funds, to acquire and safeguard natural attractions on the Saanich peninsula.

It is a mark of sound, practical sense that Mr. Stephen has brought home to the entire area the importance of protection now for these amenities which, in almost all instances, lie beyond Greater Victoria municipal boundaries.

The capital can be the place of grace and attractiveness only if some of the unspoiled and currently unexploited areas just outside it can be retained. This is the business not only of the residents of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt who use these amenities today. It is a community obligation because only we who live here now, along with those who will be taking up residence in the next few years, can see to it that our recreational areas are not washed away, or submerged, by the swelling tides of residential and commercial development.

If the property—the woodland, the lake, the beach, the shore and the pleasant field which delight the heart and eye of those who frequent them or pass by them—is not safeguarded now, it will pass in large tracts into private hands or disappear in the outward push of subdivision from the more densely populated districts.

This process is already under way, though its gradualism, as Mr. Stephen says, may leave our citizens unaware of the eventual results until it is too late.

Hence the need for action now.

In a day when the municipalities of the lower Island were more parochial than they are at present, objection might have been expected from individual councils jealous of spending funds beyond their immediate borders. There should be less inclination to that point of view today. We realize that we need the "green belts", not because we are pressed immediately for fresh air, but because they offer the opportunities for recreation and renewal, for a return to a degree of serenity in natural surroundings after the pressure of urban life.

Mr. Stephen has served this community well not only in again bringing to public attention the desirability of planned development, but in phrasing the argument in a way that should appeal to all.

It is to be hoped that civic and municipal leaders who have voiced favorable attitudes to the scheme are encouraged to carry their convictions further, to the point of action.

If we delay, we may be too late, as loss of some park areas in the last five or six years has indicated.

Those Rocks Won't Do

THE BOULDER-STREWN traffic islands which have taken the place of the Fountain Circle at what is, in effect, the entrance to downtown Victoria have been the butt of many jests and witticisms.

But the more one looks at them, the less funny it all seems. They are truly an appalling way to welcome visitors to this "city of gardens" as well as being an affront to residents who have to pass them every day.

Despite Ald. Millard Mooney's statement that something would be done to make the islands more attractive, it is difficult to believe that anything can be done with a pile of rocks to make it look like the islands of green grass which Parks' Administrator W. H. Warren pleaded for with the city works committee.

The failure of the committee to appropriate the $2,000 which it would have cost to install underground watering systems and lawns on the islands was a piece of shortsightedness which will become more evident as time goes on.

Now that the street paving has been laid it would obviously cost much more than the original $2,000 to put in the watering system, but, so far as the larger of the traffic islands is concerned, it must be done anyway. On the small island perhaps it would be sufficient merely to remove the rocks and substitute paving.

In any event, let's hear no talk of painting the rocks, or gilding them or piling them a different way. Let's just have them hauled away and then forget they were ever dumped there.

Prophets of Gloom

A REPORT FROM LONDON states that the British Meteorological Office, after eight years' secret testing, has reached a point where it is prepared to give long-range weather forecasts to the public, telling them what to expect months ahead.

On the basis of British weather during recent years, this is about as unkind a disservice as bureaucracy could force upon an unwilling people.

The British are doughty, have stiff upper-lips, have survived most of the agonies that can be thrust upon man. But why, through long-range forecasting, deny them hope?

Let them sing and dream about bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover, not perpetual fog, and rain, and cold and snow. Even the stout of heart need some opportunity to recapture the vision of "a day in May" or "England, now that April's here"—which is pleasant enough if your overcoat is thick and your woollies snug.

AN AMERICAN APPEAL TO AMERICANS

By MAX FREEDMAN

'To Rear Every Sort of Generous, Honest Feeling'

PRESIDENT Johnson has appealed to the nation to approach its problems in the spirit of unity and reason. We have been scourged by calamity to appreciate the tragic urgency of this appeal. The nation has just been bereaved of a President, and is in danger of losing its sense of responsibility unless the doctrines of fanaticism are quickly driven out of our public life.

Freedman

Sometimes a nation is purged by a great tragedy. But it will be a mockery as well as a tragedy if we mourned the death of President Kennedy and did nothing to remove the evils which are devouring the strength and unity of the nation.

Each one of us must look into his own conscience, for this terrible harvest has not been gathered without our silence or our guilt.

They may start by denouncing the courts, forgetting in their folly that the law of force always begins where the force of law ends.

Or they may make ugly attacks on our political leaders, forgetting in their arrogance that in this country all leaders are our servants and never our masters.

Or they may make the perilous mistake of setting race against race, forgetting in their dogmatism that prejudice is the child of ignorance and the ally of violence.

Americans must return to the meaning and majesty of America. In the national records stand inscribed in proud equality the names of many races. We are a nation of diverse origins but with one common destiny. Our speech echoes varied creeds but it always responds to the litany of freedom. What shall it profit us if our wealth touches the sky but our spirit crouches basely on the ground?

We must learn again, with patience and humility, the first painful lesson of democracy to respect those with whom we differ, never to be tolerant of intolerance, never to make a difference of opinion a pretext for discrimination. It will not be an easy lesson, but in the remembered words of John F. Kennedy, "let us begin".

During this merciful pause in the violence and jealousies of political strife, we can all take the oath of the good neighbor and the responsible citizen. But what will happen a few weeks or months from now? This respite cannot last. Angry bitterness will break out in Congress. And vicious men will jostle for the presidential nomination. Stern issues will divide the nation. How then will we conduct our affairs?

That will be the test. For the truth can be slain by evil words as well as by an assassin's bullets. If we encourage by our silence, or reward with our applause, those who try to build their own power on the wreck of other men's lives, we shall play our shameful part in rotting away the foundations of the republic.

We can set standards of public debate and national controversy that will shame those who wish to snatch a base advantage by erecting their personal fears into maxims of public policy.

We must remain one people. We can do so only if we raise high standards of reason and responsibility to which all men of good will can rally.

Burke's Guide

Words once spoken by Edmunud Burke, so great a friend of young America, are worth heeding now. His advice deserves our respect because he never believed in impossible rules of personal honor and public duty. Indeed, he told us that all virtue which is impracticable must be imperfect and unworthy. But Burke defined the doctrine which can guide us safely across the dangers and discords of the next troubled months.

"We are born," said Burke, "only to be men. We shall do enough if we form ourselves to be good ones. It is therefore our business carefully to cultivate in our minds, to rear to the most perfect vigor and maturity, every sort of generous and honest feeling that belongs to our nature.

"To bring the dispositions that are lovely in private life into the service and conduct of the commonwealth; so to be patriots as not to forget we are gentlemen. To cultivate friendships and to incur enmities. To have both strong, but both selected; and to be flexible in enmity but immovable in friendship."

Burke's words give us a code of good citizenship. We should obey it, not because the whole world is now marking our demeanor, but because America deserves our best conduct as the service which we should all rejoice to offer. Then indeed shall we rise above our tribulations. With faith and freedom the future will surely be ours.

The Grip Is Firm.

Munich Has Its Nationaltheater Once More

By NEAL ASCHERSON, from Munich

MUNICH has its opera again. In a week which turned into nothing less than a feast of boisterous, free-spending, argumentative and self-congratulatory Bavarian patriotism, the Munich "Nationaltheater" reopened its doors. At a cost of some £5,500,000, raised in large measure by the people of Munich themselves, the opera house destroyed by British bombers in 1943 has been rebuilt on the Max-Joseph-Platz.

In the Munich shop windows even the leering tailors' dummies have put on their opera cloaks and have dress circle tickets for the premiere sticking out of their wallets. This makes them somewhat luckier than the average citizen, for tickets for the first night at the new Nationaltheater began to sell out months before anybody knew what the performance would be. The most expensive seats, at £50 a time, went as rapidly as any.

Two Opening Nights

There were, in fact, two opening nights. On Thursday morning, Nov. 21, the potentates of all southern Germany listened to Beethoven and watched the Bavarian Prime Minister, Herr Alfons Goppel, hand over the keys of the Opera to his Minister of Culture. There were speeches, Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" succeeded the Beethoven, and was in turn followed by the German and Bavarian national anthems. There was champagne in the foyer, and finally tremendous "opera" luncheons in the best restaurants of one of Europe's greediest cities. The same evening, the Opera House filled with the international guests of the Bavarian government for a performance of Richard Strauss's "Frau Ohne Schatten."

The public's first night came on Saturday, when the performance was Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." It is with Wagner, rather than Richard Strauss, that the Munich opera-goer feels most at home, and "Die Meistersinger" itself had its first performance in the Nationaltheater.

The Munich "Hof-und Nationaltheater," as it was called in the days of the Kingdom of Bavaria, was completed in 1818, designed in the full classical manner on the inspiration of the Odeon in Paris, and helped through its financial difficulties by King Max himself. In 1823, a curtain caught fire in the middle of a performance, the firefighting water had been poured prodigally away to help a waterfall scene, and the Nationaltheater burned to a shell.

On October 3, 1943, there was to have been a performance of "Die Meistersinger," but it took place only after a delay of 20 years. The British raid of the night before had planted 12 large incendiary bombs on the stage itself and destroyed the sprinkler system with high explosive. For the second time, the Munich State Opera was reduced to blackened walls surrounding a hole in the ground.

Violent rows, richly enjoyed by all true Bavarians, surrounded the proposal to rebuild the Nationaltheater and the design selected. At first, the Bavarian government refused to hear of such an expense. Undeterred, the "Friends of the Nationaltheater" ran an "opera" tombola and raised £6,000. The government accepted this money, but declined to promise that it would be used to rebuild the Nationaltheater. Party politics, hectic coalitions of individuals and factions, fought over the project, until Munich's leading newspaper, the Sued Deutsche Zeitung, collected almost 200,000 signatures to a petition demanding: "We want the Nationaltheater."

Catholic politicians even joined forces briefly with Socialists in a last attempt to dodge the task, but the government soon had to admit that the point was arriving at which delay was going to cost votes. The Bavarian State agreed to provide the walls, auditorium and stage. Any decoration would be a private responsibility. With gifts totalling tens of thousands of pounds, the citizens paid for furnishings, chandeliers, upholstery. The total private contribution came to some £600,000.

Sentimental Choice

Many wanted a modern building, a palace of glass and steel and concrete. This the sentimental population refused, and the new Nationaltheater is an almost exact copy of the old, in which, between the acts of great operas, all-in wrestlers took on all comers, acrobats twizzled, and mad King Ludwig's mistress Lola Montez did rather inexpert Spanish dances.

At the inaugural ceremony pamphlets were flung around containing furious damnation of the theatre's cost ("twice as much as that of comparable buildings") and of its taste ("what was dismissed in cultural histories as a pseudo-monumental temple, becomes when reconstructed a piece of bottomless 'kitsch' that caricatures its own extravagance . . . ").

The police blamed "leftist progressive artists." Once again, politics had made their home in a European opera. Belgium sprang from a revolution that began after a good aria. In Munich, in 1918, crowds of revolutionary workers waited for officers to leave the Nationaltheater to lynch them. Class warfare over the first-night seats has not yet died down. As it should, the new opera matters more to Bavaria than half a dozen ministries.

Malraux—Artist in Politics

By PENDENNIS, in The London Observer

AT the end of a gruelling two-week debate on the budget recently, the weary French deputies suddenly woke up to a dazzling phenomenon: Andre Malraux, Minister of Culture and President Charles de Gaulle's closest colleague, was embarking on a tremendous oration on the meaning of art.

Malraux's influence on French politics, through de Gaulle is important. He is now 62, he talks jerkily, he twitches in a disconcerting way. It is 30 years since he wrote his monster novel about China, "La Condition Humaine," the shattering story of Chiang Ka-Shek's struggle with the Communists in the 1920s. But his life—as an airman in Spain, a Comintern agent in China, a Resistance leader in the war—makes him a living legend.

And he has recently been conducting a major French cultural offensive. He stage manages the great Gaullist occasions. He sent off the Mona Lisa to America. He made stirring speeches to French-Canadians in Montreal and Quebec, and recently (as the latest missile in this cultural war) has arranged for the Venus de Milo to be dispatched to Japan for next year's Olympics.

Malraux is not afraid to conduct politics with style and he had done much to give de Gaulle's government a special dignity. When Braque died two months ago, Malraux made a funeral speech in a rainstorm in the courtyard of Le Louvre, standing by the flag-draped coffin of the dead painter.

Malraux's latest speech ranged from Chaplin to Antigone. He took as his theme a quotation from his own works: "The stuff of culture is that which, in death, at the same time belongs to life." And he went on to explain to the bewildered deputies the difference between leisure and culture, the evils of the "dream machines" of cinema and TV, and the need to give people the means to defend themselves against such machines.

"It is perfectly true that intellectual nationalism does not exist," he said. "But it is also perfectly true that it is a great honor for a country to bear the responsibility for the destiny of men, and particularly the responsibility for that which can save them."

As Our Readers See It

Socialists Unsplit

Some individuals are pleased to call the recent NDP controversy a Socialist split.

We of the Socialist Party of Canada call ourselves and are the Socialists and are anything but split.

If the NDP-CCF had been a party of Socialists it would never have been founded in 1933, but instead those Socialists would have joined the Socialist Party of Canada which was already in existence.

It is unfortunate indeed that many genuinely looking for solutions to working class problems vainly do so within the more popular but reactionary, strike-breaking NDP-CCF, submitting themselves to ridicule and abuse and, probably, eventual expulsion.

They would better spend their efforts learning the real answers from the far smaller but soundly based Socialist Party of Canada.

Teachers and Members

How come, in a democracy, our recently elected legislators in Ottawa double their salaries, and our school teachers get an increase of only 2½ per cent?

NO SCALAWAG.

For Hall

Most Saanich taxpayers will agree with the unanimous decision of the Saanich council, agreeing that the present out-dated municipal hall does not meet the needs of our fast-developing municipality.

The Saanich Voters' Association fully supports the early construction of a new municipal hall. The considerable funds on hand, the guarantee of financial assistance from the federal government and the poor facilities of the existing structure convince us of the desirability of the project.

A new municipal hall we must have for the very best efficiency in the conduct of our civic business, and this association urges all electors to vote in the affirmative when the referendum on the hall is presented on December 5th.

'Interfering Chatterboxes'

In a letter in The Times, Nov. 20, the president of the World Federalists of Canada criticizes Lieut-Governor Pearkes for saying that Canada's faith in the United Nations might be called misplaced.

Many of us think he might have gone even further—as far as an English diplomat who came to Canada recently and voiced the opinion of many thinking people when he said that the sooner the UN was liquidated the better.

The UN has proved itself to be nothing more than a nest of interfering chatterboxes. They made no attempt to help Poland or Hungary; they allowed Tibet to be over-run without protest and with shocking brutalities; they made a tangle of inexcusable mischief in the Conogo.

The UN now consists chiefly of colored delegates, largely illiterate. It has shown itself incompetent to deal with world disputes. Why maintain it?

It was founded on impractical idealism and has cost an inordinate amount of money that could have been better spent.

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA—One of the hard-learned lessons of history, demonstrated all the way from the Plantagenet kings to Harold Macmillan, is that it takes a strong common cause to unite the English and the French.

Kaiser Wilhelm, Hitler and Stalin brought the two peoples together in modern times, but with Stalin dead a scant 10 years the cross-Channel togetherness has so deteriorated that Charles De Gaulle slammed the door of the Common Market against Britain, and has been as rude as he sees fit to those near-English, the Americans.

I think we can apply the lesson to the widening rift between English and French in Canada, but cautiously. The cement of common cause has weakened not because the world wars are past and Russian imperialism is quiescent, but because we no longer fear domination by England or America.

The secret of Mackenzie King's long rule is often said to have been his ability to use English-French differences for his own ends, to balance one group against the other. This does not do him justice. In his own unspectacular way he used Anglophobia and anti-Americanism as cement for national unity: the former from the Chanak Incident in 1922 to his rejection of an Imperial war cabinet two decades later; the latter in an attitude of suspicion towards U.S. motives and intentions that lasted until the Ogdensburg Agreement of 1940.

So after a century of laboriously building what often has seemed the fiction of a Canadian nation, after asserting our Canadian identity first to the Americans and later to the British, we have come to the point where some of us reject what we have created, and try to erase what the moving finger has writ.

The Lesages and the Levesques and the Guerin-Lajoies are in part creating and in part being swept along by today's divisive forces. As leaders they must lead; as politicians they must follow the mood of their people.

They would rewrite history: this is not one nation, but two. This country is not a confederation of the British colonies in North America, but a 50-50 partnership between the British colonies of Upper Canada and the Maritimes on one side and the French-Canadian "nation" on the other.

What they are really doing is turning their backs on the "British fact" in Quebec from 1759 to 1840. They play with semantics: "nation" has a different meaning in French than in English. But they are deliberately confusing this French meaning, essentially cultural, with the English meaning, essentially political, to argue that Canada is a country of two nations, one French and one not, united on equal terms in a federal framework.

That this belies historical fact is immaterial if the Quebec nationalists can make it stick with a threat of "or else."

Maybe what this country needs isn't more Hyannis Port spirit, but another great American benefactor like Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1911. Clark looked forward to the day when the Star Spangled Banner would fly from the Rio Grande to the North Pole—and probably did as much for Canadian unity as any man since Sir John A. Macdonald.

YOUR HEALTH — By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Controversial Cancer Cures

I am distressed when I see laymen trying to determine the value of a supposed cancer cure, especially after the experts in the great laboratories have analyzed the stuff and have found it to be plain tap water, or perhaps a common substance like table salt, which no one would think of prescribing for a patient with cancer.

Alvarez

Years ago U.S. government chemists kept saying that the then most widely-sold "cancer cure" was nothing but tap water, but no one paid any attention to them; and the water continued to sell like hot-cakes for large prices. Today, with Koch a fugitive from justice, I imagine his "cure," like Hoxey's, Coffey-Humber's, and a dozen others, is as dead as the Dodo.

The other day I saw a picture of people picketing the White House demanding the right to buy the latest "cancer cure," which in 14 years does not seem to have been able to impress itself favorably on the physicians of the world. As always happens, laymen are convinced of the value of a supposed cancer cure the minute someone who had a cancer, or was supposed to have one, took the medicine, and felt better, or for a while did not die. Usually the fact that the person had had his cancer cut out, and had then received much X-ray treatment does not suggest to the people that such treatment could be what is helping him.

To a physician of experience, improvement of a patient with cancer, after his taking a drug, means nothing, because the doctor has seen so many people with hopeless cancer who took no medicine and for a while felt fine, or did not die.

To show what I mean: About 1915, a friend of mine had such a terribly malignant cancer on his foot that immediately a surgeon took off his whole limb at the hip. Quickly the tumor reappeared in the man's groin, and, according to the rules, he should have been dead in three months, but without any medicine he remained alive and healthy. When I last saw him, a few years ago, he was fat and hard at work. If he had only taken one dose of some quack "cancer cure," what a tremendous boost the quack's stock would have received! Actually, some 5 per cent of people with cancer refuse to die of it.

Now, the U.S. government sends me a "release" showing that our latest "cure," like all previous ones, has proved to be an ordinary chemical which any cancer victim can secure in enormous amounts simply by eating a beefsteak. What impresses me is that the findings have been checked and found correct by several eminent chemists in several great universities and institutions.

What bothers me is why any layman, even a U.S. senator, should believe that he is capable of deciding the value of a "cancer cure." Even with all my medical training, I would never think of attempting to make such a decision. I would leave it up to the world's experts.

I am disgusted when someone tells me that we physicians—just out of jealousy—for years, kept some quack, or some self-deluded enthusiast, like my old friend Dr. Coffey, from getting credit for his "cancer cure." This is so silly. Did we doctors try to block the discovery of any of the great curative drugs which were found for us in the last 30 years? No; our tendency has been to grab a drug out of the hands of the discoverer before he has had time to determine that its use is safe.

Finally, will someone please tell me if ever a quack or a self-deluded enthusiast discovered a drug of great value to mankind? I cannot think of one, and I have been reading the history of medicine for half a century.

Cholera Spreads

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore was declared a cholera-infected state Tuesday night. The government took the action following an announcement by the health ministry that three cases of eltor cholera had been confirmed on the island, bringing the total to 17.

JOHNSON SPEAKS CLEARLY

Civil Rights Biggest Domestic Issue

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The towering domestic problem in the United States today, and a tricky political issue in the battle for the presidency next year, is the question of full equality for the Negro.

President Johnson is a Southerner.

But speaking on the site of the battle of Gettysburg, last May 30 on U.S. Memorial Day, Johnson said:

"Until justice is blind to color, until education is unaware of race, until opportunity is unconcerned with the color of men's skins, emancipation will be a proclamation but not a fact.

"The Negro today asks justice.

"We do not answer him—we do not answer those who lie beneath this soil—when we reply to the Negro by asking 'patience.'"

Carl T. Rowan, the U.S. ambassador to Finland, is a Negro. At a dinner in Helsinki last September, Johnson called him "one of our most outstanding young Americans."

Guided New Laws

As a political realist, he knows his position on civil rights can cost him votes in the likely event that he is the Democratic nominee in 1964. In Texas, only a few hours before President Kennedy was assassinated, Johnson said: "The civil rights issue is going to hurt us."

It may be a factor in parts of the North, too. Some northern politicians call civil rights an "iceberg issue" — meaning there is more hidden than visible opposition to Kennedy administration proposals in this field.

Where does Johnson stand on other issues?

He has described himself as both a "liberal" and a "conservative."

Political labels are slippery. However, over the years, he has spoken out on virtually every major foreign and domestic issue.

Here are some of his statements:

Cuba—"We shall not be content until the last of Soviet forces are withdrawn from foreign soil. The members of the Organization of American States are mutually determined that the Cuban people shall have the opportunity to choose their own government freely and without oppression."

Backs Aid Plan

Defence—"We cannot be done with our dangers or even our duties by next weekend or next year. We are in for a long pull and it is our duty to begin pulling."

Communist China — "America stands firm with her Chinese (Nationalist) allies and we shall continue to do so until freedom is secured."

Disarmament—"We now face the prospect of destroying ourselves. . . . I am calling for an open curtain for full discussion of the immediate, urgent problems facing our people. We should insist on the right to state our case on disarmament in detail to the Soviet people." (He said this in 1957, before the agreement to ban nuclear testing.)

PRESS SECRETARY to President Johnson is expected to be Carl Rowan prize-winning Negro journalist now serving as U.S. Ambassador to Finland. He would succeed Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press aide.

Latin America — "We must revitalize our diplomatic corps with ambassadors who know and understand our neighbors and their language and have qualifications other than contributing to campaign chests.

"We must offer to the people of Latin America the very best technical know-how which will help them to develop their skills and to make and sell their own products."

Johnson's voting record shows:

Labor—In 1947, he voted to override President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act. In 1952, he voted to request the president to invoke the injunction provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act in the steel strike. In other votes, he opposed requiring unions to elect their officers by secret ballot every four years and requiring a majority vote, by secret ballot, before a union could call a strike.

School Funds

Education—In 1949, he voted for a $300,000,000 federal aid to education bill and against an amendment to restrict aid to public schools. In 1960, he voted to provide $917,000,000 a year for two years for school construction and teachers' salaries.

Agriculture—He voted for the Democratic program of high, rigid farm price supports.

Taxes—In 1948, Johnson voted against the tax-reduction bill passed in the Republican-controlled Congress over President Truman's veto. He had supported a move to send the bill back to committee with instructions to raise personal exemptions to $700 and increase corporate taxes. In 1951, he voted against a tax-bill amendment to provide for a withholding tax on dividends.

Welfare—He voted for area redevelopment legislation, disability benefits under Social Security, extending Social Security coverage, increased grants for public assistance, establishing the Youth Conservation Corps, larger appropriations for federally-sponsored medical research, slum clearance and low-rent housing legislation.

As vice-president, Johnson visited 33 countries and travelled more than 118,000 miles on missions abroad.

One of these took him to West Berlin where, in a reference to the Berlin wall, he said in a speech:

"Lift your eyes from these barriers and ask yourselves: Who can really believe that history will deny Germany and yourselves their natural unity?"

Hays Sells Cattle

HIGH RIVER, Alta. (CP)—Agriculture Minister Harry Hays Tuesday parted reluctantly with most of his cattle herd. He said he had to sell the cattle "not because I don't have good help but because I just can't spend enough time here to keep the cattle." He said he also wants to exclude personal interests from his position as agriculture minister.

Oil Sands Proposal Opposed

CALGARY (CP) — Two oil companies recommended Wednesday that an application of Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. to increase its authorized production rate from the Athabasca oil sands be refused.

Cities Service Athabasca Inc. and Pan American Petroleum Corp. opposed the application, in which Great Canadian seeks to increase its allowable production rate to 45,000 barrels of crude a day from 31,500 barrels.

Near the end of the two-day hearing before the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board, a spokesman for Cities Athabasca said Great Canadian, only company holding a permit for development of the sands, was attempting to get greater productions approved in "little bites."

The sands, about 250 miles northeast of Edmonton, are estimated by the board to contain 626,000,000,000 barrels of crude oil. Earlier this year the board rejected an application by Cities Athabasca to extract 100,000 barrels of crude a day from the sands.

J. H. Laycraft, counsel for Cities Athabasca, said: "The applicant I submit has worked on the principle that a series of small bites is easier to get than one large gulp."

"I suggest there is no reason in principle why a further succession of increases should not be required for the same reasons . . . We could expect a further series apparently based on the status obtained by the original application," he said.

Mr. Laycraft said Great Canadian in its orignal submission testified it could and would proceed with a plan based on production of 32,500 barrels a day.

"Now they reappear before the board and the confident witnesses are gone — they are replaced by a group of either realists or pessimists asking for an increase in productions to make their project economic."

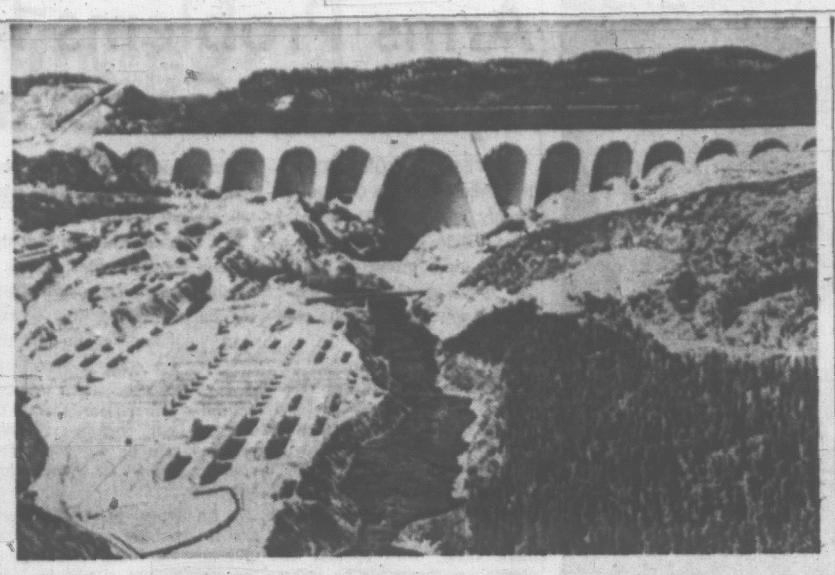

New Apartment Project Started

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edmonton Developers have started construction of a 17-storey apartment building with a commercial main floor, at the southwest corner of Davie and Cardero in Vancouver's West End.

The $2,500,000 project will have an enclosed 24 by 42-foot swimming pool and parking for 99 tenant cars as well as 33 shoppers cars. The main floor will include a large supermarket, bank and drug store.

The rectangular tower will have 169 suites, with seven one-bedroom suites and three bachelor suites per floor. Rentals will range from $80 to $140, according to R. B. Romer, vice-president of Vancouver Management Ltd., agent for the Edmonton Developers.

They are represented by Chartered Investments ltd., a western Canadian apartment developer with one building completed and one under construction in Victoria. The West End project is the company's first building in Vancouver.

$2 MILLION A YEAR SUGGESTED

Industrial Research Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal aid of $2,000,000 yearly for co-operative industrial research, patterned on the British system, has been recommended in a report prepared for the now-defunct National Productivity Council and now made to the Economic Council of Canada.

The report, by Dr. John Convey and V. A. Haw of the mines department, says this amount of federal money would provide about 40-per-cent financial underpinning for joint research by 10 groups of Canadian companies, each group having a $500,000 annual budget.

The authors wrote their report after five weeks in Britain, where the government provides approximately 25-per-cent backing for some 53 research associations. These cover 22,000 firms, about 70 per cent of British industry. The other 30 per cent is mainly large aircraft and chemical corporations already heavily supported by research.

"The government's attitude in the United Kingdom appears to be that aid to research associations is essentially a pump-priming activity intended to speed initial growth, after which industry should shoulder an increasing burden of the costs," the report said.

It added that co-operative research is conducted in at least 14 countries in one form or another, with almost all governments providing some suport, though the amount of aid varies widely.

In Canada, said the report, one successful venture in co-operative research already exists—the Pulp and Paper Institute at Pointe Claire, Que. It was described as "a research organization with a world-wide reputation, supported by the pulp and paper industry with the assistance of the federal government."

Other joint Canadian schemes were noted by the report—such as work by asbestos producers, uranium producers, the Canadian Lime Association which supports a program at Queen's University, the Steel Castings Institute of Canada, the Canadian Zinc Research and Development Committee, and the Ontario Metal Mining Association.

OAK BAY MEETING

Second-Round Improvements Lively Topic

Zoning and financing of second-round local improvements and the proposed recreation centre took priority in the platforms presented Wednesday night by aspiring Oak Bay councilmen.

Candidates for reeve, Councillors John Watts and Allan Cox, placed two views on the financing of second-round local improvement before a crowd of 200 interested ratepayers.

The all-candidate meeting in the municipal hall was sponsored by the Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association.

Coun. Watts said that local improvement was an excellent policy in the development of Oak Bay but now it is impossible to differentiate between maintenance and replacement.

He said the only workable solution is "for the Corporation eventually to accept the full responsibility for all maintenance of our street system."

At no time would the frontager be paying more than his share of initial local improvements and at no time would he be paying more than others who had not only paid a direct share towards their improvement but also contributed heavily towards the Corporation's share over the years.

He recommended that local improvements be paid for out of general revenue and not by borrowing, which means paying two dollars for every dollar's worth of work done.

Coun. Cox considers abandonment of second-round locals an expedient policy but not an equitable one.

"I say the frontagers must bear some portion of the cost no matter how small to preserve equity with those thousands of residents still paying locals."

Coun. Cox approved in principle of a recreation centre but he does not believe the ratepayers will ever buy a $1,000,000 proposition which he said will cost $2,000,000 when repaid with interest.

Defends Political Affiliations

Replying to an earlier statement made by Coun. Watts about his political affiliations, Coun. Cox said: "My commitments to any political party are the same as those of the majority of past reeves in Oak Bay and the majority of citizens . . . nothing more than a belief in something and the fortitude to openly stand up and support it."

"I do not criticize my friend (Coun. Watts) for his failure to take an active part in the political life of our country and province, because his is an occupation such that he is not free to stand up and openly advocate what he believes in."

Coun. Watts stated it was the duty of the reeve to consider all of the municipality and he should not be connected with certain 'pressure groups.'

Coun. Watts, chairman of the zoning and development planning committee dealing with the proposed recreation centre, said the cost of the proposed plan is presently being estimated by a surveyor and should be ready for council next month.

He recommends construction at this time to take advantage of the municipal development and loan fund and the winter works grant.

Incumbent councillors Walter Dodsworth and William Wade stood on their past record in office, although Coun. Wade said in matters of zoning the bylaws were laid down a number of years ago and cannot be changed except by a public hearing.

Only woman candidate, Mrs. Daryl Elford, came out firmly against amalgamation, but favored a revised formula of fixed grants from the provincial government to the municipalities.

Careful Attention to Zoning

On other municipal issues she took a moderate stand—a recreational centre when financially possible and continued careful attention to residential and commercial zoning.

Accountant Peter Lovric offered "no panacea" for municipal problems but advocated sound businesslike administration.

Teacher and retired naval officer Eric Makovski said his greatest concern was the preservation of Oak Bay's charm. He envisaged a master plan which would be approved by the electorate, not just council, and which could be altered only at set dates.

He also expressed concern with the continual rise in taxes.

He said "roads are even better than they need to be."

"But if you are going to have these improvements you are going to change the character of Oak Bay."

Strong opponent of present zoning bylaws, Donald Cameron backed his stand against high-rise apartments by reviewing apartments as they exist today along the waterfront and by pointing out to the ratepayers 10 other areas that are zoned for apartment buildings.

He referred to apartments as a "blight" on the area and said that the Rudyard Kipling apartment could be seen from as far away as one mile.

Last candidate to enter the race, William Scott, said "we have a billion-dollar asset in our waterfront . . . but I am afraid that you as electors will allow pirates on the high sea to exploit it."

After telling the electors they were more important than the councillors, he offered to be their spokesman to carry out the message.

Refresher Course For Scout Supporters

Annual refresher course for adult supporters of the Boy Scouts of Canada will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in regional headquarters, 1034 Johnson St.

Under the leadership of Jack F. Batey, chairman of the regional program committee, a special course will be given for group and district committeemen, adult supporters of scouting and parents of Cubs, Scouts and Rovers in the Arbutus, Camosun, Cedar Hill and Douglas districts.

Instructors will include regional commissioner W. H. Gibson, E. C. Brown, J. R. Giegerich and W. G. Hughes.

Wider Marriage Rules Proposed for Catholics

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A German cardinal and an Italian abbot proposed today that Roman Catholicism recognize mixed marriages celebrated in non-Catholic churches.

The two prelates told the Vatican ecumenical council that the Roman Catholic Church should drop its law that any marriage between a Catholic and non-Catholic is invalid if the ceremony is not performed by a Catholic priest.

Joseph Cardinal Frings of Cologne, Germany, and Very Rev. Ilario Capucci, Italian-born superior general of the Basilian Melchite Monks of Aleppo, Syria, proposed the mixed marriage law changes in the interest of Christian unity.

They spoke as the Roman Catholic council—a gathering of cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops, bishops and abbots from around the world—continued its discussion of a schema on Christian unity questions.

SUMMARIZE STATEMENT

The spokesman quoted Cardinal Frings as saying:

"If the non-Catholic marriage partner cannot make the required promises, he should not be forced to, but rather should be discouraged from entering into the marriage.

"It would be far better, however, if the (Roman Catholic) Church were to recognize the validity of a mixed marriage celebrated without a (Catholic) priest."

Roman Catholicism now recognizes a mixed marriage only if the non-Catholic partner solemnly promises to raise any children as Catholics and pledges not to influence the Catholic partner against his or her faith. In addition the marriage ceremony must be performed by a Catholic priest.

Cardinal Frings, spokesmen said, was referring to church marriages and not to civil marriages.

Abbot Capucci was quoted as saying: "We should do away with the law making mixed marriages without a priest invalid."

Research Ship Burns

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—A 90-foot ocean research ship caught fire at dock early Thursday and then exploded as firemen fought the blaze. But fire officials said no one was believed injured. The ketch was identified as the Earl of Desmond, owned by Geraldine Limited, a subsidiary of Bell Aerospace. A spokesman for the firm estimated damage at $50,000, due partly to the loss of electronics equipment.

Arms Problems Referred By UN to Geneva Meeting

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly concluded its disarmament debate Wednesday by referring main problems back to the 18-nation Geneva committee for new consultations starting in January.

The assembly endorsed four resolutions which had been worked out by its main political committee. Both bodies have representatives from all 111 UN members.

The resolutions were:

1. An appeal to the Geneva committee to continue disarmament talks, with special emphasis on measures to reduce international tension. This was approved by acclamation, with Albania not participating.

2. A recommendation that the Geneva body consider calling a special conference to sign a convention prohibiting use of unclear weapons. Canada and the U.S. were among a group opposing this proposal, on the ground that safeguards must be worked out before nuclear weapons can be outlawed. The vote was 64 to 18 with 25 abstentions.

3. An appeal to nuclear powers to continue efforts to ban underground tests, to complete the partial ban signed in Moscow last summer. Canada was among 104 nations in favor. Albania was opposed and there were three abstention.

4. A recommendation that urgent studies be carried on with the aim of establishing a nuclear-free zone in Latin America. This was supported by 90 members. There was none opposed but 15 countries, mainly the Soviet bloc abstained.

'PAY TAXES TO CHURCH'

TORONTO (CP) — Oakah L. Jones, president of Consumers' Gas Company, Tuesday urged Anglicans to give more to their church and thereby pay less income tax.

Mr. Jones, an Anglican, told a one-day synod of the Toronto diocese: "Take the advice of your accountants and lawyers and give to your church what you won't save in income tax.

"You must want to give to church or charity," he said. The government "wants only its fair and rightful share."

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL TALKS

Most Premiers Agree: Put Canada First

By PETER McCLINTOCK
Special Correspondent

OTTAWA — The basic and fundamental issue behind all the talk at the federal-provincial conference is simply: what is the proper balance between federal and provincial authority? Around these questions revolve all the discussions and debate on tax-sharing formulas, equalization payments, shared-cost schemes and the rest.

The provincial premiers are here to put forward the case for their provinces. In every instance this involves a demand for more money from Ottawa with which to carry out provincial responsibilities. But it is encouraging to note that most of the premiers realize that although they are spokesmen for their provinces, they are, in a larger sense, Canadians; and that the good of the country as a whole supersedes that of the individual provinces.

Thus Manitoba's brief to the conference states: "Canada is one nation or it is none. The mutuality of interest and necessity that led to the founding of Canada in the beginning still operates as effectively and compellingly as it did in 1867. . . Our task, then, is to make secure vigorous, effective provincial government with adequate financial resources, and at the same time to safeguard an effective central administration."

A National Standard

Nova Scotia's submission said: "Some government in Canada must be charged with the responsibility of assuring to Canadian citizens a national standard of essential services, and that responsibility can only be discharged effectively by the federal government."

Ontario's brief said: "Our union, as one indivisible federally united nation, with faith in the future, was accomplished voluntarily to conduce to the welfare of the provinces which entered union on July 1, 1867, and those provinces whose subsequent admission was anticipated and welcomed . . . Canada is at a turning point of its long history. It requires a strong national government of character and wisdom to face up to the realities to appreciate where its revenues come from, to know where its powers are, to contain itself within the fields of federal jurisdiction, and in the discharge of its responsibilities where the provinces are involved, to consult frequently with the provinces . . . above all it must have a vital awareness of the requirements of the provinces for financial independence in their spheres of jurisdiction . . ."

Even British Columbia,

PREMIER LESAGE
. . . the exception

which would have Ottawa withdraw from direct taxation, said in its brief: "We, like all Canadians, are citizens first of a country and not of a province."

All But One Agree

In fact, all provinces but one, while wishing to strengthen themselves, admit the need for a strong central government at Ottawa. The exception is Quebec. The tenor of Quebec's brief is that it would have the various provincial governments at least as strong as, if not stronger than, the federal government.

Mr. Lesage would have Ottawa vacate some of the major domestic responsibilities now exercised by the federal government, or by the federal and provincial governments jointly, and would hand these responsibilities entirely over to the provinces. The provinces would assume such programs as pensions, health insurance, etc., as well as sources necessary to finance them.

This appeared to be the basic stumbling block as the conference opened — the fundamental difference between nationalism as conceived by French - speaking Canadians and Canadian nationalism.

One seasoned observer remarked, after reading all the briefs: "If the provinces are really that far apart we might as well all go home now." But his discouragement was not shared by delegates at the meeting.

All Was Sweetness

When the conference opened on Tuesday, all was sweetness and light. But that has happened before and observers waited to see how fast the good feelings would curdle.

On Wednesday, however, the atmosphere had not apparently deteriorated greatly. This was the day when the delegates got down to brass tacks, to talking about joint plans operated by Ottawa and the provinces and about fiscal policies generally. This could have been the day of the long knives. But at the day's end there was no blood on the floor.

Reports coming from the conference chamber told of more give and take, more cut and thrust than on the day before. Yet with all the atmosphere remained friendly. "sympathetique" was how one western delegate described the general attitude of the premiers.

At Wednesday morning's session, Mr. Lesage restated Quered to a committee of attorneys revenues. He was, according to those who heard him, most impressive.

The Quebec premier raised the matter of changing the law to make lotteries legal, with a view to having governments sponsor lotteries to raise money for hospital and social welfare programs. Provinces west of Manitoba raised their hands in holy horror at the idea; and other provinces did not commit themselves strongly one way or the other. The question was referred to a committee of Attorneys general.

Shared Cost Talks

In the afternoon the meeting continued to talk about shared-cost programs and fiscal policy generally. Although there inevitably were sharp differences of opinion, some delegates felt that genuine progress was made towards a meeting of views. Mr. Pearson, outside the chamber, scoffed at talk of a "crisis" in confederation. Manitoba's premier Roblin was impressed with the large area of agreement in the provincial briefs, and felt that by Wednesday night the provinces and Ottawa had moved closer together. This view was concurred in by a B.C spokesman.

The hard news of the day was that Ottawa is prepared, as of April 1 next, to rewrite the equalization formula in the federal - provincial tax agreements. Just how the new formula will work, and what its effects will be, are still vague.

In his opening statement to the conference, Mr. Pearson said: "It is well known that my colleagues and I prefer to see equalization paid up to the level, not of the average of all provinces as parliament enacted in 1961, but up to the level of the highest." But when he made his offer, Mr. Pearson apparently did not make it clear if "highest" means the highest province by itself, or perhaps the two highest provinces. Nor has it been decided if the equalization payments will be made on the basis of the three shared taxes alone—personal income tax, corporation tax and succession duties—or the three taxes plus national revenue, as is now the case.

These highly important details will be a matter for discussion by the delegates before the conference ends.

The government sees in its proposal, however, substantially larger equalization payments to the less wealthy provinces. The two provinces which could be expected to oppose this change most vigorously are Ontario and British Columbia.

B.C. made it plain in its submission that it opposed the idea of equalization payments of any kind. Ontario said that it had agreed to the present tax arrangements, but would not look happily on any change that would cost Ontario more.

Yet on Wednesday night both Mr. Bennett and Mr. Robarts were taking the proposed changes very calmly. The B.C. premier may have been influenced by the belief that the new formula will apply on the basis of the tax revenues of the single top province—Ontario; in which case British Columbia would stand to be a beneficiary rather than a payee.

Mr. Robarts called a press conference shortly after the Wednesday sitting of the conference broke up. But no fireworks were forthcoming. The Ontario premier merely said that if a higher degree of equalization was necessary to hold the country together, he had no vigorous objections. Ontario had, he said, agreed to the principle of equalization. The issue now was merely one of how much equalization.

JOHNSON— 'NO MAN BETTER'

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas Gov. John Connally Wednesday described President Lyndon B. Johnson as "literate in the understanding of the terms of human nature"

He said Johnson was a person "of many compexities."

". . . Not the most well read person, but he has the greatest human understanding that you will ever encounter.

"A person of great charm and poise—at times he can be almost brusque and rude, always determined, always firm, always a man of his convictions."

Connally said those were the qualities he would point out first and added that it could be said "no man ever really assumed the burdens of that office better equipped than he."

He said Johnson was born in rugged country of rugged parents and saw many hard times—even poverty stricken at times.

"He pulled himself up by his own bootstraps," the governor said.

ROBERT KENNEDY

STAYS ON NOW

Future Uncertain For Bobby

WASHINGTON (AP)—The political future of Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy is the farthest thing from his mind just now, close associates of the brother of the assassinated president reported today.

"He just hasn't had time to sort things out in his mind and plan a future, said one aide who asked not to be quoted by name.

But as the capital rebounds from the shock of John F. Kennedy's death, one of the top political questions is: What will become of Robert Kennedy now?

Until the death of the president, Robert Kennedy was probably the second most influential man in the executive branch. He was his brothers most intimate adviser.

It is generally felt that Kennedy—at least for the foreseeable future—will remain attorney-general. He would like to see the civil rights legislation pushed by him and his late brother get through Congress. And he most likely will want to be around to see what happens to Teamsters President James R. Hoffa when Hoffa's jury-tampering trial begins next January.

With public sentiment for the Kennedys at a peak, it might be politically risky for Johnson to drop the attorney - general from the cabinet—even if he should wish to. And there has been no indication that such is the case.

Friends of the attorney-general report that he has developed high regard for Johnson because of the hard work and loyalty the Texan gave Kennedy while vice-president. Loyalty to his older brother was Robert Kennedy's trademark, and he demanded and responded warmly to that devotion in others.

Should Johnson seek re-election and win, it is a pretty safe bet that Kennedy won't stay in the cabinet beyond the present presidential term. If he is shooting for some distant political glory of his own, he may see as a prerequisite election to some office.

Some speculation has centred on the governorship of Massachusetts as one possibility. But the incumbent, Endicott Peabody, is a close friend of the Kennedys. A Massachusetts Senate election comes up next year, but the present Democratic occupant of that seat is Robert's brother, Edward.

In the wave of emotion which swelled after the assassination, there was some talk that Kennedy might seek the vice-presidential spot on a Johnson ticket next year. But that seemed based more on sentiment than on cold political thinking.

Christmas Exams Haunt Students

By BETH BOYLE
Times University Correspondent

Study halls at the University of Victoria are crowded as Christmas exams approach and the end of the first term of lectures nears.

Lectures end officially December 7, but several professors cancel their last few lectures to give students extra time to study.

Christmas examinations start Tuesday, December 10, and end Friday, December 20. The second term begins Monday, January 6, at which time fees are due and payable at the bursar's office.

The majority of exams will be written by first and second year students as Christmas exams in upper year courses are left to the decision of the individual professors. However, senior students can look forward to examinations covering the full session's work next April.

For the frosh the pressure is particularly heavy as the average drop-out at Christmas is 4½ per cent.

All students look toward the first set of examinations at the new university with apprehensive curiosity. More difficult exams would not be unexpected as trends towards a higher academic standard have been obvious in recent years.

GOLD STARS, GOLD LUGGAGE TAGS

Airways Honor 100,000-Mile Vets

Pioneers of the airways have become legends, but what of the pioneering passengers?

If they're anything like Angus McIntyre of 2684 Dewdney Ave., they are still passengers—in the golden age of air travel.

And to prove it, they have gold stars, gold certificates, and even gold luggage tags.

Mr. McIntyre, a British America Paint Co. technical director, is a member of the exclusive 100,000 Mile Club.

As the name implies, you must have travelled 100,000 miles or more to qualify.

"I was flying home from New York one day," Mr. McIntyre said, "when a man asked me how far I'd flown."

The man turned out to be Seattle manager for United Airlines, and he described the airline's club to Mr. McIntyre.

AWARDED SHIELD

"Three months later (in 1961) I received a big box like something from a jeweller.

"It had a shield and a gold card in it.

"I'm almost due for another," Mr. McIntyre said. "I've done 350,000."

The gold card, when flashed at any airport, secures prompt and preferential treatment if there is any problem of space on planes.

EXPECTS DIVERSIONS

"On my last New York trip," he said, "the official took my folder, put my ticket in a gold folder, gave me a gold lapel pin, and put a gold label on my luggage!"

Mr. McIntyre travels about four times every year to Chicago or New York, usually to attend national paint conventions. Sometimes he is interrupted midway by a phone call diverting him to Houston, Texas.

Mr. McIntyre's first flight was in 1928 with the new B.C. Airways company established by pioneer Ernest Eve.

"It was in a tri-motor Ford to Seattle," he said. "We went to Seattle from the old Lansdowne airfield."

Mr. McIntyre has had some memorable moments in the air, winning his stars.

In 1939, he was en route to Ottawa, when the plane had to land at Armstrong emergency field near Toronto.

"There was a 300-foot ceiling. We could see nothing . . . then suddenly there were trees at our wingtips.

"I was wishing I had one foot on the ground."

On a trip to Europe last year, Mr. McIntyre and wife Winola stopped briefly at Sondre Strom, Greenland.

"We were supposed to stay 40 minutes. There was another plane there, having engine trouble. As we went aboard again, we felt quite superior—till we learned our CPA plane also had engine trouble."

MISERABLE NIGHT

The McIntyres and other passengers spent the daylight night huddled in chairs "in the most godforsaken place I've ever seen."

But recently, when Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre and BAPCO president William Pendray and his wife were on their way to a national paint convention in Atlantic City, they stopped off for several days in New York.

"We called the airlines for flight time" Mr. McIntyre said.

"Next day we turned up at La Guardia airport, to find the flight would leave from Newark on the other side of town."

A taxi got them there with five minutes to spare—for $30.

"Then we were told that there was no space on the plane anyway," Mr. McIntyre said. "A gold pass would have been handy!"

. . . GREY CUP

stampede of football writers to attend.

The tennis and the golf tournament for visiting reporters are designed to impress the shivering Easterners with the November charms of the evergreen playground. This theory has rather flopped—to the delight of the Toronto press—as the weatherman promises rain for Saturday and the biggest crisis is over the condition of waterlogged Empire Stadium.

BEAUTY PAGEANT

The search for the fairest gridiron girl of all has been blown up into a full Miss Grey Cup Pageant at the Commodore Cabaret for the night before the game. At the same time the football notaries will pack Hotel Vancouver ballroom for the $10 a plate Grey Cup dinner. And preceding both will be a giant seafood smorgasbord at the Bayshore hosted by the B.C. government, so any active celebrant will need stamina if he is to make it through Friday.

Saturday morning sharp at nine the city's nine o'clock gun will boom, Thundering Jets will scream over the city, 1000 helium-filled balloons will be released, every vessel in the harbor will let go its whistle and the Grey Cup Parade will officially get under way.

Vancouver Board of Trade, organizers of the affair, are especially eager to do things up properly this year because U.S. televiewers will be watching. ABC will carry a half-hour edited version of the parade and Tony Harmon, the old Michigan all-American is here to do the commentary on the game.

VICTORIAN TRADITION

The Ye Olde Victoria myth will get further strengthening through the Victoria float, which parade officials expect to be one of the better ones in the procession. A vintage Rolls Royce, replete with Union Jacks and overstuffed British Colonels (Ret.) will use a long Len Norris-style woollen scarf to tow a Victoria mansion—with turrets, cluster lights and tea gardens.

A self-propelled ferry entered by Mr. Bennett's forces, will sail up Georgia. Calgary is sending buffalo and chuckwagons and Courtenay-Comox will have some of its prize salmon in a huge glass tank. Toronto, which has stolen the show in other years has a closely-guarded ghost entry set to go.

Just to show off their up-to-date approach to things, the Board of Trade men have even dispensed with the broom and shovel act. They'll follow the horses with industrial vacuum cleaners.

If the beloved Lions do happen to win it all and their fans happen to run wild, city police are all prepared. Over-prepared might be a better description considering the details of a 30-page Operation Grey Cup brief printed by police.

They will set up special quarters at the courthouse to be near the centre of celebrations. Patrol cars carrying dogs will roam downtown streets. Special spotters will be stationed in hotel windows to watch for outbreaks of trouble on streets below. First-aid posts will be set up on the courthouse lawn and three men have been detailed to film all major crowd activities. War is hell but can sport be this bad?

Merchants' memories of other Grey Cup years have been jogged by a cheery little message arriving in the mail. "Grey Cup Glass Breakage Service" the card reads, with a phone number for "easy reference."

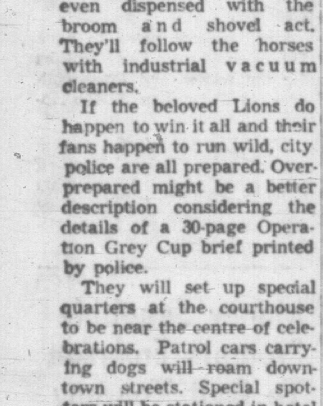

So far there has been no indication that storekeepers will need this service. After 10 years of football and three previous Grey Cups, Vancouver is learning to live with the monster.

CASTRO CASTS DOUBTS

Was Oswald a Scapegoat, Cuban Leader Wonders

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro said Wednesday night the Kennedy assassination was full of strange factors that bespoke an effort by U.S. reactionaries to pin the blame on Cuba.

Castro told his people by radio: "In the eyes of the world it is clear that the reactionaries of the United States wanted to make our country the victim of their criminal designs even at the price of assassinating the president of the United States."

Castro suggested that "the intellectual authors" of the crime sent Lee Harvey Oswald to Mexico to seek a visa to Cuba en route to the Soviet Union.

The Cuban premier shouted: "How strange. Why go to Mexico to request a visa to Russia by way of Cuba? Ideal to make the American people believe the assassin had been an agent of Cuba and the Soviet Union."

A telescopic sight, Castro told his people by radio, is to shoot 300 or 500 yards or more, so "it is strange that someone who was going to make an attack from 80 yards from a window would acquire a gun with a telescopic sight.

"To fire against a moving object with the sight is a hindrance," he said in a broadcast heard here.

Furthermore, Castro said, it is strange that a person would try to attempt such an assassination "from the place where he worked, where within five minutes he would be pursued on all sides."

THE SCOREBOARD
BY Harry Grayson

NEW YORK (NEA)—The people who are supposed to be running organized baseball profess to be sorry about the diminishing minor leagues.

The trouble is that nobody does anything about it.

Two more leagues have recently folded, reducing the number from 59 in 1947 to 16.

People who were acquainted with it were positively shocked when the Class A Pioneer League folded.

"The Pioneer was the most solid in the minors," said Seymour Siwoff, the official baseball statistician.

The Pioneer comprised Boise, Idaho Falls, Twin Falls and Pocatello in Idaho and Great Falls and Billings in Montana.

"We couldn't operate without working agreements with major league clubs," said Claude Engberg, the Salt Lake insurance man who was president of the Pioneer. "They are our source of players."

John H. Johnson, director of the New York Yankee farms, tried to save the Pioneer League, but got nowhere when the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis and Milwaukee went elsewhere. When urged to switch the Yankee operation from Idaho Falls "to help save another league," Johnson flatly refused. At meetings in New York and St. Louis, Johnson told commissioner Ford C. Frick and the people doing more reshuffling of franchises: "The Yankees refuse to have any part in disrupting the present structure of baseball."

Only One to See Beyond End of Nose

This could be the first move toward taking the gypsy out of baseball.

For his stand for the continuance of the Pioneer League, the board of the Billings club voted Johnson "the only man in baseball who can see farther than the end of his nose." This well could be the epitaph for the league.

"This club feels that you were absolutely right in your attempt to have the major league club hold the working agreements they had instead of further diminishing the training system," Maury F. Enright, who was the Billings general manager, wrote Johnson. "It seems so strange that baseball at the major league level continues to give this great game a black eye by killing off more minor league towns each season, resulting in the downgrading of major league baseball year by year.

"It is also rather ironic that the Pioneer League was knocked out at a time when its treasury was the strongest it had been in five years. The Pioneer League increased its attendance by 67,000. We had seven towns ready and able to operate in 1964.

"The league is no doubt going to abide by the suggestion of the National Association that it go into suspension for 1964 with the possibility of revival in 1965, but this is not the history of such action. I know of no league that has been forced to quit which has been successfully revived. The Pioneer may be the exception because in 1965 it will be ready and waiting for the greatest game in the world to come back."

League Didn't Need To Be Rescued

"We won the pennant and playoffs and tripled our attendance in Idaho Falls above the previous year," said Johnny Johnson in the Yankee offices high in the Squibb Building at 745 Fifth Avenue.

"I don't understand why a league like the Pioneer is allowed to fold. It was a fine league run professionally by the best people in excellent parks. The (Los Angeles) Dodgers wanted to stay in Great Falls and the (Philadelphia) Phillies in Twin Falls. The Boise Club, which lost its park, could have been moved to Ogden (Utah).

"With every major league club concerned about player development, you would think that somebody in baseball would take charge and do something constructive like maintaining the Pioneer League. It didn't need to be saved. All it asked was players.

"Baseball is in a bad way when it can't supply an established league with players."

'This Sure Has Been A Big Day for Russ'

Tom Brown Hails Lineman Award As 'Biggest Thrill'

VANCOUVER—Grey Cup week is all about a football game between Hamilton and British Columbia, but Wednesday was all about a quarterback from Ottawa.

"This," agreed the crew-cut mathematics teacher, "sure has been a big day for Russ Jackson."

The 27-year-old field general of the Rough Riders, grinning from ear to ear, talked about the announcement that he has been named 1963's most outstanding player in the Canadian Football League, and top Canadian as well.

It is the first time in the history of the national football awards, sponsored by a distillery, that a Canadian has been selected foremost player and the first time a player has won two of the three categories.

Jackson will receive Canadian savings bonds totalling $3,500 and Brown will get a $1,500 bond.

Jackson, a six-foot one-inch 190 - pounder, defeated B.C.'s quarterback Joe Kapp for most outstanding player and Dale West of Saskatchewan Roughriders as top Canadian.

'I Beat Out Two Fine Players'

"I think I beat out two fine football players," he said Wednesday night at a dinner for the sportswriters and sportscasters who did the voting. "I think they'll both be here in future."

Although he won top Canadian honors four years ago, this season was by far Jackson's best. He took a team picked for last into second place in the Eastern Conference with a hard-won passing ability and some of the most skillful bootleg and rollout performances in the Canadian game.

He faults himself for a 45-0 lambasting suffered by Ottawa against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the East's final series — "the worst I've ever played"—but came back brilliantly against the insurmountable a week later.

On the season he led the conference in pass completions with 152 in 259 attempts, in passing yardage with 2,915, and in touchdown passes with 19.

One of the few Canadians ever to win a starting quarterback job in the CFL in recent years, Jackson started up the ladder at Hamilton's McMaster University. He played his first game at offence in professional football as a rookie in the 1958 semi - finals against Montreal, and won.

Clair Made Up His Mind Slowly

The 1959 season brought him starting assignments with the release of Frank Tripucka. Then for 2½ years he vied with import Ron Lancaster under Frank Clair's famous "dual quarterback" system.

"People still don't believe it," Jackson said Wednesday, "but we wouldn't know which of us would start until after the warmup and five minutes before the game."

Lancaster was dealt to Saskatchewan prior to this season and Jackson has since had the job to himself.

Brown, who defeated two-way tackle Angelo Mosca of Hamilton, said Lions "had some great team efforts this year and that's one of the biggest detriments of success for any one player."

He said the award was a bigger thrill than being chosen a 1960 All-American at Minnesota because "this award was made in professional competition."

The 245 - pound inside linebacker is defensive signal-caller for Lions, a regular Western All-Star, and for two years running the winner of the Becket-Demarco Trophy as outstanding lineman in the West.

McKENNEY OFF SPOT

'Mary' Quiets New York Fans

NEW YORK (CP)—The pressure seems to have abated a little. Don McKenney is temporarily off the spot.

McKenney's days as a New York Ranger appeared to be numbered earlier this year. "Mary" was the nickname given him by the fickle fans in the gallery at Madison Square Garden.

It seems he didn't appear too enthusiastic about checking and, additionally, had lost his touch for scoring goals, the reasons that prompted Boston Bruins to trade him last year.

The fans apparently hoped the 29-year-old centre would exit in the same manner as ousted defenseman Doug Harvey. And it appeared the Ranger brass had similar thoughts.

McKenney, like Harvey, has been assigned to the bench this year. He wasn't given a line, was carried as a spare forward and New York indicated they'd be willing to trade him to Toronto for Dick Duff.

The trade didn't materialize and McKenney tries to do his best when he does get on the ice. Like Wednesday night, for example.

GETS WINNING GOAL

McKenney put the puck past Terry Sawchuk at 12:24 of the final period to give New York a 3-2 victory over Detroit. The win moved the blueshirts into a fourth-place tie with the Red Wings although New York has played two more games.

It was McKenney's fourth goal of the season and made him, for the moment, a hero of the fans.

It extended New York's unbeaten string to four games while increasing Detroit's winless streak on the road to nine games—eight losses and a tie.

Larry Jeffrey put the Wings ahead in the first period but Rod Gilbert tied it up minutes later on the third penalty shot of the season. He lifted a hip-high shot to the right of Sawchuk for the second successful free shot this season.

SELDOM-ENFORCED RULE

Referee Vern Buffey called the penalty shot because Jeffrey had fallen on the puck in the crease, breaking an often-violated but seldom-enforced rule.

The team played a scoreless middle period and Ranger defenceman Don Johns got his first goal of the year at 5:28 of the third. Norm Ullman tied things up for the Wings at 10:46 but McKenney broke it up less than two minutes later.

Goalie Jacques Plante returned to the Ranger nets after missing two games with a shoulder injury and was a standout with 32 saves. Sawchuk stopped 20, including just three in the third.

Cup Paradox— Fewer Patrons Richest Gate

VANCOUVER (CP) — This year's Grey Cup will not attract the largest crowd in the history of the classic—but those who do attend will make it the richest in history.

Harry McBrien, secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union and Grey Cup co-ordinator for the Canadian Football League, gave out the figures today.

There will be 36,465 seats for the game Saturday betwen Hamilton Tiger-Cats and British Columbia Lions for a gross ticket sale of $341,576.50.

Not since 1960, when Ottawa Rough Riders tussled Edmonton Eskimos—also in Vancouver—has the payoff been that high. In 1960 the take was $323,583 and there were 38,768 persons in the stands.

The largest crowd ever to sit in on a Grey Cup game was—again in Vancouver- in 1955 when 39,259 turned up to watch Edmonton whomp Montreal Alouettes and paid $228,051 for the privilege.

The paradox is that while the attendance, in Vancouver at least, has been cut, the ticket price has been rising.

DROPPED TRACK SEATS

It will be a sell-out here Saturday, but since 1959 the league has wiped out certain track seats and declines to charge top prices for behind-the-post seats and other spots of limited vantage.

For the statistically minded, here is the attendance all the way back to the first Grey Cup in Vancouver, with the gross gate receipts in brackets:

1962, 32,655 ($302,489); 1961 32,651 ($302,189); 1960, 38,768 ($323,583.50); 1959, 33,133 ($302,628.50); 1958, 36,567 ($266,933.74) 1957, 27,337 ($215,302.50); 1956, 27,337 ($215,322.50); 1955, 39,259 ($228,051).

The year 1955, the first year the game moved West, was the last year of the $7.50-top ticket. Prices that year ranged $7.50, $6 and $5, with a few $2 standing-room rickets.

The next year the price went to a $10 top, with other seats going for $7.50, $6 and $5.

The price held firm until 1961, when the league made some of the best seats $12 box seats, the scale sliding to $10, $7.50 and $6.

Detroit Lions Shell Out For Widow

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Lions players Wednesday donated $2,000 to the family of a Dallas policeman slain by the accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Lions players voted to have $50 deducted from their salaries for the widow and three children of Patrolman J. D. Tippit.

The Lions fund is the second started by a National Football League club. Philadelphia Eagles announced Tuesday they were donating funds to the policeman's family.

Money Squabble Prompts Emerson To Quit Tourney

MELBOURNE (AP) — Roy Emerson, Australia's tennis champion and leading member of the defending champion Davis Cup team, withdrew from the Victorian championships Wednesday night because of a dispute over expenses.

He had advised the tournament committee he would quit unless he received $40 plane fare and $13 daily expenses for the nine-day event starting Thursday.

The Lawn Tennis Association of Victoria refused to meet Emerson's conditions.

Windsor Product Cats' Top Scorer

HAMILTON (CP) — Halfback Tommy Grant, a 200-pound native of Windsor, Ont., was Hamilton Tiger-Cats' leading scorer in the Eastern Football Conference this year.

He scored seven touchdowns, all on passes, for 42 points, good enough for a sixth-place tie in EFC scoring.

Willie Bethea, an offensive-defensive halfback from Trenton, N.J., who joined the team this year, led the Ticats in rushing with 435 yards in 89 attempts for an average of 4.9 yards. He was seventh in the league.

COMPLETES 143 PASSES

Quarterback Bernie Faloney completed 143 of 273 passes for 2,318 yards gained, second in the league. He passed for 13 touchdowns, second in the league, and had 16 interceptions, most of any quarterback in the EFC.

Halfback Garney Henley led the team and the league in pass interceptions with six, and was second in the league in punt returns with 28 for a total of 295 yards.

Tommy Grant led in kickoff returns with eight for 209 yards —sixth in the league.

Joe Zuger with 86 punts for a total of 3,462 yards led the team in that category. His average punting of 40.3 yards was third in the league.

Bulldogs Clipped By Czech Squad

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (Reuters)—Windsor Bulldogs, opening their tour of Czechoslovakia, were whipped 4-1 today by ZKL of Brno in a hockey exhibition match.

Ceteka news agency reported 12,000 fans watched the match. Real Chevrefils, 31-year-old winger, scored the only goal for the touring Canadian club.

The Bulldogs, who lost six games earlier to teams in Russia, will play twice more in Prague before leaving for East Germany.

Rocket Welcome Says Toe

MONTREAL (CP) — Toe Blake, coach of Montreal Canadiens, was quoted Wednesday in La Presse as saying he would not blame Maurice Richard for wanting to take over as pilot of the National Hockey League club.

Blake was asked to comment on a report in which the Rocket was quoted as saying he would be interested in coaching the Canadiens.

DOESN'T KNOW

Blake said it would be a disservice to he club if he said he planned to retire at the end of the season.

"To speak truthfully, I don't even know myself," he is quoted as saying.

OFFERED JOB?

Richard is quoted as saying Frank Selke, general manager of the Canadiens, had directly spoken to him about succeeding coach Toe Blake by offering a post in the organization.

Richard said Blake would stay as coach as long as the club ended up in first, second or third place and would quit only when things went bad.

"I don't blame him, I would do the same thing," Richard said. "But it would interest me less to take over the club when things are going bad."

Richard was not immediately available for comment.

Grey Cup Field Drying Out Nicely

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Grey Cup football field is "progressing nicely" under tender care, with significant help from the weather.

Sunshine Tuesday and Wednesday and more expected today worked measurable improvement in the gridiron at Empire Stadium, along with a layer of hot sand, blown by oil and propane jets and overlaid with plywood and tarpaulins.

Crews still hope to have the surface dried out for the 1 p.m. PST kickoff Saturday as British Columbia Lions and Hamilton Tiger-Cats meet in the annual classic.

The entire field now is covered, with the sand being kept hot to absorb moisture from the soil.

The weatherman said no rain was expected today, but Friday and Saturday presented "another question."

If the outlook appears good this afternoon, the plan is to clear the field of everything and let nature do the rest of the work. Otherwise, the blowers and tarpaulins will be left down to the last possible minute Saturday, leaving only time to rake up the sand.

The weatherman said a weather front extends acros the north coast of B.C. and is expected to slip gradually southward, bringing cloudy weather "with some rain Friday and Saturday."

Juventus Triumphs

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Juventus of Turin edged River Plate of Buenos Aires 2-1 Wednesday in an exhibition soccer game.

KIWIS TRIUMPH

PONTYPOOL, Wales (Reuters) — The New Zealand All-Blacks rugby team beat Pontypool and Cross Keys 11-0 here Wednesday.

BUCKS BOPPED

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Kamloops Rockets showed their superiority in goalmouth finish when they walloped the Kelowna Buckaroos 9-3 in Okanagan Junior Hockey League action Wednesday night.

JETS SCOOT AHEAD

SPOKANE (CP) — Spokane Jets moved back into sole possession of first place in the Western International Hockey League Wednesday by defeating Trail Smoke Eaters 7-1.

UNION CITY, N.J.—Marcel Bizien, 146, Jersey City, N.J., outpointed Ike Chestnut, 137, New York, 8.

Taylor Colt Sets Record At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (AP) — Northern Dancer, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, won the 50th running of the $28,200 Remsen Handicap in overpowering fashion at Aqueduct race track Wednesday.

The speedy two-year-old son of Nearctic — Natalma, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, set a Remsen record of 1:35 3-5 for the mile in scoring by two lengths over Mac Sweetie Stable's Lord Date. Repeating was third.

The old Remsen mark was 1:36 2-5, shared by Carry Back and Rocky Link.

Northern Dancer returned $2.50, $2.20 and $2.10. Lord Date paid $2.90 and $2.10. Repeating was $2.10 to show.

Big Daddy's Gold Caddy Brings $4,400

BALTIMORE (AP) — The late Big Daddy Lipscomb's proudest posession — his gold Cadillac—was auctioned Wednesday for $4,400.

Lipscomb, former defensive tackle with Baltimore Colts and Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, died May 10 due to an overdose of heroin. His car was bought by a dealer.

Tribe Signs Canuck

CHAMPION SAYS LIONS . . . . . HAVE WORK CUT OUT

Ticats Must Run Over Brown's Body

VANCOUVER (CP)—If British Columbia Lions put the hex on Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday, the chief wizard may be Tom Brown.

The 245 - pound inside linebacker will call B.C.'s defensive signals in the Grey Cup, making him the most important man facing the Ticat attack.

Brown, a shy-smiling building products salesman, Wednesday night was named the top lineman in Canada.

"He has been the bulwark of our defensive unit," says Lion coach Dave Skrien. "Much of our defence is designed around him."

Brown, 26, was a gymnast as well as All-American football player at Minnesota, and Skrien says his agility for a big man is amazing.

Assistant coach Jim Champion says Brown is kept as free as possible, protected from blocking to "keep him where he can go to the ball."

But Champion professed Wednesday that Hamilton linemen have an advantage over the Lions.

"We've got boys in the line who are individually not as good as they are," Champion said.

Stacked against them is a basic four-man B.C. line of tackles Emery Barnes and Mike Cacic, ends Dick Fouts and Mike Martin. Average weight is also 238.

They handle part of the burden and the rest falls—with Brown the exception—on lighter linebackers, including Don Vicic and corner men Paul Seale and Norm Fieldgate. The three average 213 pounds.

By any standard but Hamilton's the Lions have the size they need, says Champion. But he rates Tiger-Cats as the strongest team in Canadian football and vows the Lions coaching staff "never doubted who we would meet in the Grey Cup if we made it."

B.C.'s daily workouts have had to concentrate on all phases of the Hamilton attack because "they have no tendencies," Champion says.

"You've got to stop them across the board. This is the mark of a really good offence."

He believes that in Dave Viti and Hal Patterson, Hamilton has superior power at the offensive end spots.

The Lions have had spotty performances from all their ends except Pat Claridge, who now has a shoulder separation.

Lions take refuge today in a motor hotel and venture out only for practice at Callister Park as well as film and strategy sessions under Empire Stadium.

Canadians' Penalties Open Door for Upset

Form prevailed in the second game of the Greater Victoria Senior Hockey League doubleheader at Memorial Arena when Cougars eased past Dorman's Cavaliers 5-4.

Power-play goals by Jim Middleton and Gordon Wickware sent Suburbans ahead to stay in the third period against Safeways. Harvey Thien popped in the insurance marker. Middleton scored the winner's first goal.

FISHER SHARP

Mercs, scoring their first victory for new coach Eddy Dorohoy, received yeoman support from goalie Bob Fisher. The youthful stopper made 24 stops compared to 14 by rival Spence Simmons, and was at his best in the first two periods as Canadians enjoyed a large edge in play.

The youthful Cougars had to come on strong in the final period to snatch victory from Cavaliers. Don Wilson's second goal at 16:09 proved to be the winner. Paul Bion, with two goals, and Hugh Sherwood rounded out Cougars' scoring.

Cavaliers got goals from Larry Brooks, Earl Robinson, George Fisher and George Sears.

Cougars played without defenceman Larry Biggs. The junior, who suffered a mild concussion in a Pacific Coast Junior League game Tuesday night, was released from hospital earlier Wednesday.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

When you're coming in on a goalie from a bad angle the only possibility you have is to hope he makes just a little move and the puck will go between his pads into the net.

Glen Hall of Chicago will squat and spread his legs to block the net. That gives you a little time to try to shoot between his pads. But if you're that accurate, you can hit the corner, too.

A lot of times—many players won't admit it—when you're walking in and you're aiming for that right side, something happens. You let it go and you're about six feet off target.

It goes in the other side of the net and looks like a great shot. But this is just a booboo and you're not going to tell anyone.

★ ★ ★

Many youngsters concentrate on lifting a shot. The higher they get it, they feel the better it is.

Actually it is harder for a goalie to stop a shot along the ice than up higher.

Just study the goaltender some day in a warmup, especially the youngsters. You'll find when a fellow winds up to shoot, the goalie's hands automatically come up a little and the stick comes off the ice three to four inches.

This is a reaction that's quite normal. So when you shoot low, your chances are better. If the goaltender is moving at all, whatever way he's moving he's vulnerable on the other side because the stick and pads are off the ice and you've got a good chance of sliding it through.

I understand Jack Nicklaus the golfer used to practice and play as much as eight and 10 hours a day as a youngster. I used to practice shooting pucks by the hour in the summer time. I'd tee the puck up on a board. I wore more than six feet of shingles off the side of our house in Saskatoon, Sask.

$750,000 ALLOTED

Fitness Council Will Study Us

TORONTO (CP)—The National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sports has decided to pursue a closer liaison with provincial groups and also undertake a five-year study to determine the nation's degree of fitness.

The council hopes to take the first step towards these objectives with a federal-provincial conference in Ottawa early in January.

An allocation of $750,000 has been granted for the fitness study. Three research units will be established, in Montreal, Toronto and Edmonton.

Roger Dion, acting director of the group, said in a telephone interview with the Globe and Mail Wednesday the council met in Ottawa for "an appraisal session last week."

REACH CONCLUSIONS

He said some of the conclusions reached were:

—International athletic competitions are well provided for.

—The council's efforts have been rewarding despite austerity in finances, a cutback from the original $5,000,000 annually to $1,000,000.

The council also decided it should have:

—A closer association with provincial sports bodies, including 40 branches of national sports groups, individual government recreation authorities.

—A research program to determine fitness needs and methods of improvement.

—An improved information service to tell the council story to the public.

HELP AMATEUR SPORTS

The council, administered by the federal health department, was established in March, 1962, to improve the physical fitness of the average person and provide financial assistance to amateur sports.

Major interest of the council at the moment is the extension of relations with national bodies to the provincial groups which direct individual sports and the recreation branches of the provincial governments.

Dion said the research units—to be administered by the universities of Montreal, Toronto and Alberta—will be made up of five or six persons. Each unit will be financed at $50,000 a year for five years.

"At the moment, some scientists in Europe and Canada are being interviewed with a view to heading the units," he said. "Their job will be to conduct research into the degree of vitality and physical fitness which we possess. And they will try to find ways to improve it.

"We will build a program based on their recommendations."

He said the work will be conducted by a specific team of researchers and it is most likely that each team will be headed by a medical doctor—a specialist in physiology and exercise.

TO BAG RECORD BEAR YOU WALK UP AND . . .

DANBURY, Wis. (AP)—A 635-pound bear, shot on a deer hunt by a 16-year-old school girl who admitted she was scared to death, may be the biggest ever bagged in Wisconsin, conservation authorities said Tuesday.

"I walked right up on him," said Linda Lunsman, a high school junior. "He was half in his den and half out. He was looking right at me. I got scared. I backed up a little ways. Then I shot him."

The bear weighed 635 pounds—some 25 pounds more than the unofficial state record—and measured seven feet, ¾ inch from end of the nose to the tip of the tail.

Shooting Laws Eased To Chase Ducks South

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government has modified its hunting regulations in an attempt to save ducks and geese from freezing or starving to death.

Norman Willmore, minister of lands and forests, has announced that restrictions on shooting game birds within 100 yards of the shores of rivers have been rescinded until the end of the hunting season Dec. 14.

The order is aimed at encouraging hunters to prompt laggard ducks and geese to continue southward migrations.

The association said ducks are fed in the Calgary area during cold weather, protected from hunters and have open water and so don't migrate. They get caught by cold weather and starve and freeze to death.

I'm Good Listener Says Imlach

TORONTO (UPI)—Rumors that Toronto Maple Leafs might pick up deposed New York Ranger defenseman Doug Harvey brought cool to lukewarm response from team officials Wednesday.

Club president Stafford Smythe indicated the team was not interested in acquiring the services of the former Montreal Canadiens' star.

"Our defense doesn't need Harvey, it's good enough," Smythe said. The Maple Leafs currently hold down second place in the National Hockey League one point ahead of the Canadiens, nine behind Chicago Black Hawks.

GOOD LISTENER

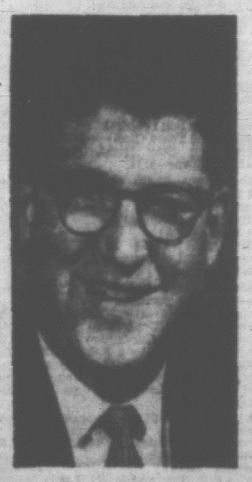

"I'm always willing to listen to and talk hockey with anyone . . . so if Harvey drops around to my office I'll be glad to see him and he'll find I'm a good listener," said Imlach.

Some sports observers felt that the Toronto coach, with the reputation for reviving old hockey players, might see in Harvey his greatest challenge.

Among the players Imlach acquired after teams felt they had outlived their usefulness were Red Kelly, Allen Stanley, Eddie Litzenberger and goalie Johnny Bower, all of whom are still with the team.

The 38-year-old Harvey has yet to indicate his future plans, and it was thought possible he may decide to retire from the game.

Everybody's Getting Fat On Talent-Thin Canucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks are gradually sinking into oblivion in Western Hockey League standings as other teams use them as a stepping stone on their way up.

The Canucks were defeated 3-1 Wednesday by Seattle Totems who moved into a second place tie with Denver Invaders with 21 points, two behind the league - leading Los Angeles Blades.

San Francisco Seals have 20 points, Portland Buckaroos 15 and Vancouver 14.

Seattle opened scoring when Bob Sabourin shot the puck past goalie Marcel Paille in only :30 seconds of play. Bob Barlow scored 11 minutes later while Vancouver was short two men.

Phil Maloney received an assist on McCallum's goal to keep him in the lead in the individual scoring race with 33 points, two ahead of runner-up Guyle Fielder. Maloney hotly contested a penalty to teammate Buddy Boone and was assessed a 10-minute misconduct.

Soccer Loses to Fog

LONDON (Reuters)—A scheduled clash between English soccer giants Tottenham Hotspur and Manchester United in the European Cup-Winners Cup was postponed Wednesday night because of fog.

A capacity crowd of about 60,000 at the game was told admission tickets would be honored on another night next week. The referee called off the game shortly before the scheduled kickoff.

In other action in European Cup-Winners play, the defending champions Milan were held to a 1-1 tie by Swedish champions Norrkoeping.

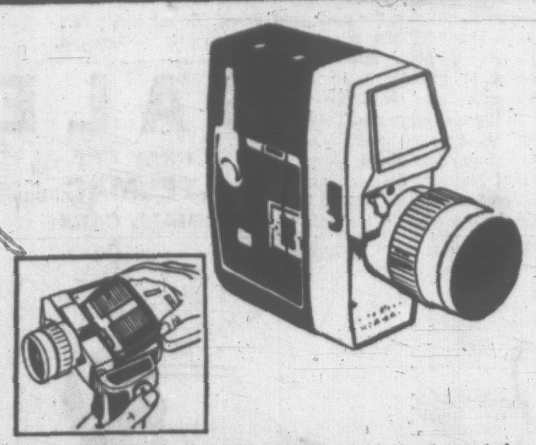

But Milan should grab a place in the quarter-finals of this year's competition by winning the return leg of the round on their home ground.

Another Italian entry, Inter-Milan, faced the prospect of elimination after beating Monaco 1-0 Wednesday night.

Inter-Milan faces a stiff task to hang onto their lead when the two teams clash in Monaco.

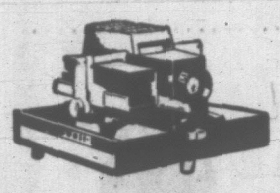

Two teams Wednesday night clinched berths in the quarter-final round. P.S.V. Eindoven of Holland tied 0-0 with Spartak Plovidiv of Bulgaria to win the round 1-0, and Partizan of Yugoslavia defeated Jeunesse d'Esche of Luxembourg 6-2 to take their series 7-4.

In a fifth first round match, Galatasaray of Turkey beat Zurich of Switzerland 2-0 in Istanbul. This put the two teams even on aggregate 2-2, and they must now play off to decide who will advance to the next round.

Katsumata Prevails

Katsumata weighed 130 to 128½ for Abulencia.

20 MINUTES UNDERWATER, MAN SAVED

FREMONT, Calif. (AP)—A California highway patrol officer saved a motorist who was trapped in his submerged sports car in San Francisco Bay for 20 minutes early today.

Officer Ben Hudgens arrived at the Dumbarton Bridge just outside Fremont to find a crowd gathered. Witnesses told him a car had gone off the road, flipped over and landed upside-down in the bay. They told him the driver was still in the car.

Hudgens stripped down, leaped into the water and swam to the car. He dived and pulled out the driver, Carl Edward Cobb, 23, of Palo Alto.

ROSE SWEET FRESHMAN

Unheralded Red NL's Top Rookie

BOSTON (AP) — Pete Rose, hustling Cincinnati second baseman who was not even on the Reds' spring roster, has been named National League's Rookie-of-the-Year for the 1963 season.

The 22-year-old native of Dayton, Ohio, nicknamed Charlie Hustle because of his aggressiveness, received 17 votes from the panel of 20 sports writers.

HUNT RUNNERUP

Ron Hunt, New York Mets' second baseman, was named on two ballots and Ray Culp, Philadelphia Phillies' pitcher, got the other vote.

The sturdily-built infielder had 170 hits, including 26 doubles, nine triples and six home runs. He scored 101 runs, drove in 41 and stole 13 bases.

Rose was among the top fielding second basemen in the league with a .971 percentage.

City Jail Belongs in 1860s

It's easy to find out what prisons were like 100 years ago—if you live in Victoria.

It's dimly lighted. Prisoners use a communal toilet in full view of the other inmates. It doesn't even have a seat.

The city proposes to renovate the building at a total cost of $375,000. Ratepayers will be asked to approve the money bylaw in a vote Dec. 12.

The cost to the average taxpayer will be about $1.50 per year, according to city officials. They wouldn't begrudge the money if they saw the existing conditions.

In the lunch room policemen had to stop eating and clear out because the place was needed for an inspection. The lunch room is a good place for inspections, too.

It looks like a barracks. The floor is concrete. Cases of pop are piled on the floor. The lunch table is broken and sags in the middle.

In the charge office a woman was standing at a grill saying goodbye to her husband who is going to Oakalla. She tried to whisper to him but a man was standing beside her. He had come in looking for an accident report form.

Only Place for Consultations

The charge office is also the place where lawyers talk to prisoners. Sometimes they do this while a drunk stands tottering beside them, waiting to be booked into the jail.

There is a shower in the police washroom but Chief Gregory said none of his men want to use it. It's easy to see why.

There is no light in it. The floor is cracked concrete. Because there is no ventilation, the windows have to be kept open in the washroom and the place was freezing.

There are two cubicles in this room where policemen can take a bath. But they have to enter the cubicles sideways because the baths keep the doors from opening fully.

In the basement revolver range you have to duck beneath the low beams to enter. Two of the four targets are broken. Chairs are stored inside the range, below the line of fire, because there is no other place to keep them.

Next door, in the furnace room, the janitor washes his hands in a bucket because there is no running water.

Upstairs, the rooms are so cluttered that policemen have no place to keep exhibits and they have to store these in their lockers. When the men come on duty they walk up to the fourth floor for their equipment and then come down again.

Fingerprint Section In Alcove

To get to the detective office you have to leave the main building and go out on the street. The fingerprint section is located in an alcove, off a corridor, into which is jammed the fingerprint equipment, a washbasin, scales, a home-made cabinet built by a detective, and a cardboard carton for garbage.

There is room for only one person in the photographic processing room used by detectives. Prisoners are taken from the detective's quarters by the photographer, without escort, down some steps adjacent to the street, and up other steps into the photographic room.

In this environment of dilapidation, makeshift offices, inadequate storage space and lack of ordinary facilities, the morale of the policemen suffers, says Chief Gregory.

"Let's face it. The place is archaic," he says.

George Archer, in his celebrated report on the police earlier this year, said, "Dickens never dreamed of anything like this."

But it can all be changed if ratepayers agree to pay $1.50 a year when they go to the polls next month.

. . . TAX-SHARING

review of increasing costs of provincial programs, nothing could be done this week.

2. Meanwhile, the federal government believes firmly in equalization, necessary so all provinces can take care of their constitutional responsibilities — or more simply, so the provinces can expect an approximately equal amount of revenues, on the basis of their populations. And Ottawa thinks there is a need for "more genuine" equalization.

3. Reiterating its earlier position, the federal government indicated its readiness to withdraw from certain "mature" cost-sharing programs — which ones, it is not yet clear. To make up for loss of the federal share, the provinces would get an equivalent additional share of the income tax field. This issue also likely will be renewed Friday.

Until Friday, the big question is this: What formula will Ottawa propose for its "more genuine" equalization?

Financially, equalization accounts for a relatively small portion of the total fiscal arrangements — about $150,000,000 this year. The main federal tax abatements on personal and corporation income tax and death duties, amount to more than $750,000,000.

But great importance is attached to the equalization system. One federal official went as far Wednesday as to say that equalization "is what Confederation is all about."

The effect of it is that part of the federal tax paid by a person in a "have"—or wealthy—province—is funnelled by Ottawa into the "have-not" provinces, to help finance their public services such as education, road-building, welfare and so on. Without it, some provinces would be far behind the rest of Canada in social progress.

At present, a province is given an equalization payment when it falls below the national average in its per-capita yield from the standard taxes—the income taxes and death duties—and half its resource-tax revenue.

As it works out this year, the national average per - capita yield of the provinces is about $50. Alberta's yield is far above that at around $86 per capita—a reflection of its big oil revenues. British Columbia and Ontario also are above, at $64 and $58, respectively.

The other provinces all get equalization payments designed to bring them up to that national average of $50. The payments range from $69,000,000 to Quebec to about $3,100,000 for Prince Edward Island. In addition, Alberta gets so - called "guaranteed equalization" to keep its total federal income up to the level of the pre-1962 tax-rental deal.

Prime Minister Pearson told the conference the federal government is prepared to pay equalization to the level of the single wealthiest province — if that is what the provinces want. And at least three provinces, Manitoba, Quebec and Saskatchewan, want just that.

But how will the "wealthiest" province be singled out?

If it is on the basis of only the standard tax yields, Ontario would be the wealthiest. But if resources are to be counted in as at present, Alberta would be the highest, followed by B.C.—and for the first time in history, Ontario could be getting payments designed for "have-not" areas.

In any event, the other seven provinces, at least, are assured of more money. The amount will depend on the way the formula is devised. Federal officials would not hazard a guess at the amount, until Ottawa's precise formula is made known.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba and Premier Lloyd of Saskatchewan said their provinces are bound to profit by Ottawa's move, but were not ready to start counting the dollars until they get the details.

Premier Manning of Alberta, said Ottawa's offer is a hopeful step but gets nowhere near the root of Canada's chief economic problem.

"We have no agreement yet," said British Columbia's Premier Bennett. He has advocated that the equalization system be scrapped entirely. He told a reporter Wednesday night he is not yet ready to concede that continuation of equalization in some form now is a foregone conclusion.

. . . BENNETT

government's method of making public word of its equalization proposal.

He said details were given the press — "by some bumbling briefer" — which had not been mentioned in the conference. His initial reaction of Wednesday night was tempered today, however, when Mr. Bonner said he was not criticizing the proposal itself, but the method in which the information was released.

"What's the use of having conferences with this kind of thing happening?" he fumed Wednesday night. When told by the press of the federal offer, Mr. Bonner said the information given him by the press barely resembled what the conference was told.

(In his opening statement to the conference, however, Prime Minister Pearson specifically stated that a change in equalization was proposed, possibly based on the income of the wealthiest province, Ontario. If such a scheme is carried out, B.C. might receive an equalization payment.)

step-by-step investigation into the tragedy that shocked the world. The officers continued to sift through the evidence today.

Employing the same kind of cheap Italian - made bolt-action rifle used in the Dallas shooting, the experts simulated conditions by aiming the gun from an upper-storey window into a courtyard at police headquarters.

Parker said Wednesday that an officer demonstrated by aiming a 6.5-millimetre rifle accurately, pulling the trigger three times and slamming the bolt into place twice within 3½ seconds.

"It was only necessary to use the bolt twice," added Parker. "It was already set for action before the first shot was fired."

In Paris, the newspaper Paris Jour and in Milan, the newspaper Corriere Lombardo said the Carcano rifle, known in the Italian army during the Second World War as the "38 model," could not fire three bullets as rapidly as Dallas reports indicated. They hinted another person might have been involved.

. . . JOHNSON

NO PROPOSALS DIE

The indications are Congress may wind up this virtually unproductive session sometime in mid - December, returning in January for the last session before the presidential elections next November. Virtually no major Kennedy proposal was passed this year. At the most, only a watered-down civil rights bill appears possible for 1964, far less than Kennedy had requested.

Sensing this shift towards conservatism in Congress, a group of so-called Democratic "liberals" including Democratic Congressman Richard Bolling of Missouri have indicated they will revolt against long-established seniority rights by opposing members of their party who hold legislative positions and block progressive action. But this revolt is likely to be aborted by the political realities of the U.S.

At a recent seminar at the University of Pittsburgh, a group of university men informed foreign correspondents they see a rising tide of conservatism spreading across the U.S., effectively paralysing liberal-type proposals within Congress.

Though Johnson has endorsed all the key programs of the late president, he is a political realist who is unlikely to move against the prevailing political sentiment.

He has appealed to Congress for help in charting the ship of state. He has bravely called for a civil rights bill as a memorial to Kennedy. But he also acknowledged the power of Congress.

He had been a legislator for 32 years and "as one who has long served in both houses of the Congress, I firmly believe in the independence and integrity of the legislative branch."

"I promise you that I shall always respect this," he told the applauding members.

Ships Collide, Probe Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two freighters, crippled in a collision in Vancouver harbor Wednesday night, were taken to drydock today for repairs to serious hull damage.

It had been feared that the 10,000-ton freighter Irish Rowan would sink and preparations were made to ground her until she could be towed to drydock.

But investigation of the damage showed she could stay afloat and both she and the 7,000-ton Greek freighter Evie anchored in the harbor till daybreak.

None of the crew members aboard either was injured.

The Dublin-owned Irish Rowan was outbound for Japan with a load of grain when it collided with the Evie, inbound from New Westminster with a partial load of lumber. Evie loaded at Victoria last week. The collision occurred near Brockton Point, just east of the Lions Gate Bridge.

Both ships had pilots on board when they struck and the weather was clear with good visibility.

Tons of grain poured out of the gash in the Irish Rowan and inrushing water threatened to swell her cargo until crew members secured a collision mat over a five-foot hole beneath the waterline.

Harbor master Capt. William Dobie boarded the Irish Rowan soon after the crash and ordered that if the water could not be stopped the vessel would be beached on the North Vancouver waterfront.

Murdoch Takes Pride In Council

"This is going to be my swan song," said the reeve, who is retiring from municipal office after serving Oak Bay ratepayers for 18 years, 13 as councillor and five as reeve.

"It is time now I sat down and let someone else take office," he said.

The 70-year-old reeve took pride in the sound administration which has been the policy of Oak Bay council for many years.

He said Oak Bay was one of the first municipalities to institute zoning bylaws in 1927 and in many cases it would be unfair to change them now. Some men bought property as an insurance for their old age with the understanding that the bylaws would remain in effect. This was just one of many considerations which he said must be made when zoning bylaws are approached.

He also paid a tribute to all civic officials he has worked with during his 18 years in office including mayors, reeves, councillors and municipal hall employees.

Chinese Won't Pay Homage

WARSAW (Reuters) — A 30-strong Communist Chinese delegation at the World Peace Council meeting here today refused to join in a standing homage to President John F. Kennedy and twice raised angry protests against the gesture.

The Chinese delegation remained seated as the rest of the Communist-backed body rose to their feet in a gesture of mourning for the assassinated western leader.

Tang Ming Choa, a leading member of the Chinese Communist delegation, twice strode to the rostrum to argue fiercely with Polish Chairman Ostap Dluski against a moment's silence in memory of the late president.

Tang declared in English: "Instead of paying tribute to the U.S. president we should pay tribute to all men and women who heroically fought for peace against United States aggression, and against racial discrimination."

LIONS MAKE TICKET PLEA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herb Capozzi, general manager of B.C. Lions, asked his counterparts on other Canadian Football League teams today to turn over to the Lions all non-claimed tickets to Saturday's Grey Cup game.

Capozzi said the appeal was made to meet an unprecedented demand for tickets for the Lions-Hamilton Tiger-Cat game. He expected about 1,000 will become available.

HEROISM OF SECRET SERVICEMEN REVEALED

'Any Agent Would Have Done Same Thing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The moment a U.S. secret service agent trains for came last Friday on a bright afternoon in Dallas to Rufus W. Youngblood.

An agent for 13 years, Youngblood was riding with vice-president Lyndon B. Johnson, two cars behind the presidential car, when he heard the shots that mortally wounded President Kennedy and seriously wounded governor John Connally of Texas.

Even though he could not be positive that the reports were shots, Youngblood, from his position next to the driver, turned and pulled Johnson to the floor, shouted "get down," and then half - sat and half-sprawled on top of him.

"It could have been a firecracker, a bomb or a shot," the 39-year-old agent said in an interview. I recognized it as an abnormal sound and realized some action had to be taken. I saw quick, unnatural movements in the president's car."

ALL CROUCH LOW

Youngblood said Mrs. Johnson and Senator Ralph Yarborough (Dem.-Tex.), who were riding in the rear seat with the man who became president not many minutes later, also responded to commands and got down below window level.

Youngblood kept the three down during the five - minute drive to Parkland Hospital, where Kennedy and Connally were taken. The next day, Johnson wrote a letter to secret service chief James J. Rowley, suggesting that Youngblood's action "deserves the highest commendation your service can offer for his tremendously courageous action."

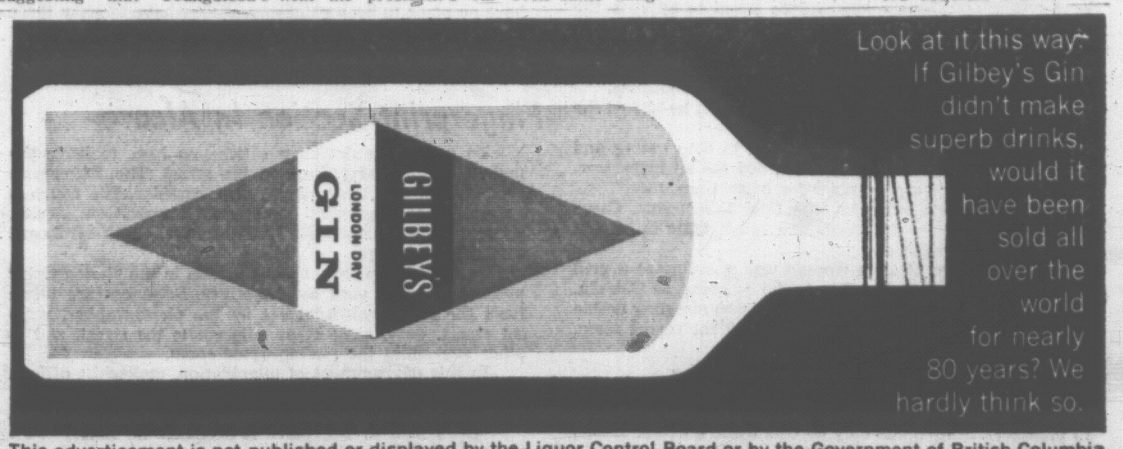

Secret service agents say an act of equal heroism was performed by Clint Hill, an agent who was in the convertible following the presidential limousine.

Hill leaped out, caught up with the president's car even though it was travelling at 12 miles an hour and, with an assist from Mrs. Kennedy, clambered onto the trunk and covered the wounded president and Mrs. Kennedy.

Youngblood, now assigned to the detail of guarding President Johnson, said of his and Hill's actions: "Any agent in the service would have done the same thing."

Youngblood is a war veteran, a native of Macon, Ga., and a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology.

Fire Protection Issue Among Esquimalt Candidates

Esquimalt urgently needs a proper fire department, open council meetings, a new Gorge bridge and no amalgamation, in that order, almost 200 persons were told at a campaign meeting in Jubilee Hall Wednesday night.

Only five of the eight candidates in the Dec. 5 election came out to face the voters, about equally divided by their applause between the present administration and its critics. Reeve A. C. Wurtele, G. T. Horne and George Argyle skipped the meeting.

Chairman Eric Charman said all candidates had been invited to the meeting sponsored by Esquimalt Voters' Association.

Reeveship candidate Coun. Bert Nelson said some of the new candidates in the election had come forward in order to fight the machine — what Reeve Wurtele likes to call his team."

He said independence among some of the present councillors "is conspicuous by its absence."

Coun. Nelson said when he finally broke into the tightly-knit "team" two years ago, one of the first pieces of advice he was given "was that the municipality could be run better by not letting the news media know too much."

"It might be that they thought that the minimum of publicity would ensure a minimum of opposition and more opportunity of acclamation. But I do not think anyone has an inherent right to the position of reeve."

Written Agreement

Coun. Nelson said every effort should be made to pin down the department of national defence to a written agreement providing Esquimalt with fire protection or else the municipality should develop its own department "because you can't place a dollar value on life."

Arthur Mabs, who described himself as an independent candidate, praised the present administration and said "every one is terribly pleased with conditions in Esquimalt."

However, he said the present informal fire protection service by the navy is showing signs of cracking up and the municipality's double-duty police and fire department could not give adequate protection.

Firehall Needed

"It's obvious Mr. Bonner (the attorney-general is going to create an intermunicipal police force in Greater Victoria and then what happens to our fire protection?" he said.

He said the first requirement is to build a firehall, which probably would cost $75,000 to $100,000. In addition, it would cost almost $50,000 to provide two-man duty shifts around the clock supplemented by volunteer firemen.

Coun. Ernest Cassels said Esquimalt's election campaign "is in the limelight, not only in the Greater Victoria area, not only on this Island but in the whole of B.C. because there are some basic principles of freedom at stake.

Public Outcry

He referred to a controversial rezoning application for some valuable municipal land last spring which was stopped by public outcry.

Coun. Cassels said Reeve Wurtele at the time denied there was any agreement to sell the land yet later it was discovered a signed agreement existed and money had been paid over.

"You are going to hear more of this shabby irregular land deal," he said.

"Remember, it was your land he was dealing with, not his own. Why was he so intent on hiding the facts, the truth? Was he frightened of his own conscience or of your censure?"

Price Fraction

Coun. Cassels said the sale price was a fraction of true value and the land was not advertised for sale as required by the law but the deal was stopped by an outcry before it could devalue surrounding properties.

"This could never have occurred if the deal had not been cooked up in secrecy and cloaked in evasions," said Coun. Cassels. "It could never have occurred if the people had had access to the facts."

C. F. Fraser said the municipality should get on with the job of building a two-lane bridge over the Gorge immediately and he reiterated his warnings that a full-fledged fire department was needed.

'Not on Luxuries'

"Let us not spend all our municipal money on luxuries and then wake up some day to find we can't rely any longer on the navy fire department," he warned.

"If that happens we will have to beg the city for amalgamation on its terms in order to get some kind of fire protection."

R. C. Atkinson lashed at closed council sessions and said he would work for a more balanced recreation program that served both old and young alike.

He also said consideration should be given to feasibility of providing some kind of partial tax rebate to all "old-timers of Esquimalt, residents who have lived here 25 years or more."

Horsemen's Conference Dec. 12-13

Grant MacEwan, mayor of Calgary and former dean of agriculture at the University of Manitoba, will be guest speaker at the second British Columbia Horsemen's conference at the University of British Columbia Dec. 12-13.

The conference, which will be opened by Dean B. A. Eagles, UBC faculty of agriculture, is sponsored by the UBC extension department in co-operation with the B.C. Thoroughbred Breeders Society; Arabian Horse Association of B.C. and Morgan Horse Association.

Sessions, commencing at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 12, will be held in the new Frederic Wood Theatre.

SEVERAL TOPICS

Mineral nutrition, fundamentals of genetics, pasture management, treatment for parasites and applied aspects of breeding will be among the topics featured on the program.

Speakers will include Dr. J. C. Berry and Dr. W. D. Kitts, both of the division of animal science, UBC faculty of agriculture; Dr. W. B. Dakin, veterinarian, Sherman Oaks, California; G. G. Dudley, executive secretary, B.C. Thoroughbred Breeders Society; and Dr. E. H. Gardner, department of soil science, UBC faculty of agriculture.

Detailed information may be obtained from G. A. Drew, supervisor of agricultural services, extension department, University of British Columbia.

Truck, Bus Collide

GILBERT PLAINS, Man. (CP)—A truck and a bus collided in post-midnight darkness near here today killing one man and injuring nine others, two seriously.

$56,000 HOSPITAL WING OPENED

Saanich Councillor Joseph Casey snipped the ribbon Wednesday to open officially the new $56,000 wing of the Royal Oak Private Hospital.

Intended to be the nucleus of what will eventually be a 75-bed hospital, the 16-bed wing was filled the day it was ready for occupancy several months ago.

Coun. Casey said the hospital — Saanich-owned, and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Emery—is "a pet project of mine," but added that credit for the new wing goes to the entire Saanich council.

Mrs. Casey was presented with a bouquet by William Thomas Wain, 93, now a patient at the hospital, born at Deep Cove in 1870.

"I've been here a year, and I call it home now," he told her.

The new wing was dedicated by Canon Jack Rogers, of St. Michael and All Angels Church on the West Saanich Road.

Roy Wootten, chairman of the Saanich Municipal Employees' Benevolent Association, gave Mrs. Emery a folding wheelchair on behalf of the employees.

VICTORIA AND DUNCAN students will hear addresses on driving safety next week by Bob Veith, Indianapolis driver and member of Champion Highway Safety Program. He is seen above in car in which he started 500-mile Memorial Day race at Indianapolis this year, but which was forced out because of mechanical failure. Program is sponsored by Champion Spark Plug Co., and visit to Island has been arranged by Victoria Daily Times. He will be at Cowichan High School Dec. 6.

$2 Million Bylaw Set for Schools

ALBERNI—School trustee R. D. White asked for support of the $2,000,000 school building program for District 70 when she spoke at Alberni's stewardship meeting this week.

Taxpayers will vote on the referendum Dec. 5.

He said the need for extra classrooms could be seen when it was realized that 603 babies were born in the West Coast Hospital in the first 10 months of this year.

Mr. White explained that the program would be shared by the department of education, leaving only half of the total to be shared in this ratio: Port Alberni, 69 per cent; Alberni 7 per cent and rural areas 24 per cent.

COMPANY PAYS

Twenty-three per cent of tax revenue is derived from residential assessments, he said, but 49 per cent is paid by MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. on industrial assessments.

The proposed building program would include a 16-room junior secondary school in southeast Port Alberni, improvements to both A. W. Neill School and Alberni District Secondary School, addition of a number of classrooms and activity rooms at existing elementary schools, as well as a new six-room school in Beaver Creek.

Yule Concert Arranged

DUNCAN—Dr. Heinz Kilian will conduct the Christmas concert of Duncan Choral Society to be held Dec. 16 at Duncan United Church.

Highlight of the evening will be the Coronation Mass by Mozart, and other concert features including Christmas songs from different lands.

Members of the Lake Cowichan Ladies' Choir will join with the local society choir for the concert. Nanaimo Symphony Orchestra also will participate.

Business Bureau Men on Program

DUNCAN — Four representatives of the Better Business Bureau of Vancouver Island will be guest speakers at the next general meeting of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce, December 5, at the Commercial Hotel at 8 p.m.

The speakers will be E. M. Sinclair, president: W. D. Tindall, general manager; Ross Douglas, the firm's field representative! and S. P. Jones.

Ferry Bid Cleared

CORTES ISLAND — Ratepayers of Cortes Island issued a statement today to clarify their position regarding a ferry service to serve the Island.

"We have only one objective at this time, to have a car-ferry installed by the B.C. government to operate between Quadra and Cortes Islands", the statement said.

The executive was apparently quoted as being in favor of a ferry service to Lund on the mainland, rather than Quadra Island.

Sponsor Contest

A number of extra prizes and increased categories will be open for competition this year.

Jaycee President Bob Koch said, however the prizes themselves were secondary.

"The contest is designed primarily to spread the spirit of Christmas and goodwill throughout the whole district".

Curling Club Given $1,500

CAMPBELL RIVER — Elk Falls Co. Ltd., division of Crown Zellerbach, has made a donation of $1,500 to the Campbell River and District Winter Club.

The company has also announced that it will make a second donation of $1,500 to the club providing it is income tax deductible.

Winter Club president George Crosland said he had discussed the matter with the club accountant and was certain the donation was fully deductible for income tax purposes.

The two donations, he said, have given the winter club "a big shot in the arm."

Work on the new curling rink is moving ahead rapidly. The roof is on and the viewing area framed. The ice machine has arrived and will be installed in the next two weeks.

Curling is expected to start in January.

Sun Shines Once Again For Pioneers

NANAIMO — Pioneer Rock near the Bastion has been visited every Nov. 27 at 11 a.m. for 64 consecutive years by at least one member of the pioneer Gough family. The annual visit is made to commemorate the landing of the families who came to Vancouver Island on the barque Princess Royal in 1854.

Among those attending the ceremony Wednesday were Hiram Gough, his son, Sam, his grandson, Ted, and his great-granddaughter, Dawn.

Others were Mrs. W. McGirr, John Green, Mrs. H. Parsons, William Barraclough, Arthur Martin, seventh generation of the Sage family, Alan Burdock, R. J. Whalley, president of the Nanaimo branch of the B.C. Historical Society, Mrs. Pearl Turley, representing the Barker family and Mrs Williams.

Trustees To Ponder Cinder Track

Whether to buy more land or rearrange playing fields for a new cinder track at Oak Bay junior and senior secondary schools will be considered by Greater Victoria School Board building and grounds committee next month.

School trustees have yet to decide whether to accept offers totalling $13,200 in order to initiate the track.

Early estimates say the sum is too small to do more than start the project, for which Victoria Gyro Club wants to put up $5,000. Proceeds of school fairs would provide the balance.

Teachers and principals of the two schools agree that a track should be built near where the two school grounds meet, and that total playing area would be shared equally.

Big Contract Let For Taxi Strip

COMOX—A $1,600,000 contract for a taxi strip at Comox airport has been let to Beaver Construction of Vancouver.

Construction is expected to start immediately and will require 10 months to complete.

No estimate of the number of men to be employed is available as yet, but arrangements are being made to have all the hiring done through the Courtney national employment office.

The runway contract calls for resurfacing of runways, some of which were built during the Second World War, and for construction of new extensions to the aircraft taxi strips.

An official at the RCAF station said that they will embark on an immediate promotion campaign to have service personnel support the do-it-now winter works campaign in their own homes.

Unemployment figures for the area revealed a 15 per cent drop from the same period last year.

CBC Admits Television Interference

CUMBERLAND — Source of interference in TV reception in the area has been traced to the CBC outlet on Jap Mountain.

Complaints of interference were made by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce and the CBC has admitted that its Channel 9 outlet has been interfering with reception of other channels.

Ken Caple, regional director of the CBC said spurious radiation created by the repeater transmitter had been affecting reception by a few people. Traps had been added and a Department of Transport survey found the radiation was well below the department's accepted standards.

He regretted it was not practical to reduce interference any lower.

The matter will remain under consideration by the chamber and further action is expected at the next meeting.

Jaycees Meeting

CAMPBELL RIVER—Campbell River Jaycees will play host to Junior Chambers of Commerce from Vancouver Island and Powell River for the annual winter district meeting to be held in January.

More than 80 Jaycees and their wives are expected to attend.

It is several years since Campbell River hosted such an event and local members have promised to make it a memorable occasion.

Victorian Sentenced

DUNCAN — William Kenneth Astrope, 25, of Victoria, was sentenced to two years less a day at Oakalla Prison Farm when he appeared before Magistrate D. K. McAdam Wednesday.

Accused was convicted of breaking and entering Stenmark's Jewellers at Duncan about two months ago.

Astrope was represented by local lawyer Thomas J. Lines, and Crown prosecutor was David Williams, of Duncan. The court was informed that accused had several previous convictions.

Wharf Pledged

DUNCAN (CP) — Indian agent Ron Sampson said Wednesday the federal government has approved construction of a ferry slip for foot passengers at Kuper Island.

Mr. Sampson said construction of the slip, which will permit B.C. Government Ferry Service to Kuper Island from Chemainus, will begin Jan. 15.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1963—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

On my desk today is an advertising page torn from an American hunting and fishing magazine. It gives prices, specifications and pictures of 17 rifles, shotguns and derringers. For a number of these, ammunition is also listed.

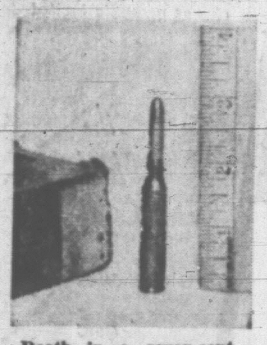

A gun buff, a boy, or even a man plotting murder can spend an hour over that graphic page. Few of the firearms are high-priced, and one is cheap even for an outmoded military arm.

'Only 36" overall, weighs only 5½ lbs. Shows only slight use, lightly oiled and head spaced, ready for shooting. Turned down bolt, thumb safety, 6-shot, clip fed. Rear sight adjustable for elevation. Fast loading and fast firing.'

To an economy-minded assassin, the price of this old but serviceable tool was most attractive.

Klein's asked a mere $11.88 American for the carbine. Fitted with a 'brand new good quality 4x scope', it was offered for $19.95, and a further

$7.50 purchased 108 rounds of ammunition. The firm tossed in a free magazine clip.

So for $27.45 plus postage and express, Lee H. Oswald was able to buy his president killing gear. Since the terms were $1 down and five months to pay, his cash outlay for his deed may not have exceeded three dollars.

* * *

In his Broad Street store, gunsmith Fred Behnsen dug up further information about the cut-rate weapon.

Specifically, it's an Italian Mannlicher magazine (Carcano) carbine, 1891 model. It was named "Carcano" after the ordnance expert at Turin arsenal who changed the breech mechanism to speed up a bolt-operated action borrowed from Austria.

Teamed with soft-nosed ammunition, these compact little Mannlichers make a pretty fair deer rifle. The speedy action helps, and the 15½ inch barrel is right for brush work . . . or for poking through a window overlooking a parade route.

I suspect that Oswald got in some practice with his telescopic-sighted weapon before he left for his brief and bloody appearance on the stage of history. Practice makes perfect: no doubt quite a few empty hulls from the 108-round supply are tarnishing on some rattler flat near Dallas.

The box of 6 mm. (.256 calibre) Italian military ammo Fred Behnsen produced holds cartridges identical with those that fed Oswald's carbine.

Here I can't be exact, but I would guess that the long, slender, steel-jacketed bullets necked into the brass centre-fire casings weigh about 140 grains. The smokeless powder propellant and the rather light slug aren't hefty enough for big game—for a grizzly, say—but have proved adequate in two wars and a presidential assassination.

From the autopsy report, it appears that the thoroughgoing killer rendered his slugs more lethal by trimming back the hard-metal jackets to expose the lead. The resultant "mushrooming" on impact would ensure maximum damage.

* * *

So much for the apparatus which on the blackest Friday we've known for many a year, fired a shot heard round the world.

I'm not at all sure it should have been so readily available to a man who for months and years had been stoking fires that flared into murder.

Don't, please, label me as one of those who would outlaw firearms because people can and do get killed with them. I like guns, and one time or another, have owned quite a few.

At the same time, I'm glad to note that the United States proposes to tighten up its regulations governing the sale of firearms, and, I think we could take a thoughtful look at our own.

'One dollar puts your hand on these guns,' the Chicago mail order house proclaimed to adults and minors, good men and bad, with impartial generosity.

That, in the case of Lee Oswald, proved an open invitation to murder.

STRICTLY INDOOR TYPE is young seagull who was adopted three weeks ago by Mrs. Helmet Cordsen, 67 Menzies. Kindly lady noticed bird in distress, caught between two logs on Dallas Road beach while other gulls screamed overhead. She brought bird home, amputated an injured portion of wing. Gull is now tame, has morning swim and drink in bathtub, eats dog food with great enthusiasm. (Times photo.)

Free Water Ends For C. Saanich

City Giving Up Role Of Fairy Godmother

Mayor R. B. Wilson today indicated Central Saanich's free water ride is over.

"The city can't go on playing fairy godmother to Central Saanich so it can have free water," said the mayor. He said a price will have to be negotiated—either as a flat rate lease or a consumption charge approved by the Public Utilities Commission.

The mayor made the statement after Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee and a delegation met City Hall officials to ask for renewal of a $1,000 lease covering the city land on which the Central Saanich-owned pumping station stands at Elk Lake.

It spells the end to a fantastic episode in which Central Saanich has been drawing more than 125,000,000 gallons annually from the city-owned lake for free.

BIG PROFITS

Not only did it take the city's water for free but it turned around and started selling it—at a 100 per cent profit over piping and processing costs—to North Saanich residents. The profits are believed to run to several thousand dollars and are increasing steadily.

And on top of that, Central Saanich council made a good fellow of itself by generously giving the B.C. Toll Authority ferry terminal at Swartz Bay all the Elk Lake water it wanted.

The toll authority in turn has allowed private owners of nearby islands — notably the subdivided Piers Island—to tap its supply with submarine water lines.

"Apparently the city's water is being given away free as far away as the Gulf Islands and what sales are being made in North Saanich goes towards lowering the cost in Central Saanich," said one amazed City Hall official.

BOUGHT STATION

The situation began several years ago when Central Saanich bought the department of national defence pumping station, used to supply Patricia Bay airport, and installed a water distribution system for its own residents.

At that time, city water commissioner J. C. Garnett persuaded city council to allow Central Saanich to draw the water it wanted for nothing while paying a $1,000 lease for the pumpng station land.

Since then, Central Saanich has seen more than 200 connections established to distribution lines inside its own municipality and has laid lines into Deep Cove and other North Saanich areas.

Already more than 100 North Saanich connections — all paying customers — have been made and these are expected to double quickly.

In the meantime, Central Saanich permitted the toll authority to take water from its system and the toll authority subsequently did the same for some Gulf Islanders.

At present, Central Saanich draws an average of 350,000 gallons each day from Elk Lake. Most of this it sells at the subsidized rate to its own residents, gives some away free and sells another 50,000 gallons to its North Saanich customers at double the 17½-cents-per-1,000 gallons cost of piping and processing.

City Hall has asked for audited statements of costs and revenues of the Central Saanich water utility before it will hold a second discussion with Reeve Lee.

Door Smashed In Burglary Of Sign Firm

Burglars who smashed through a door of Bayliss Neon Co., 2519 Rock Bay, carried away free advertising for most of their loot.

The burglars also got $34.32 from a cash box, a drill, and the keys to the office.

They broke a window at the back of the building to get in, released a door catch into the workshop, and smashed in the top half of the door that blocked their way into the office.

DESKS RANSACKED

There, they ransacked desks and filing cabinets, eventually settling for the cash and the cigarette lighters.

It was the latest in a series of break-ins that started over the weekend, and now totals over two dozen.

A wallet containing $18 was stolen overnight Tuesday from the pants pocket of V. Allan, as the trousers lay over a chair in a suite at Kiwanis Village.

Cigarettes and canned food were taken overnight Tuesday from the Cedarwood Grocery, 3011 Gosworth, but police scared the burglars away, and the canned goods were found in tall grass behind the building.

B.C. Chamber Swats Closed Forest Talks

An unexpected assault upon the house select standing committee on forestry was unleashed by the chamber in its annual brief to the Provincial Cabinet.

Only three cabinet ministers were in town to hear the brief, but among them was Forests Minister Ray Williston.

The other two were Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Works Minister W. N. Chant.

"The method of conducting the hearings leaves something to be desired," said the chamber.

NO OATH REQUIRED

"It leads to irresponsible and headline-catching submissions.

The forestry committee is usually composed of 13 MLAs.

This year it was headed by Cyril Shelford, the Social Credit member for Omineca.

And it heard some pretty fierce arguments, including charges that logging operators are "blackmailing" their competitors for government quotas.

The chamber delegation, headed by president Kenny Stewart of Vancouver, said the in camera meetings at which press and public are barred result in "a breakdown of an otherwise good communications effort."

The brief also charged that there is much evidence to show present government forestry policies are inequitable.

It referred particularly to stumpage rates and zoning.

The chamber urged that the forestry committee in future should make further inquiries into these charges.

Brief Advocates Alternate Vote

A delegation of chamber directors, representing 127 groups, met the cabinet with their annual brief.

The brief also urged redistribution of the seats in the legislature.

It said there are "very obvious distortions" in the allocation of the present 52 seats in the house.

The alternative ballot, the chamber said, is needed to avert the problems of minority government and the threat of stalemate in today's multi-party system.

The present single vote system may "thwart the will of the people" by electing a candidate whom the majority of voters don't want, the brief said

SMALL MAJORITIES

In a contest between five candidates as little as 21 per cent of the votes cast could elect the winner, it added.

The alternative system, which was abolished by the present government after the 1953 election, allows the voter to mark his ballot in order of preference for all candidates.

Recreation Budget Hike Requested

The chamber said the recreation department has done an outstanding job on a modest budget up to now.

But, "The time has come to award this department a larger share of the provincial budget."

This year's budget of $372,700,000 including $3,900,000 for recreation.

At the same time, the chamber urged caution in future spending on education, although it fully endorsed the government's policies for expansion of facilities, particularly in higher education.

The chamber suggested that some future education cost estimates could be curbed by fuller use of existing school buildings.

It also said that each step to improve higher education should be carefully evaluated in the light of possible tax increases.

CUT TAXES

In fact, the chamber urged a reduction in income taxes.

It also proposed abolition of the homeowner grant.

Chamber spokesman Reg Miller of Vancouver said Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, chairing the cabinet, made a formidable defence of the grant.

Mr. Kiernan said that the grant is not intended to make homeowners a preferred class of citizen, but to encourage them to take more interest in their communities.

However, the chamber contended that the grant is discriminatory against industry.

The chamber also opposed Ottawa's plan for old age security.

The chamber opposed state medicare, and urged the government only to provide financial assistance when illness and welfare "is clearly beyond the means of the individual."

Probe on Jet Crash Opens at Dockyard

A naval board of inquiry into the crash of a T33 jet training plane which cost two lives Saturday convened at HMC Dockyard today after returning from the scene of the accident.

Wednesday the five-man board headed by Cmdr. Don Shepherd was landed by helicopter on Mt. Strachan, five miles north of Hollyburn ridge, to examine the wreckage of the plane in which Lt. N. S. Ogden and Lt. Don Clark lost their lives.

The bodies of the two men will be brought to Victoria tonight under naval escort from North Vancouver via Tsawwassen.

A double military funeral will be held Friday, with Command Chaplain (P) and Chaplain W. L. Balton conducting the memorial service at 2 p.m. in HMCS Naden chapel.

Interment will be at Veteran's Cemetery with full naval honors, reserved for servicemen who die on duty.

SECOND PHASE AT GORDON HEAD CAMPUS

Unveiling Set for $6,000,000 Plan

By AB KENT

University development plans for the $6,000,000 second phase of Gordon Head campus will be unveiled to the public at open house Feb. 1.

Public support to the tune of some $2.5 million will be sought in a five-year development phase taking in the period 1965-69, when it is anticipated some 4,000 students will be registered at University of Victoria.

Prof. R. T. Wallace, co-ordinator of campus expansion and acting dean of arts and science, said there are many imponderables and many alternative directions that academic expansion may take. But he said:

"We can anticipate by 1969-70 session 3,600-4,000 students. This means classroom and office facilities will be needed at Gordon Head.

"We will have to contain some special facilities for a number of disciplines, particularly education, geography and psychology.

"We are also developing efforts to make a strong department of theatre, and we hope by then to be granting master's degrees, so we will need graduate study facilities in the humanities and sciences."

A major part of the second phase will be site development, in which the just-started ring road will be completed, parking facilities will be installed, landscaping done, Finnerty Road will be closed between the north and south edges of the ring and walks laid between buildings.

NEARLY COMPLETED

It is estimated between $5 and $7 million will be spent in the phase: $2.5 million by public subscription as in the nearly completed first phase, the same amount by special government matching grant and the last $1 million by government capital building grant.

To allow for 3,600 students on the campus some 2,500 classroom seats would normally be minimum requirement. This is equivalent to three Clearihue classroom blocks for a total cost of some $1.5 million.

A faculty office block to provide for about 250 staff members would cost about $750,000; an administration building would cost about $400,000; some nine residences would be needed to accommodate 20 per cent of the students; a new theatre would be desirable and a stadium is a possible consideration — the latter a high cost factor in itself.

But it is pointed out that many unknown factors can change the picture drastically.

Although planning is for early withdrawal of academic facilities — and later others — from Lansdowne campus, it is anticipated that buildings located there could be used for a long time. They can always be used by adjuncts to the university, such as research institutes.

Planners do not know what demands science will make in the next five years, now what recommendations for academic programming the provincial super-senate will make for UVIC.

Nor is it known what the university grants commission will recommend for apportionment of provincial funds — the members have yet to be appointed.

Contemporary Ash Trays For Smoker Or Non-Smoker

By PENNY SAVER

On most Christmas lists there is always the person who seemingly has simply everything.

This year Penny has conquered this situation with ash trays for smoker and non-smoker alike. These ash trays are in contemporary design.

One particularly humorous one shows a huge muscle man. It is inscribed with "If you want to be healthy, STOP SMOKING, and lift this ash tray, now set it down . . . lift, and set it down."

For the actual smoker there's a three-piece set of cigarette case, ash tray and lighter. Made of wood with silver trim, sets are priced at $5.98.

Every cigarette smoker will love the black cigarette boxes topped with green and silver cars. These are priced at $5.95 and can be paired with matching ash trays selling for $3.95.

Of course, we mustn't forget the pipe smoker.

For him, shop supplies magnetic pipe holders. Made in black enamel with chrome trim, holders are priced at $1.49 and will attach to any steel surface. Holders keep pipes from rolling and sliding and prevent ashes from spilling.

Ideal location for one of these little gimmicks is on the dashboard of your hubby's car. Pipe would be conveniently within reach during hours behind the wheel.

If you are having difficulty in finding a gift for the person with everything or for any person on your list, call Penny at 382-3131.

Here Are Some Tips for Women Speech Makers

New experiences add zest to life! Every time you hang back and refuse an invitation or a chance to try your wings with a new experience, or pass by an opportunity because you are shy, you grow a little older.

Lowman

Every time you tackle something you were afraid of and make a success of it you feel and look 10 years younger. I think it really makes you younger because it broadens your horizons and increases your feeling of self-confidence and self-respect.

Today so many women are active in civic, church, club and school affairs. Many thousands of them are called upon for the first time to make a speech now and then. Don't fail to accept this challenge whether it is to be a group of 20 people or 300. There are tricks which will help you, and you would not have been asked unless everyone feels that you are qualified to do the job or have something worthwhile to say.

Aline MacMahon, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actresses and veteran public speaker said, "It's a revolutionary idea, but I advise anyone who is asked to make a speech to request that they may speak before luncheon or dinner instead of afterwards.

"This has many advantages. The audience is more alert (I might add, so are you) and you will not be speaking to nervous watch-watchers, tired of sitting."

Miss MacMahon, who is currently re-creating her original Broadway role in the film "All The Way Home," began making speeches when she was selected president of her sophomore class at Barnard College. Her most recent appearance as a speaker was for the United States Information Service. The following are some more of her first aids, with all of which I thoroughly agree.

Don't read a prepared speech. You might as well pass out typewritten copies and let the audience read it themselves.

If you are going to speak before a microphone, test it ahead of time to be sure it is right for you.

Keep your voice conversational as if you were talking to the person across the table from you. A nervous speaker tends to become shrill. Consciously lower your tone.

If you have notes or statistics to read be sure ahead of time that the lighting is adequate.

When asked how a speaker should dress, Aline MacMahon said, "Dress comfortably. No woman can deliver a smooth address while a tight girdle pinches her ribs."

Perhaps the most important advice of all is, "Be yourself, and really feel what you are saying and all nervousness will pass."

I can just hear what the men who read this column are saying or thinking: "Women already talk enough. Why, oh why, does she have to urge them to talk more?"

Hemming Trouble As Print And Weave Don't Coincide

"Dear Eunice:

"I bought some inexpensive thin cotton print for curtains for a bedroom. I was always taught to pull threads to make hems even, but on this printed material I find that the print does not coincide with the weave of the material. How should I go about making hems in my curtains?"

Mrs. S. J.

Dear Mrs. S. J.:

The warp and woof threads of any fabric must be even when the fabric is woven, however in processing and dyeing it will often become pulled uneven and printed unevenly. Your best bet is to cut the curtains even with the pattern which in this case is more important than pulling the threads for the hems.

She Cooks 'Out of a Suitcase'

Playing in 37 cities across the United States would appear to be a schedule that would keep domestic life at a bare minimum. But bubbly blond skater Grete Borgen, star of Ice Capades, coming to the Victoria Arena from Dec. 19 through to Dec. 21, manages to practice her hobby —Norwegian cookery—in most of the towns the show plays.

"I have found that most motels and motor inns now have at least some cooking facilities and a refrigerator," says Grete, "and I can cook lunches and late snacks for myself and a few other girls from the show. It's a pleasant change from restaurant food."

A native of Oslo, Grete is the brightest Norwegian skating export since Sonja Henie. She holds both singles and pairs championships for the City of Oslo, for Norway and for the Scandinavian countries of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland.

Her partner in pair skating since she was 10 years old has been Per Larsen. He joined the Ice Capades a year after Grete did. They skate as a pair in the finale "Salute to George M. Cohan" and both have solos in this year's "Go" edition of the show—Grete in "Bakes in Toyland" and "Fantasia Mexicana"—Per in "Showboat" and "Fantasia Mexicana."

FISKEGRATIN (A Fish Dish)

Prepare thick white sauce with four ounces of butter, three ounces of flour and slightly less than one pint of milk. Add salt if unsalted fish is to be used, and a dash of pepper.

Flake finely four to six ounces of leftover cooked fish, fresh or smoked fish. Add to white sauce with powdered mace or nutmeg. Cool.

Stir in four to five egg yokes and stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into greased baking dish, cover with grated bread crumbs, dot with butter. Bake in hot oven 45 minutes.

Serve with melted butter or soft butter beaten vigorously. If spice is not used in souffle, chopped parsley may be added to butter.

SOT SUPPE (Norwegian Fruit Soup)

Boil one quart water in deep saucepan. Add two tablespoons rice. Boil rapidly, uncovered 15 to 20 minutes. Drain and keep liquid.

Put one cup pitted dark sweet cherries with juice in a bowl and add ½ cup red raspberry fruit syrup and ¼ cup lemon juice.

To the rice water, which you have, add ½ cup finely chopped apple and a stick of cinnamon. Cook over medium heat five minutes.

Blend a paste of one tablespoon cold water and one teaspoon cornstarch. Add to soup mixture and bring to boil. Cook five minutes. Cool soup slightly. Serve soup warm or cold. If cold, garnish with whipped cream.

UGNSPANNKAKA (Bacon Pancake)

Sift and set aside one cup sifted flour, one tablespoon tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon salt.

Blend together two eggs, slightly beaten, and two cups milk.

Gradually add milk mixture to dry ingredients and stir until blended. Set aside about one hour.

Dice and pan broil ½ pound bacon. Add bacon to batter. Stir until blended and pour into well-greased baking dish. Bake at 400 degrees, about 40 to 45 minutes, until mixture is browned.

Cut in squares and serve with preserves.

VON Appointment

OTTAWA (CP) — Miss Christine MacArthur of Woodville, Ont., has been appointed assistant director-in-chief of the Victorian Order of Nurses of Canada, it was announced Wednesday. She succeeds M. Elizabeth Reed of Fredericton, who retired recently.

WCTU to Hold Meeting

A provincial institute of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held Friday in the Free Methodist Church, 1610 Cook Street.

Session will begin at 10:30 a.m. with devotions being led by Mrs. W. J. Sheridan, followed by medal contests arranged by Miss Grace Fulton, Vancouver, and talk given by national president Mrs. A. D Keith, Winnipeg.

Mrs. R. H: Boyer, Vancouver, will give noontide prayer before luncheon at which Mrs N. Phillips will preside.

During the afternoon session, Mrs. P. R. Thompson will direct a national temperance study course and Mrs. G. Hitchcock, Vancouver, field secretary, will conduct program, "A Dream of Pennies."

Highlight will be a "get-acquainted fruesta" with fruit juices being featured. Mrs. Phillips will be hostess, assisted by Mrs. A. Coleman and Mrs. Hitchcock.

Provincial president Mrs. R. B. Barnes will come from New Westminster for the day-long session. Hostess group will be the Rockland Park WCTU.

BE SMART—

DEAR ABBY . . .

His Best Foot Is Not Forward!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About six years ago my husband hurt his back in an accident. He wore a back brace for a while, but he quit wearing it because he said it was heavy and uncomfortable. When he tried on an old corset of mine I thought he was clowning, but he wasn't. He wore it to work one day and said his back never felt better. When I saw he was serious, I bought him a new one. It's been two years and he continues to wear a lady's corset. The worst part of it is that he has started to wear nylon stockings, saying it helps to keep the corset down. His doctor has examined him and has seen these undergarments. When I asked him about it, he told me it wasn't any of his business what his patients wore. Should I stop worrying about this?

GRAND ISLAND

DEAR GRAND: There are corsets (without garters) on the market for orthopedic purposes. If it's back comfort your husband wants, he can buy one. As for the nylon stockings, that is where your husband put his foot in it!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is very jealous and this is one of our typical arguments. When we go out for an evening to a place where there is dancing and friendly strangers ask me to dance, shouldn't I dance with them? I have always been taught that it isn't polite to refuse. My husband says this can lead to trouble and it isn't proper for a woman to dance with strangers. What is your opinion?

NOT SURE

DEAR NOT: Your husband is right. When left alone, would you like him to dig up another partner?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for two years. We decided when we got married that we would not have any children until we had been married for five years. Lately we have not been getting along at all. He has become very moody and irritable, and I admit I have not been easy to live with either. We seem to be drifting apart. A very wise friend of mine advised me to get pregnant on purpose as soon as possible—that a baby would save our marriage. What do you think?

LOSING HIM

DEAR LOSING: And what if the baby DOESN'T save the marriage? You'd be ahead to get some counseling from your clergyman or a marriage counselor, and ignore your ill-advising friend.

DEAR ABBY: What do people have against plumbers? I am tired of hearing educated people say: "A PLUMBER earns more!"

Don't people know that in order to become a plumber a man must start out as an apprentice at a very low wage? And when he "graduates" he must be proficient in all phases of the trade in order to go out and work for the wage set.

Sincerely,

A PROUD PLUMBER

Festival of Christmas Decorations Give Homemakers Many Ideas for Holidays

Victoria's reputation for beautifully decorated homes at the Christmas season owes a great deal to the annual Festival of Decorations, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the Family and Children's Service.

This year's festival, held Wednesday in the Georgian Room of the Empress Hotel, was no exception. Typical of comments heard was the woman who confessed: "I haven't a clue about how to decorate this year, that's the main reason I came. I always go away with plenty of ideas!"

GLITTERING DISPLAY

She, and hundreds of others! The glittering display was a veritable mine of inspiration. All the entries were earmarked with an ingenuity worthy of a Leonardo de Vinci.

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, presented prizes to winners in the evening. She was introduced by the auxiliary president, Mrs. A. E. Cooper. Co-conveners of the festival were Mrs. J. McConachy and Mrs. N. E. Blackmore, and the judges, Mrs. George Wiggan and Mrs. Shirley McAree.

In the adult section, Mrs. T. Scott's prize-winning miniature tree entry in white and silver was a masterpiece, with silver baubles accenting a round white ball on a slender branch. Second place winner was Mrs. Joan Bailey, with a modernistic green wood Christmas tree, highlighted with paper chains in green, red and gold.

Mrs. Peter McIntyre's first-place entry in the door displays showed imagination-plus! She had moulded leaves and cones from newspapers, gilded them and embellished them with red holly berries. Mrs. T. T. Vaulkhard placed second.

Pampas grass was combined with scarlet poinsettias, red candles and gold baubles by second-place winner, Mrs. D. W. Metcalfe.

Mrs. Metcalfe won first prize for her mantel display, with Mrs. Vaulkhard placing second.

Mrs. Charles Smith used a base of rose gauze, shimmering with gold touches, for her "church window" (made of Christmas baubles), which placed first in the novelty displays. Mrs. Scott came second.

In exquisite taste was winning entry in the "Christmas in other countries" section, made by Mrs. J. G. Barnett.

It featured a Christmas rose made of tissue paper and set on fir bough and cone base, all contained in a German glass holder with one candle as a final touch.

As usual, Greater Victoria students were well represented with entries that promised a coming generation of inspired home decorators.

A chocolate cake castle, peopled with marshmallow brownies in red paper hats, won first place in table centres for Debbie Best and Cathy Johnston, Oak Bay Junior High School. Wendy Strong, Esquimalt Senior High, placed second, and Carolyn Zapf received honorable mention.

WINNING DUO

The gold and silver entry of Cheryl Small and Val Lindholm, Oak Bay Junior High, placed first in novelty section. Marg Campbell, Lansdowne Junior High, was second, with honorable mention going to Wendy Muir, Gordon Head Junior High.

Candy canes and a Santa and reindeer, made of red velvet, were "principals" on the gold box that won first place in package section for Susanna King, Esquimalt Sr. High. Paulette Grant, Claremont Sr. High, was second and honorable mention went to Judy Soper, Central Jr. High.

A miniature mail box, set on a tree branch, won first prize in door section for Beth Ridley, Victoria High. Second place was won by Connie Pepper, Lansdowne Jr. High, and honorable mention, Diana Fife, Esquimalt Senior High.

The home furnishing class at Mount View High School won first place in miniature displays. Lawerence Bissley, Oak Bay Jr. High, was second and honorable mention went to Jane McKechnie, Victoria High.

Pipe cleaners, shaped into "baubles" made an ingenious mobile for first-place winner in that section, Anne Smith, Colquitz High School.

A Dutch shoe, filled with fruit and accented with red candles set in crystal holders, won second place for Veronica Schwantje, Oak Bay Junior High.

Proceeds will be used by the auxiliary to provide the many extras the regular funds of the Family and Children's Service cannot cover—help provide furnishings for group foster homes and Sevenoaks Treatment Centre, layettes, cribs, buggies, music lessons and special help for foster children.

Rod Booth, Billy Dyson and Peter Dyson, front row, from the left, and Michael Dyson, Ron Webb and Ian Pool, back row, are members of Christ Church Cathedral boys' choir that will, under direction of Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster, sing Christmas carols at the annual tea and bazaar of the Women's Parish Guild, on Saturday, Dec. 7, in Memorial Hall. There will be stalls of Christmas baking and novelties, home cooking and fancy work. Guild president Mrs. D. Mitchell is convener.

Gifts In Well

Invited guests included Mrs. J. Ainscough, Mrs. Charles Brousson, Mrs. M. Christopherson, Mrs. Tom Cave, Mrs. C. C. Clifford, Mrs. V. Henderson, Mrs. John Jewkes, Mrs. Reuben Matiko, Mrs. David Meservia, Mrs. James Moffat, Mrs. Steven Nischuk, Mrs. John Penner, Mrs. A. M. Spenst, Mrs. J. Woods, Mrs. Barton, the Misses Beverly Clifford, Erica Cresner and Sonia Maglio.

Bride Wears Pink Satin and Lace

Rev. Bernard Hanley officiated at the recent ceremony in St. Andrew's Cathedral which united Miss Charlaine Lacey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lacey, 1549 Clawthorpe Avenue and Terence Scott, only son of Col. and Mrs. G. B. Scott, 4581 Pipeline Road.

Radiant in a formal gown of blush pink satin and Chantilly lace, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father.

Matron of honor, Mrs. V. Berry, wore a gown of pale pink chiffon with flowing back panel of cerise chiffon. Cerise carnations were in her bouquet.

Bridesmaids, Miss Shirley Pronk and Miss Janet Kerr wore identical gowns of pale pink taffeta with skirts overlayed in white lace. They carried bouquets of pink carnations and pink and white streamers.

Petite flower girl, Miss Ria Jancowski, wore a tiered dress of pink nylon. Her bouquet of Johanna Hill roses was a miniature duplicate of the bride's. Her headpiece was a bandeau of roses and her jewelry a gold cross, gift of the bride.

At a reception at King Arthur's Round Table, the toast was proposed by Arthur Forrester. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with white doves under pink horseshoes.

Before leaving on a honeymoon on the mainland and in the United States, the bride donned a chocolate brown suit with wedding ring collar, beige maribou hat, light beige top coat and corsage of pink rose buds.

Linen Shower

Pink roses and candles flanked the bride doll that centred the refreshment table when Mrs. R. Ketterer entertained at a linen shower in her Woodburn Avenue home in honor of bride-elect, Miss Anne Macdonald. Honor guest received a green orchid corsage and her mother, Mrs. Frank Macdonald, was presented with yellow roses en corsage. Another special guest was the bride-to-be's sister, Mrs. Barrie Montgomery. Also attending were Mrs. Frank Stephens, Mrs. John Murray, Mrs. Duncan MacPhail, Mrs. George Ross, Mrs. Fred Bro, Mrs. Bert Byers, Mrs. Ron Minnis, Mrs. J. Wallace, Mrs. Ray Rutherford, Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. William Dunstan, Mrs. Anthony Southwell, Mrs. Thomas Affleck, Mrs. Ross Murray, Mrs. Robert Casilio, the Misses Cecile Williams and Sharon Griffin.

Plans for Motor Scooting in Europe Foiled by Obstreperous Bike on Road to Dover

Former Times staffer Judy Richardson, and her friend Linda Scales, who travelled across Canada by car, prior to leaving for overseas from Montreal, are now in Europe. You will soon be hearing more of their adventures from abroad.

By JUDY RICHARDSON

"See you in two weeks," we rashly promised Gerald Hay, the young Frenchman we met aboard ship. He had promised to find us a good, inexpensive motor scooter in Paris.

Richardson

However, our plans, as always, are subject to change. If we told you today what we were doing tomorrow you still couldn't be sure that we'd do it. Thus, after a visit to a cousin in Brighton who, by chance, had a motor bicycle for sale, we decided to buy in England.

Advice against the scheme was plentiful. In London, we met John Grant, Dave Humphries and Ellery Littleton, all of Victoria, at British Columbia House.

"Don't go by motor scooter," they advised, "you'll freeze. We've just come back from a trip in northern England, and we know."

Assuring ourselves that experience is the best teacher, Linda and I "pooh-poohed" all advice and purchased the bike.

Two weeks later we were still in Brighton.

First the bike wouldn't run because the battery had to be charged. Then we had to get a road licence and before you can obtain this, you must have at least third party insurance.

We went to the Automobile Association. They directed us to their insurance company. It wasn't too happy about insuring two young women on a motor bike in Europe and instead sent us to an insurance broker.

He sold us third party insurance but balked at the green card insurance which relieves the traveller of buying minimum insurance for every country visited.

That, he said would cost us up to $60 for six months.

We settled for two months insurance in England and decided to buy a little insurance in each country.

Now we went to the license office. "But Madam, it is necessary to have your vehicle tested before we can give you a license."

Back to the garage. Yes, they could do the test and give us a certificate for it the next day.

Back we went to the Automobile Association to find out about an international driving permit that is required in Spain and Greece. We should have got it in Canada, we were told.

The AA in Brighton phoned the AA in London to confer. They decided to send us to the American Automobile Association in London.

Finally we donned all our gear one rainy morning and set off for London.

It poured — but inside our crash helmets, three sweaters, jackets, raincoats, long underwear, slacks, baggy rubberized gabardine over-pants, two pairs of woolen socks and fleece-lined boots, we were comparatively dry and warm.

The AAA couldn't give us an international driving permit.

It was almost too much. We made for British Columbia House to see if there was mail from home. Instead we found a letter from Kathy Dangerfield (probably back in Victoria by now). She had just returned to England after a four-month motor trip in Europe, including Spain and Greece.

"No trouble at all," she assured us, "in Spain I even got a traffic ticket and they didn't complain when they saw I only had a Canadian licence."

At last! All obstacles seemed to be surmounted! We paid a visit to relatives in Hertford Heath and then really began to think of leaving England.

Dressed as before, but now with two rucksacks, two air mattresses and two down sleeping bags stashed on the carrier, we set out for Dover.

The wind blew but it didn't rain. We even managed 70 mph on the new motorway which makes part of the Dover route.

Eight miles from the port, the bike slowed, putted a few times and stopped. The starter pedal was locked tight.

We called a garage, were given a lift in and discovered the oil had run out and the engine seized up. Something was broken. It might take three weeks to have it fixed and probably thirty or forty dollars. Even then the bike couldn't be trusted. Repairs on the continent were very dear.

We gave up!! We sent the bike and a box containing helmets and other unnecessary gear back to Brighton to await our return; shouldered our packs and walked on to the Dover-Boulogne ferry, determined to rely on the automobiles of other people for our future transportation.

Automation Changes Aspects, Not Mission

MONTREAL (CP) — Alice Girard, dean of the nursing faculty at the University of Montreal, says automation may change the practical aspect of nursing but never its mission.

"The machine must be accepted as a means to release the nurse, affording her more time for human relations," she said in an address ot the fifth annual conference of Operating Room Nurses Group of Montreal.

Despite the natural hostility at being replaced in some of her duties by the electronic nurse, it is difficult to remain angry for long with a machine that will take and register the patient's arterial pressure every 10 minutes according to the doctor's instructions, she said.

"Patients accept technical progress insofar as it contributes to their recovery but they do not accept that this progress should deprive them of the relief and security they feel when they know they are the object of the nurses' attention."

Junior Musicians

Piano solos were played by Connie Barker, Kathy Gregory, Lois Pepper, Rosemary Fryer, Becky Jay, Kevin Vine, and John Fryer. Janette Reynolds sang "Freckles," accompanied by her mother. Lorne Baker played a violin solo, "The Bell Boy Suite," accompanied by J. Ingram Smith.

Guest artists were "Twenty Wee Folk," a choir under the direction of Miss G. Pearcy. The choir captured the audience when they sang "When Grandma Was a Little Girl Like Me," and "I Went for a Walk with My Wee White Dog," along with other pieces. Jennifer Angus sang "Inside the Basket" and "Brown Bread."

The delightful afternoon concluded with "The Queen," Bruce Fryer and Steven Mortimer were pianists. Refreshments were served.

Bazaar and bake sale, Saturday from 2 to 6 p.m., Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), 2990 Quadra Street, sponsored by the relief society in aid of building fund.

Jaquie, Children, At Hyannis

WASHINGTON—Jacqueline Kennedy paid a special Thanksgiving Day visit to her husband's grave today, joining with thousands of other mourners who flocked to the Arlington Cemetery site.

Then the widow of the late president returned to the White House. From there she left for the airport to fly to Hyannis Port, Mass., for the traditional gathering today of the Kennedy family on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Kennedy, looking calm and composed, spent about 10 minutes at the graveside in her unannounced visit. It was her fifth visit since the funeral Monday. With her were her sister Princess Lee Radziwill, four White House aides and secret service guards.

She has made plans to move out of the White House Wednesday or Thursday. Mrs. Kennedy has accepted the invitation of undersecretary of state and Mrs. W. Averell Harriman to live for a while in their $250,000 home in the Georgetown section of the capital.

Mrs. Kennedy always has loved the Georgetown surroundings and the red brick, three-story home of the Harrimans at 3038 N Street, N.W., will suit her taste. The richly-furnished house has priceless paintings collected by Marie Harriman, a connoisseur, and it has a garden.

Mrs. Kennedy lived three blocks away on N Street when her husband was a senator and, later, the president-elect.

She will stay at Cape Cod until Sunday or Monday. Caroline will have to return to her first grade class at the White House which probably will continue for the entire school year.

Mrs. Johnson won't move her family into the White House until after Mrs. Kennedy and her children depart. But the new first lady has been boning up on the job ahead. She has met the White House household staff and she is making plans to fit her own family into the private quarters of the big mansion.

She and her daughters Lynda Bird, 19, and Lucy Baines, 16, had lunch with the president at his office yesterday after he delivered his speech to a joint session of Congress. Mrs. Johnson said, she thought the speech was "great"

NESTLED AMONG EVERGREENS

Lochside School Opened

More than 100 Saanich children are settled into their newly-established elementary school nestled into a sylvan setting among the evergreens just off Royal Oak Avenue.

They attend Lochside School, a four-room concrete block structure erected last summer near the old V and S Railway right of way below Greater Victoria Water Board reservoir.

The trees will soon come down to make way for play and sports area which will be landscaped next summer.

Classrooms are located at one end of an office area, to which further rooms may be added.

The school, accommodating grades one to seven, is one of the southernmost in Saanich school district 63.

It is patterned almost identically to two other elementary schools opened this fall in the district — Keating and Durrance, the latter having gone into service in the last 10 days.

RUSSIANS SELL GOLD BY TON TO BUY GRAIN

LONDON (AP) — Market experts say Russia has sold $366,000,000 worth of gold in Europe this fall, apparently to finance purchases of wheat in the West. The sales are $166,000,000 more than Russia sold in the West during all of 1962, the informants said. Eight tons of Soviet gold arrived here Wednesday, bringing the amount reaching the bullian market here to 101 tons in the last two months.

Help Us Blow Our Horn Provinces Ask Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government was asked Wednesday to provide grants to help provincial tourist agencies promote the tourist industry on a regional basis.

The proposal, placed before the federal-provincial tourist conference by British Columbia, resulted in a sharp exchange of views between Alan Field, director of the Canadian government travel bureau, and Dr. D. B. Turner, B.C.'s deputy minister of recreation and conservation.

Other provincial delegates did not comment on the idea but James A. Roberts, federal deputy trade minister, said it would be examined with "an open mind."

MATCHING GRANTS

Dr. Turner proposed a federal-provincial matching grants program "to encourage more effective external promotion by the provinces of their travel attractions."

He said the federal travel bureau should continue national promotion of the tourist business in the United States and overseas with no reduction in its current budget. However, regional promotion would be carried out by provincial agencies under a matching grants program controlled by the federal agency.

Dr. Turner said an immediate application of his suggestion would be promotion of the Canadian centenary in 1967. It was obvious "that there would be much more provincial activity in this field if specific financial support was forthcoming from the federal government."

Provincial agencies now were attempting to persuade potential visitors, especially those in the U.S., to visit a particular province. The federal agency was selling Canada as a whole in the same markets "but without too much reference to what the province concerned is doing."

Mr. Field said that Dr. Turner had not presented a single argument that he could use in an attempt to persuade the federal government to enter into such a program.

"I am not opposed but the first question that would be asked of me would be why cannot the provinces do their own regional advertising," he said.

TURNER SPEAKS UP

Mr. Field denied that the federal agency was not promoting tourism in the U.S. on a regional basis. He said he was prepared at any time to prove this in detail.

Dr. Turner said Mr. Field's reaction "was instant and definitely opposed."

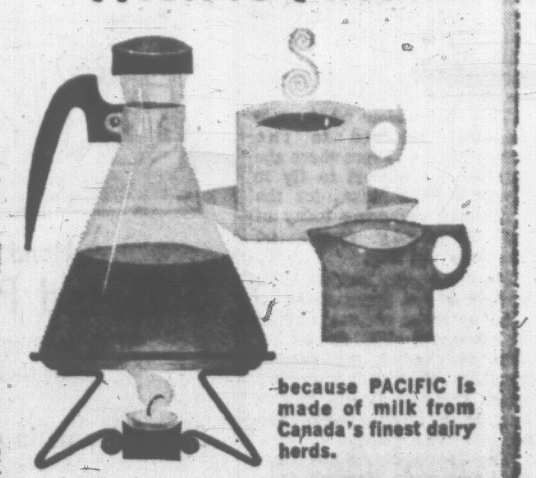

"He's not going to entertain it one bit," he said. "I don't like inflexibility like this."

Unless such a program was adopted the provinces could not do a complete job of regional promotion. It was true that the plan would cost more money than was now being spent "but I'm thinking of the centenary and the provinces and the federal government working together to promote it."

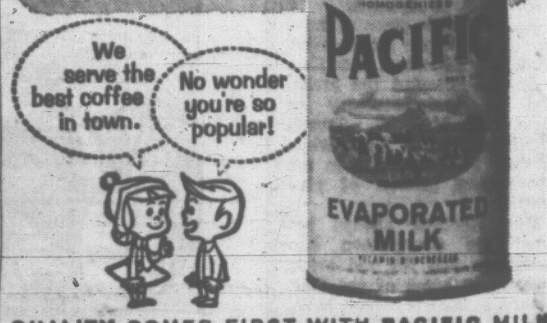

The idea was not "hair-brained" but a workable plan that "should be given more serious consideration than Mr. Field gave it."

City Building Lull Idles 40 Laborers

A lull in city construction following completion of the Mayfair Shopping Centre has left about 40 construction laborers out of work for about two months.

Construction and General Laborers' Union secretary John Gallow said he could not remember when as many have ever been out of work.

"We have about 10 per cent of our men out," he said. "Nanaimo and Victoria are the worst areas on the Island."

He said Nanaimo has 30 men out.

"Even Farmer (Construction Ltd.) is laying lots of steady men off. Many jobs have closed in the last month.

"It's likely there won't be anything at least until the new year."

Prospects at present include two new buildings at the University (tenders close today); City Hall, with first work due sometime next month; a new church, and work on St. Joseph's Hospital expansion.

At this time last year, Mayfair centre kept all city laborers busy and extras were called in.

Funeral Today For Ex-Teacher

Funeral services were held today in Hayward's chapel for Mrs. Rachel Mary Dymond, 234 Vancouver.

Mrs. Dymond was born in Ontario and came to Victoria in 1937.

She was a member of Metropolitan United Church and taught home economics at North Saanich School for 12 years.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Bonnie Jarvis and Mrs. Clarice Duncan, both of Victoria; one brother, Duncan Black of Ontario and seven grandchildren.

BRITISH TRAFFIC REPORT

Split Level Highways To Beat Traffic Jams

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Split-level cities designed to transform Britain's horse - and - buggy streets for the motor age are envisaged in a long - awaited traffic report released today by Transport Minister Ernest Marples.

The report was prepared after a three-year study of Britain's traffic thrombosis. A staff of experts led by Professor Colin Buchanan, civil engineer, town planner and architect, declared:

"It is a philosophical study of the problem, an attempt to set out what can be done, what the alternatives are and what the consequences will be of the various courses."

The 224-page richly illustrated book is the latest effort in Britain's continuing self - analysis, which has included such reports as Wolfenden on sex, Pilkington on television, Radcliffe on spies, Beeching on railways, Denning on ministerial conduct and Robbins on education.

Entitled Traffic in Towns, the report—on sale for 50 shillings ($7.50)—foreshadows the city of the future developed on two or three levels to allow free traffic circulation without undue sacrifice of environment or amenity.

PROBLEM URGENT

"The problems of traffic are crowding in upon us with desperate urgency," writes Buchanan, 56, now transport professor at London University's Imperial College.

"Unless steps are taken, the motor vehicle will defeat its own utility and bring about a disastrous degradation of the surroundings for living."

All but essential traffic would need to be banned from the heart of large cities. Existing methods of control — such as parking meters — were inadequate.

The Buchanan group contemplates a system of permits or licences for entry into defined zones and a system of pricing the use of road space—a toll device—perhaps by electronic apparatus.

It concludes, however, that "in the long run, the most potent factor in maintaining a ceiling on optional traffic is likely to be the provision of good public transport coupled with the common-sense of the public."

NEED AGENCY

"What is needed is a new agency, endowed with sufficient authority and large enough funds to knit together what is already being done, to lift it to a higher plane and to fill in the deficiencies. . . ."

Costs would be huge but not beyond the potential of the country, particularly in view of revenue from cars.

With the densest traffic in the world—38.5 vehicles to the mile compared with 21.8 in the United States and 11.9 in Canada—Britain now has 10,500,000 vehicles and Buchanan predicts there are likely to be 18,000,000 by 1970 and 40,000,000 by the year 2010.

Buchanan suggests the future city pattern should be a patchwork of "environmental areas"—areas from which traffic, other than that with business in the area, should be excluded. These would be both separated and connected by traffic-only "distributor" roads.

The analogy used was that of a large building with its halls and corridors carrying the traffic and its rooms representing the environmental area, which might be residential, commercial or industrial.

Liberia Fears Racial Clash

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Liberia's Foreign Minister J. Rudolph Grimes warned the United Nations Wednesday that a violent racial clash in South Africa is inevitable unless conditions are changed.

Such a race war could not help but involve the rest of the continent, he told the Security Council, and "since ideologies are already committed on this matter it will surely involve the rest of the world."

NEW ROCKET INTO ORBIT

Moon Flights Drawing Near

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The U.S. path to the moon appears smoother as a result of the first successful launching of the high-energy Atlas-Centaur space rocket.

Months of costly troubles ended for the Atlas-Centaur program Wednesday with a flawless performance on the booster's second development flight.

The Centaur second-stage engines burn liquid hydrogen — and for the first time this powerful propellant was ignited in space by the United States. The two Centaur engines, with total thrust of 30,000 pounds, functioned 380 seconds and shot the spent upper stage into orbit around the earth.

The Centaur proved the liquid hydrogen—a tricky fluid which must be maintained at 423 degrees below zero — is practical as a rocket fuel. It produces 40-per cent more punch than conventional chemical rocket fuels.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has committed itself to liquid hydrogen for the upper stages of large space boosters, including the Saturn-5 rocket which is to launch the first three-man Project Apollo team toward the moon late in this decade.

WILL SURVEY MOON

Atlas-Centaur will pave the way for the manned lunar landings. It is the only large U.S. rocket that will be ready in time to carry the unmanned project Surveyor spacecraft to the moon to help select landing sites and to determine what dangers await the astronauts.

The first Atlas-Centaur vehicle encountered numerous technical troubles and was more than a year late getting off the launching pad. Then it exploded only 55 seconds after liftoff.

Rail Strike

PARIS (Reuters)—Thousands of Parisians rode to work in a special fleet of 300 army trucks Wednesday as France's second rail strike in a few months brought chaos to the country's transport. About 8,000 of the country's 240,000 coal miners also stopped work to protest wage-fixing.

Congressional and government agency investigations resulted in transfer of program responsibility from Marshall space flight centre to the Lewis research centre. In a recent report, the general accounting office accused the space agency and the rocket's prime contractor, General Dynamics - Astronautics, of bungling which delayed the program two years and cost taxpayers $100,000,000.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Hardly a man is now alive . . . hardly a newspaperman anyway . . . who remembers Grover Whalen's 1939 New York World's Fair as vividly as I do.

"Free-loading" was born out there at Flushing Meadows . . . and by the second year, when they were calling it "the Forty Fair," some of us were experts.

You take a bunch of leg-strong young reporters who've been beer-drinkers, and you send them every lunch time over to Perylon Hall to some function saluting a dignitary from a foreign country. Waiters are passing around everything from martinis to champagne; that's at the striped-pants reception preceding the luncheon. You then sit down to a luncheon with three kinds of wines. You're lucky if you're able to phone the city desk afterward to tell them there's nothing going on and can you have a Good Night.

GREAT TALENT

What a gang of reportorial talent there was covering that fair!

Three of the guys holed up in the little offices we had in the Press Building later won Pulitzer Prizes: the late Meyer Berger, Malcolm Johnson of "Waterfront" fame and Frederick Woltman, my confreres and competitors in those joyous years.

Mike Todd got famous at that Fair; Elizabeth Taylor was then a little girl of 7.

"I'm putting together a place called 'Gay New Orleans'," Mike told me a year before the Fair opened. "I'm gonna have a place called Beale Street."

"Beale Street," I mentioned to Mike, "is not in New Orleans. It's in Memphis."

"Yuh see!" crowed Mike, waving his huge cigar. "I never been to New Orleans. But I know what the public thinks they got in New Orleans."

When "Gay New Orleans" opened, Mike had stage money printed inscribed "In Todd We Trust," and you could buy New Orleans Sazeracs. Impressed with his swaggering showmanship, Grover Whalen sent Mike abroad hunting for attractions —it was then that Mike developed the passion to travel that led to his tragic death.

MIKE TODD

BILLY ROSE
. . . fortune ahead

FEUDED WITH ROSE

Mike got into a feud with Billy Rose — about the loudspeakers blaring on the midway—and Billy probably won.

At least Billy's great Aquacade show gave him the foundation of his fortune, and eventually he married his star, Eleanor Holm.

Television wasn't even an infant yet; it was barely an embryo.

One exhibit—it must have been RCA—had some telecasting that astonished the Fair visitors. It wasn't a block-to-block hookup; it was only room-to-room. A fellow working around the Fair as a sort of a glorified usher was Burr Tilstrom, who a long, long time later got famous for "Kukla, Fran and Ollie."

HELPED VIPs

Sometimes it seemed to the reporters that they were stationed there primarily to help the VIPs get into see the most popular exhibit, the General Motors Futurama.

And it could be a hard one to crack.

One day Lord Astor of England—the same one mentioned in those Profumo headlines not long ago—wished to see the Futurama out at "the World of Tomorrow." Learning that it was a jolly hard thing for a bloke to arrange, he phoned the British Ambassador in Washington. The British Ambassador, completely baffled, phoned 10 Downing Street in London, which in turn phoned the American Ambassador, who in turn phoned the State Department in Washington, which in turn phoned General Motors in New York, which in turn said, "What the hell is this? Of course we'll get him in."

Lord Astor could have accomplished it all with a nickel phone call. (There were, you see, nickel phone calls in those days . . .).

It wasn't all laughs.

I remember on Sept. 1, 1939, toward the end of that first year of the Fair, all of us running to the telegraph printers in the Press Building, which seemed to be going crazy with bells ringing, announcing flashes and bulletins.

Hitler was invading Poland.

The Second World War was on our doorstep. One day I wrote a story revealing that the Russians had decided to close the Soviet Red Star Pavilion. Russia was with Hitler then . . . remember?

It all seems a long, long time ago. We stayed out there on the midway every night till they dimmed the lights and we wrote reams of copy and we loved it so much we didn't even mention the overtime. We don't suppose we'll be quite as agile in '64 as we were a quarter of a century ago—which is what it is!—but if they'll have all those receptions and those luncheons with all those wines, and they'll invite us, we'll try!

Teens Hold Key To Our Destiny

By JACK HUTTON

Canadian teen-agers hold the key to whether Canada will exist as one nation 20 years from today.

That, in my opinion, is an inescapable conclusion after opening sessions of our Royal Commission on Biculturism. Have you been reading about them?

If you haven't, you should. They're talking about you. Once again we're hearing a senior generation admit its juniors will have to do a better job than it has done.

Many thousands of Canadians can't talk to each other despite the fact that we've officially recognized two languages as long as Canada has been a country. Unbelievable, isn't it?

Don't let anyone kid you. French Canada is very seriously reconsidering its place in our country, much like a girl friend who feels she's been taken for granted too long by her boy friend.

Does this mean anything to a teen-ager in Newfoundland, in Alberta, in Manitoba, in Prince Edward Island, in Ontario or any of the other provinces? You're darn right it does—no matter where you live in Canada.

Inevitable

One result of the unrest, already being felt, is that anyone thinking today about a career in many fields will have to inevitably think about a second language if he or she is going to succeed.

But it isn't only that. It isn't just being more successful commercially or having a greater number of jobs open. Let me explain by remembering a summer when my best friend and I were both 15-year-olds.

We discussed our plans in the spring. I was going to work in a store. "I'm going to try something different," he said. "I've been accepted to live with a French-Canadian family this summer."

Summer came and I had more change in my pocket than usual. It felt good. Once or twice I heard from my friend in Quebec. He was enjoying himself—but wasn't I earning more money?

Up until this time we kidded each other by agreeing we would speak only in French some evenings. It impressed waitresses and maybe us too. Suddenly I found this changed when my friend returned.

A Change

How could eight weeks make such a difference? I had always secretly suspected I had a better grasp of the language. My first phrase—"Comment ca va?"—was demolished by a torrent I didn't understand.

Holy smokes. I was still making reasonably good marks in French tests. But my friend could SPEAK French. Since then he has taught in France and now teaches in Quebec.

That one summer — eight short weeks—changed the entire course of his life. I still embarrass French - speaking people when I try to talk in their language. I can "get by" —but it's not the same.

What's the difference? We can both order a meal in French. We can both get our points across, even if it takes me much longer. We can both talk to French salesgirl. We both communicate.

Miss Hale

I live in one house and he lives in two; that's the difference. When I speak in French I think in English. I miss all the emotional "in" innuendoes of the other language. I catch only half of what my countryman is saying.

Holding up a word to the light of another language is like watching light from two windows glint through a polished stone. Think of the English meanings that bounce off the word "fraternity" compared to the French "fraternite."

When I began this column, I intended to soberly list the different approaches that our 10 provinces take to the teaching of French. I plead guilty to waxing emotionally about something which I think affects the future of our country.

Tune in next week and we'll make it up by looking at the different programs which are practised across this country in teaching a second language.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Patty Ann Jenik, age 13, of Visalia, Calif., for her question:

What kind of animal is the wolverine?

The scrappy wolverine got himself elected as a state animal, which suggests that some people must have admired him. Michigan is the Wolverine State, and at one time the shaggy animal ranged through all our northern states. He was driven back almost across the Canadian border, and no one knows when the last wolverine departed from the Wolverine State.

The wolverine is very unpopular with trappers of the north country, and not a single animal in his range has a good word to say for him. The Eskimos welcome a glimpse of his shaggy form shuffling over the snow. They hunt him for his fur, the only fur in the world which does not freeze in the winter weather. Eskimos use wolverine fur to cuff and collar their parkas.

This should not surprise us, for the wolverine belongs to the best-dressed family of fur bearers in the world. He is a mustelid of the Mustelidae or weasel family. Linnaeus classified him as Gulo luscus, meaning glutton and half-blind. The Algonquins named him the carcajou. Settlers and trappers of the far north call him the glutton, the badger, the cougar, the skunk-bear and the Canadian lynx.

The wolverine, without a doubt, has the unpleasant qualities of all these animals and more besides. The rough-toughie is three feet long, plus a foot of foxy tail, and he tips the scales at about 36 pounds. His loose, long fur is dark brown with a wide streak of pale brown along each of his sides. His teeth and his jaws are formidable weapons, and the fierce and fearless wolverine is always ready to fight to the kill.

Wolverine Tough Animal

He can bring down a reindeer and devour it all in a few days. He boldly attacks bears, wolves and mountain lions just for fun. These mighty animals leave their meals when the wolverine approaches rather than scrap with him. He is cunning enough to remove the bait from traps. He is brazen enough to enter a trapper's cabin and devour his store of meat. The shaggy thief also seems to be spiteful. After a raid, the traps are smashed and everything in the cabin is vandalized. This is not all. Everything he touches is befouled, for, like his cousin the skunk, the wolverine is armed with musky glands.

No one has a good word to say for the wolverine, and since he is a solitary fellow, perhaps even he cannot abide other wolverines. However, we can be objective and scientific. The wolverine to be sure is a toughie, but life in the far north is tough, also. It seems sad that such courage may finally prove worthless. He is hunted and driven back from his range, and someday the last of the scrappy wolverines may perish.

Inevitable

One result of the unrest, already being felt, is that anyone thinking today about a career in many fields will have to inevitably think about a second language if he or she is going to succeed.

But it isn't only that. It isn't just being more successful commercially or having a greater number of jobs open. Let me explain by remembering a summer when my best friend and I were both 15-year-olds.

We discussed our plans in the spring. I was going to work in a store. "I'm going to try something different," he said. "I've been accepted to live with a French-Canadian family this summer."

Summer came and I had more change in my pocket than usual. It felt good. Once or twice I heard from my friend in Quebec. He was enjoying himself—but wasn't I earning more money?

Up until this time we kidded each other by agreeing we would speak only in French some evenings. It impressed waitresses and maybe us too. Suddenly I found this changed when my friend returned.

A Change

How could eight weeks make such a difference? I had always secretly suspected I had a better grasp of the language. My first phrase—"Comment ca va?"—was demolished by a torrent I didn't understand.

Holy smokes. I was still making reasonably good marks in French tests. But my friend could SPEAK French. Since then he has taught in France and now teaches in Quebec.

That one summer — eight short weeks—changed the entire course of his life. I still embarrass French - speaking people when I try to talk in their language. I can "get by" —but it's not the same.

What's the difference? We can both order a meal in French. We can both get our points across, even if it takes me much longer. We can both talk to French salesgirl. We both communicate.

Miss Hale

I live in one house and he lives in two; that's the difference. When I speak in French I think in English. I miss all the emotional "in" innuendoes of the other language. I catch only half of what my countryman is saying.

Holding up a word to the light of another language is like watching light from two windows glint through a polished stone. Think of the English meanings that bounce off the word "fraternity" compared to the French "fraternite."

When I began this column, I intended to soberly list the different approaches that our 10 provinces take to the teaching of French. I plead guilty to waxing emotionally about something which I think affects the future of our country.

Tune in next week and we'll make it up by looking at the different programs which are practised across this country in teaching a second language.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Patty Ann Jenik, age 13, of Visalia, Calif., for her question:

What kind of animal is the wolverine?

The scrappy wolverine got himself elected as a state animal, which suggests that some people must have admired him. Michigan is the Wolverine State, and at one time the shaggy animal ranged through all our northern states. He was driven back almost across the Canadian border, and no one knows when the last wolverine departed from the Wolverine State.

The wolverine is very unpopular with trappers of the north country, and not a single animal in his range has a good word to say for him. The Eskimos welcome a glimpse of his shaggy form shuffling over the snow. They hunt him for his fur, the only fur in the world which does not freeze in the winter weather. Eskimos use wolverine fur to cuff and collar their parkas.

This should not surprise us, for the wolverine belongs to the best-dressed family of fur bearers in the world. He is a mustelid of the Mustelidae or weasel family. Linnaeus classified him as Gulo luscus, meaning glutton and half-blind. The Algonquins named him the carcajou. Settlers and trappers of the far north call him the glutton, the badger, the cougar, the skunk-bear and the Canadian lynx.

The wolverine, without a doubt, has the unpleasant qualities of all these animals —and more besides. The rough-toughie is three feet long, plus a foot of foxy tail, and he tips the scales at about 36 pounds. His loose, long fur is dark brown with a wide streak of pale brown along each of his sides. His teeth and his jaws are formidable weapons, and the fierce and fearless wolverine is always ready to fight to the kill.

Wolverine Tough Animal

He can bring down a reindeer and devour it all in a few days. He boldly attacks bears, wolves and mountain lions just for fun. These mighty animals leave their meals when the wolverine approaches rather than scrap with him. He is cunning enough to remove the bait from traps. He is brazen enough to enter a trapper's cabin and devour his store of meat. The shaggy thief also seems to be spiteful. After a raid, the traps are smashed and everything in the cabin is vandalized. This is not all. Everything he touches is befouled, for, like his cousin the skunk, the wolverine is armed with musky glands.

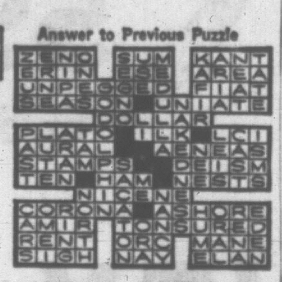

No one has a good word to say for the wolverine, and since he is a solitary fellow, perhaps even he cannot abide other wolverines. However, we can be objective and scientific. The wolverine to be sure is a toughie, but life in the far north is tough, also. It seems sad that such courage may finally prove worthless. He is hunted and driven back from his range, and someday the last of the scrappy wolverines may perish.

Appeal Hopes Dim In Cuban Conviction

OTTAWA (CP) — The same judicial tribunal that convicted Canadian Ronald Patrick Lippert of smuggling explosives into Cuba and sentenced him to 30 years in prison may also hear his appeal against the sentence, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons on Tuesday.

Mr. Martin said such a practice was unusual and not in accord with Canadian appeal procedure.

The minister, pressed by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas for more information, declined to say anything more until the result of the appeal is known.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the 30-year jail sentence against the 32-year-old Kitchener pilot was difficult to understand on humanitarian principles.

He suggested that an appeal to the original tribunal against the sentence "wouldn't be much of an appeal."

MILNE FREED

While Lippert was convicted Saturday of the smuggling charge, another Canadian—William David Milne, 31, of Montreal—was acquitted and was freed by Cuban authorities.

Mr. Douglas said reports from Havana say Lippert confessed that he was acting as an agent for the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

He asked Mr. Martin whether any investigation was planned by the Canadian government to find out whether Lippert actually was an agent for the CIA.

If he was, then there should be a protest to the United States for allowing one of its agencies to use a Canadian for a hostile act against Cuba, he said.

Mr. Martin said he would not comment on the alleged confession. He would not say whether it was true or false, or whether Canada had any "indications" that it might be true.

A FIVE-YEAR WAIT to enter Canada finally paid off but added the two youngest children to this Chinese family of 10 now settled into a new life in Victoria. Parents are Lee Kwan Lee, at centre with his wife, Lee Oi Nui, holding baby Lee Fui Ling. Mr. Lee is the son of Victoria farm and cafe proprietor, Lee Gann, 1137 Pandora, with whom all are living. Girls on the left are Lee Wai Fong, Lee Gim Fung, Lee Lin Foon, who is 18, and Lee Wai Ching at her father's knee. Boys, from left, are Lee Bark Tow, Lee Bark Sing and Lee Bark Wah. Photo was taken before they left Hong Kong in the fall. All are learning English at the same time, either at special school board classes for new Canadians, or by private tuition. Mr. Lee expects to take up his father's business when Lee senior retires.

'A Friend' Seeks Mrs. Oswald

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Maria Pultz, 36, also from the Soviet Union, is trying to find Mrs. Lee Harvey Oswald, Russian-born wife of President Kennedy's alleged assassin.

All she wants to do is help, Mrs. Pultz said as she arrived Tuesday night. She wants Mrs. Oswald to join her family in their three-bedroom home at San Antonio, Tex.

Said Mrs. Pultz, who speaks Russian and English:

"I feel sorry for her, living in America and not speaking the language. She needs someone who understands."

Mrs. Pultz' husband is an airline employee and she has three teen - age children. She finds time to sell real estate, too.

She came to the United States 15 years ago from Kiev in Russia's Ukraine.

Polaris Destroyed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Polaris A-3 missile was destroyed by the range safety officer Wednesday 51 seconds after it was launched from the surface ship observation island 30 miles offshore. It was the first failure in the last 15 firings of the long-range A-3.

15 CENT LOAN

Rare Kennedy Coins Still Taped to Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — The story of a 15-cent loan to the late President Kennedy, then a senator, was told Tuesday by a Washington man.

Millard A. Dorsey, 41, recalled that he was standing in line at a theatre in June, 1954, when he noticed the man in front of him evidently searching for additional change.

"I recognized him as Mr. Kennedy because he reminded me of Jimmie Stewart," Dorsey said. "He had $1.85 but the tickets cost $2.

"I offered to lend him the 15 cents, and he insisted that I give him my name and address. He wrote it down on a scrap of paper."

A week later, Dorsey received a note from Mrs. Kennedy. The note apologized for the delay, and added:

"I couldn't have been more touched by the way you lent us money to go to the movies and neither could my husband — but when we got home we couldn't find the piece of paper he wrote your address on and it took a week of sifting through his pockets to find it."

Taped to the letter were three nickels—which Dorsey still treasures.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS
by Barbara Brent

MONTREAL, November 28th — Oops! . . . only 22 more shopping days 'til Christmas. But I'm not going to get caught like I did last year . . . rushing around madly at the last minute because I'd waited too long to decide what to buy those special people on my gift-list. My local BANK OF MONTREAL supplies the perfect answer to this problem. You can't beat holly-decorated Christmas cheques or B of M money orders in their brightly coloured envelopes or folders for popularity. And the youngsters just love to receive a B of M passbook — with a nice balance inside — enclosed in a gay Christmas passbook cover. Why not save yourself worry and shoe-leather this year . . . do that "difficult" shopping first — at your neighbourhood B of M.

BELIEVE ME, this vegetable 'with-a-difference' is a treat to eat at any meal, noon or evening, hot or cold. It's sauerkraut and it's particularly delicious when it's LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT . . . high in appetite appeal and low in cost. Here's one way I like to serve it . . .

JIFFY WINTER SALAD

2 15-oz. can (1¾ cups) Libby's Sauerkraut, drained; ½ cup commercial sour cream; 1 to 2 teaspoons caraway seeds. Combine drained sauerkraut and sour cream; turn into a small salad bowl; sprinkle with caraway seeds. Chill or serve at once. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

I know you'll agree with me that Libby's Sauerkraut is something . . . crisp, mellow and uniform in flavour, it's 'just right' — hot or cold!

LIKE SO MANY PEOPLE, I insist on making cereal part of my breakfast. It's light and provides necessary food energy. Occasionally, however, I want a change from the puffed, flaked and sugared cereals which children so dearly enjoy. When that happens, I reach for POST GRAPE-NUTS. Easy-to-eat Grape-Nuts is a wheat cereal — concentrated — with food energy in every spoonful. A rich, crunchy, nut-sweet flavour that's so different. Try it. You'll agree — a change to Grape Nuts is a welcome change. Start your day a little bit better with a cereal fresh from Post. GRAPE-NUTS!

BEWARE AND TAKE CARE . . . for dangerous germs lurk in every drain! That's why I urge you to enlist the aid of GILLETT'S DRAIN CLEANER . . . because its special churning, boiling action completely scours out every bit of the germ-breeding muck that collects in clogged-up drains. You'll never miss the time it takes to put just 2 tablespoons of Gillett's Drain Cleaner in every drain, every week . . . that's all! So keep your kitchen sink a safe place to wash your family's food and dishes, keep your bathroom tub and basin wonderfully clean . . . by making one day a week your "Gillett's Drain Cleaner Day"!

ONCE YOU'VE TRIED IT, I'm sure you'll agree that the greatest difference in your family wash is the difference CALGON makes. Not a soap — not a detergent . . . Calgon is the highly effective water conditioner that cleans away washing film — the "bathtub ring" of the washing machine. Simply add it to your wash water along with less soap or detergent . . . and to the rinse, too. Calgon cleans away washing film, restores brightness and natural softness. Linens 'sparkle' with cleanliness . . . colours come out bright and clear . . . towels fluff up like new. Washer makers recommend Calgon water conditioner and so do I.

DO YOUR HOUSEHOLD CHORES seem twice as difficult because you've spent sleepless nights with the pains of neuritis, rheumatism or arthritis? Then here's wonderful news for you. Thousands of men and women get long-lasting relief from such suffering by taking TEMPLETON'S TRC's, Canada's largest-selling medicine . . . specially made for the relief of such pain. And more good news! . . . you can get even faster, DOUBLE ACTION relief by applying Templeton's FLAME-cream Liniment externally at the same time as you take TRC's internally!

'A CURSE TO BOOT'

Utah Negroes Believe They Suffer the Most

By R. GREG NOKES

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—"It's bad enough being a Negro any place, but in Utah you're told you're bearing some damned curse to boot."

The speaker is a Negro, one of only about 5,000 in this state where more than 60 per cent of the white population are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter - day Saints (Mormon).

At least one Negro leader, Charles Nabors, feels Utah "has potentially the worst race problem in the United States." Nabors is a member of the executive board of the Utah chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"If a state of 1,000,000 people can't include 5,000 Negroes in its social, economic and political structure in a Christian, democratic, civilized way," he says, "the state is in a completely deplorable condition."

Many of the Negroes' complaints are the same as those heard elsewhere — discrimination in employment, in housing and in public accommodations.

But the Utah Negro also feels there is some religious reason to discrimination against him.

CAN'T BE PRIESTS

The Mormon Church, which has its world headquarters here, admits Negroes to its membership, but bars them from the priesthood, a status to which church members of other races, including Orientals, are freely admitted.

As a result, the church claims no more than a handful of Negroes among its approximately 2,000,000 members throughout the world.

The reason the Negro is excluded is not entirely clear. Many Mormons believe the Negro is a descendant of Cain and therefore carries the curse God put on Cain for slaying his brother Abel.

There are some references to this in Mormon literature.

However, Hugh B. Brown, 79-year-old counsellor to church President David O. McKay and one of the three top officials of the church, said he knows of no firm church doctrine that prevents the Negro from having rights of the priesthood.

"He simply is not in sufficient numbers in the church and is not advanced to the position where he could assume leadership," Brown said.

The church leader said Mormons "believe the Negro is entitled to all freedoms and rights that any other American is entitled to under the Constitution."

Like most Negroes outside the Deep South, the Utah Negro feels he is most discriminated against in housing and employment. There is not a single Negro doctor or lawyer in the state and there are only about 10 teachers.

Adam Mickey Duncan, a white lawyer and chairman of the Utah advisory committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, said that with a few exceptions the plight of the Negro in Utah isn't any worse than in neighboring states although, he hastens to add, "it certainly isn't any better."

Duncan said he doesn't know of "a single decent apartment house in the state which will rent to a Negro. And, if a real estate broker sold to a Negro in a white residential area, he would be blackballed by his profession."

A committee survey of public facilities in Salt Lake City in 1961 showed that the Negro is barred from 12 per cent of all cafes, restaurants and taverns; 72 per cent of the hotels; 49 per cent of the motels and 80 per cent of the beauty shops.

HOUSING PROBLEM

A. B. Weight, executive vice-president of the Salt Lake Real Estate Board, admits there is a problem in finding housing for Negroes in the city.

He adds, however, that "it is a fundamental right in America for a person to own property . . . and to rent to whom he pleases."

In certain areas, the Negro says there has been some progress.

The Utah AFL-CIO recently passed a strong resolution on civil rights, aimed at weeding out discrimination in unions.

The Mormon Church has remained aloof from a current drive for equal rights, and integrationists feel this is hurting their cause.

However, at its 133rd semi-annual conference here Oct. 4-6, the church made its strongest official pronouncement on civil rights in some time.

Brown told the 8,000 persons jammed into the Mormon tabernacle that the church has "no doctrine, belief or practice intended to deny the enjoyment of full civil rights by any person regardless of race, color or creed."

He urged both members and non-members to "commit themselves to the establishment of full civil equality for all of God's children."

WESTERN RED CEDAR
1½"x10" Sawn-textured
FOREST SIDING

How does "FOREST" compare with other sidings?

Its greater thickness adds structural strength to the building. Its snug "back to the wall" fitting makes for warmth and fast application . . . because it goes on like shiplap. The greater volume of "FOREST" siding gives a high insulation value.

When stain is applied to sawn-textured (sometimes known as rough faced) "FOREST" siding the distinctive character of the knots, burl and grain is emphasized. Stains come in a variety of colors such as Maplewood, Mahogany, Redwood Cedar, Wheat Tone and Flamingo. Maintenance costs are extremely low.

ELECTROHOME SPRINGAIRE
Air Circulator-Filter

Electrohome Springaire with the built-in Carbon Filter and the Permachem Filter gives you fresh, clean odor-free air all the year round . . . economically and efficiently. The Springaire is light enough to carry and provides fresh air where it's needed; whether it's in the kitchen, bathroom, smoke-filled living room during parties or just to filter out dust, lint and pollen before it can smudge up your home or aggravate allergies. The chores of dusting and wall washing can be reduced. Springaire filters out even the finest dust that settles on furniture, sofa draperies, covers mirrors, windows and crystal.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CATCHING UP: Two-year affiliation agreements between CBC and virtually all of its English and French television network affiliates have been forwarded to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Stephen

CBC's vice-president of corporate affairs R. C. Fraser said: "The corporation is delighted with the co-operation shown by its member stations in renewing the agreements."

"There were no major differences in our negotiations, and any problems which did come forward were solved on a mutually agreeable basis," he said.

The agreements, for a further two-year period ending Sept. 30, 1965, set out the specific details of the relationship between the corporation and its affiliated stations from coast to coast, including the specific times reserved on all stations for network programs.

If you've ever wondered what the agreements call for and how many stations are involved perhaps the following will be helpful. CHEK-TV, by the way, is included with others across the country in coming to terms. The broad terms were agreed upon during meetings of the CBC's television network advisory committee.

The committee comprises representatives of the privately-owned affiliates and CBC and meets about four times a year. A full meeting of all affiliates with CBC is held annually.

The agreements are basically the same as the previous two-year agreements, and provide for a minimum 36½ hours a week of reserved time. Over 50 hours of network programs are available, and many stations take more than the minimum.

CBC's English TV network comprises 123 stations and rebroadcasting stations, including 37 privately-owned affiliates and their satellites. The French network of 31 stations and rebroadcasting stations includes nine full-fledged affiliates plus satellites.

Affiliation agreements are filed with the BBG in accordance with BBG regulations.

SHORT CUTS: A 90-minute CBC television production of The Gondoliers, an operetta by Gilbert and Sullivan, has been sold to the southern Ireland television network. It will be telecast in southern Ireland during the Christmas season. An earlier CBC-TV Festival production of HMS Pinafore was purchased by the Irish network and telecast earlier this fall . . .

Garry Moore will mark his 5,500th broadcast on "The Garry Moore Show" next week. His record, one of the longest in broadcasting, includes his activities in both radio and television . . .

Bernard Braden, 47, a Vancouver-born actor, was recently named "factual personality of the year" in Britain's annual television awards. It was for his weekly 16-minute show which consists of snappy song-and-satire reviews of topical events.

Former City War Veteran Dies at 59

Army veteran Major Edmund Boothroyd Corby who came to Victoria at an early age and remained here until the Second World War died in London, England, aged 59.

Maj. Corby, born in Stamford, England, attended South Park School in Victoria and was employed by the Royal Bank here before joining the army.

He served as adjutant of District Depot II at Bay Street Armoury and then as commandant of Otter Point army camp before going overseas.

At the end of the war he took a job with the British War Ministry and continued to live there since that time.

He is survived by the widow, Marina, in England, a Russian princess who fled from Russia at the time of the revolution; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Corby, and one brother, Rick, of Victoria.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—A small rebel uprising by supporters of former president Ngo Dinh Diem was crushed Monday by government troops, it was disclosed today.

CLERK, 45, CHARGED WITH QUEEN THREAT

LONDON (Reuters)—A 45-year-old clerk was formally remanded in custody for a second week here today on a charge of writing a letter threatening to kill the Queen.

Londoner George Mead was alleged to have handed a letter containing the threat to a sacrist at St. Paul's Cathedral here Nov. 17.

A detective said he saw the prisoner at a police station Nov. 19 and told him he understood Mead gave a letter to a sacrist in which he threatened to kill the Queen. Mead was alleged to have said: "Yes, that is right."

MODEL SHIP BUILDER

Harrowing Days On Wreck Recalled

HALIFAX (CP) — When James Eastman was completing the model of a three-masted schooner, he had no trouble remembering details of the rigging and deck - fitting. They were etched on his mind one wild night in the Atlantic 40 years ago.

Mr. Eastman, 58, now is a maintenance repairman at a vocational school here. Because of a heart condition he takes things easy. In spare moments he builds models of ships.

During the two weeks he worked on the model of the schooner Nancy Lee, each step further refreshed his memory of the great sea that laid open her starboard side and swept clean the deck in 1923.

James Eastman was 18 then, the cook aboard the 500 - ton schooner on a voyage from St. John's, Nfld., to Bermuda with a cargo of salt fish.

Twenty-one days out and in a position which he remembers only as 1,900 miles west of Ireland, a hurricane unleashed its fury on the Nancy Lee. Mr. Eastman says he learned later that more than 40 ships went to the bottom as a result of the storm, some with all hands.

SEVEN-DAY BLOW

One big wave caught the schooner before she could rise to meet it. The starboard side opened as planks were stove in and seams cracked apart.

Bulwarks, lifeboats and the deckhouse that contained the galley went overboard.

For seven days the storm raged. The crew, at times up to their armpits in water as waves swept the deck, pumped frantically trying to keep the Nancy Lee afloat.

"During those seven torturing days we were overboard more than we were on deck, with lines tied to us so we wouldn't be washed away."

On the evening of the seventh day the red and green sidelights of a vessel hove into view. James Eastman hauled his mattress on deck and set it afire as a distress signal. It wasn't until 3 a.m., however, that the other ship noticed the Nancy Lee's predicament.

"Just as I stepped over the railing of the Canadian vessel that rescued us, the Nancy Lee plunged to her grave."

The rescue ship took the crew to Ireland.

Using little, time-aged stills like this one helps to give our gin its unusual character and dryness. And so does the skill of our master distillers—men like Jack Forristal.

The old copper Pot Still he stands by—and swears by—was making gin in England 100 years ago. It came to Canada in the 1920's, when we imported the complete Burnett's distillery—to make gin from Sir Robert Burnett's famous old English formula.

Such stills are miniatures by modern standards. But they exactly suit our methods, which are rather like home cooking.

We hover over Sterling Gin during every step of its distillation. And we know our veteran Pot Stills as a good cook knows her seasoned pots and pans.

If we switched to mass-producing monsters, we'd save money, time and trouble.

But our gin wouldn't taste the same.

Labor Leader Criticizes Student 'Cut-Rate' Plan

Plans for university students to obtain cut-rate prices from Victoria stores today were criticized by labor leader A. W. Toone, who said it would be like granting 2,000 people an exclusive "sale."

The secretary of Victoria Labor Council said if certain business are able to offer an immediate discount to a group of 2,000—the University of Victoria enrolment — not shared by the whole community and without loss of profit, "these operations should be looked into."

The proposal was likened to a sale, with the difference that the whole community is eligible to take part in a sale.

"I think such activity should take place in a co-operative or credit union, rather than an independent association," Mr Toone said.

ALL MEMBERS SHARE

"In this way all the members share in the savings, and through an increase in buying volume, they share in the profits."

Chamber of Commerce manager John Coppinger told student representative Roger Barnsley he does not favor requesting the business community to grant discounts.

This would be unfair, he said, when other groups such as pensioners are excluded.

Also, the plan could alienate part of the community, thus jeopardizing university development fund-raising.

Barnsley, who is Canadian Union of Students chairman suggested a selective system that would invite certain firms to participate in a discount plan, starting with beauty shops and service stations.

He said there has been neutral or favorable reaction from businesses.

Student council has adopted a motion to approve in principle.

Boy Shoots Sister, 13, Cleaning Gun

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—A 13-year-old girl was accidentally shot and killed by her brother Wednesday at their home 40 miles west of this.

Police said the victim, Susan Palmantier, was shot in the face as her brother Jack, 19, was cleaning his rifle in the family home at Riske Creek.

The girl's brother said he went squirrel hunting a few days ago and thought he had emptied his .22-calibre rifle.

The youth said he pumped the bolt-action rifle several times to make sure it was clear. Police said he then pulled the trigger and a live round in the gun went off.

RCMP at Alexis Creek said the shot hit the girl in the head.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Josephine Palmantier, was at home when the accident occurred.

No inquest has been ordered yet and RCMP are investigating to see if charges might be laid.

AWAY 2 YEARS

Yvonne Back On Job

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—When Canadian-born actress Yvonne Decarlo appears as a guest star next Wednesday on The Virginian, she will end an enforced two-year leave from television.

Miss Decarlo, a native of Vancouver, always has been in demand for motion picture and TV parts. She is the wife of Robert Morgan, a top Hollywood stunt man.

Almost two years ago, Morgan lost a leg when a stunt involving a train went awry in Arizona. For almost a year, Morgan was recuperating in a Phoenix hospital.

Yvonne limited herself to work that would keep her close to her sons, six and four, and permit weekend commuting to Phoenix.

Morgan has made a great recovery, and is thinking about picking up a new career — "something that has to do with golf." And, with the family reunited in Hollywood, Yvonne has picked up loose ends.

"John Wayne came up with a part for me in McClintock," said Yvonne, "and that was really what got me started again."

"I went on to the new Bob Hope movie, and then a western. And now I'm back in television.

"Everybody has just been marvellous."

Best of all, she says, in The Virginian, she plays an opera singer — not the usual girl-around-the-saloon which is the lot of an actress too exotic in appearance to play a school marm.

"It's a happy beginning," Yvonne reflected.

Doctrine Research Suggested

(CP from Reuters-AP)

VATICAN CITY — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger recommended to the ecumenical council this week that Roman Catholics and other Christians carry out joint research on doctrinal problems.

In opening the debate on the first chapter of a draft decree on Christian unity, the Montreal archbishop urged the council not to give a "monolithic" idea to Christian unity.

Leger said that what he described as separated Christians had their own traditions and it was only natural they wanted to preserve them.

"In our insistence on unity, we have too often lost sight of the advantages of diversity," he was quoted by council press spokesmen as saying. "When properly understood and promoted, diversity does no harm to unity.

The Canadian prelate said "immobilism" was a great obstacle to Christian unity work.

The picket was carried out by priests distributing leaflets signed by 25 bishops from 13 nations urging the assembly to vote against the decree.

The leaflets said the text of the decree was "hardly fitting" for an ecumenical council. They claimed it did not answer the questions of Christians, especially those who were experts in the communications field.

The decree urges that press, radio, television and movies be used for the good of humanity.

MOTHERS SHOUT

'Brotherhood Red Conspiracy'

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A band of angry mothers charged yesterday that there is a conspiracy afoot to brainwash children with schoolbooks that slip pleas for world government into examples of bad grammar.

Twenty-six women appeared before the Mississippi textbook purchasing board at the invitation of Gov. Ross Barnett to demand that seven state school books be discarded.

In addition to propagandizing for world government, the women said, the books support the United Nations, the National Council of Churches and "Belief in the brotherhood of all people."

The board voted against any immediate purge of the books although chairman Barnett sided with the women.

Mrs. Harry Artz Alexander of Grenada, long-time leader of the Daughters of the American Revolution and chief spokesmn for the group, said children are "victims of a conspiracy."

Another woman told the board that refusing to throw out the books would let "atheists and communists take over."

Mrs. Alexander said she and her companions, members of the Citizens Educational Association, came to the meeting at Barnett's request.

"We're not stopping until we have completely made available to young Mississippians the proper textbooks," she said.

Teachers, she suggested, cannot "recognize subversion."

Mrs. Alexander held aloft a copy of "English in Action," which she said "tells the child that if he is prejudiced, he is wrong."

"This whole book concerns racial agitation," she said.

She pointed to an example of faulty sentence structure which read: "In my opinion, I think world government is necessary and attainable."

"Did you ever see a more subtle way of teaching a child that world government is good?" she asked.

The textbook "Challenges to American Youth," Mrs. Alexander said, promotes "The National Council of Churches . . . the social gospel . . . the brotherhood of all people."

"God is not the father of all," she announced. "He is the father of those who believe in him. There is not a brotherhood of all people."

Two other books, "The United States in Literature" and "The Making of Modern America," recommend the works of dozens of authors, like Jack London and Archibald MacLeish, with "either Communist or pro-Communist records" or affiliation with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, she said.

Otis Allen, president of the State Association of School Administrators, said that "if we're looking for a Communist here today, I think we're looking in the driest hole in the nation when we start looking in Mississippi."

CRUSHED UNDER CAR BOY, 3, CRITICAL

By LESLIE MILLIN

A three-year-old boy on a tricycle was crushed under the wheels of a car near the James Bay fishermen's ramp at noon today.

City police rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was described as in critical condition with multiple injuries.

His name, and the names of two drivers involved, are being withheld by police.

Shipyard workers atop a ferry being built at nearby VMD shipyard said they heard screeching tires on Dallas Road, and looked down to see two cars apparently in a head-on collision.

When they ran down to investigate, they found the cars had touched only lightly—after one driver apparently swerved into the other lane to avoid the child and tricycle in his path.

Both cars, and the tricycle, were stopped a few feet beyond the driveway of 72 Dallas Road when police arrived.

The tricycle was under the passenger-side front wheel of a black, late-model sedan that was over in the southbound lane near the launching ramp.

Both cars were damaged only lightly.

Road surface was dry, and there were only short skid marks near the rear wheels of the black sedan, indicating low speed.

GASTOWN HYSTERIA OUT OF GAS?

PRE-GAME HUSH SETTLES OVER CITY

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — This city has finally achieved the blase plateau in its attitude toward the Grey Cup.

It its fourth try at hosting the biggest sports spectacle in the land, Vancouver is currently in a state of unusual calm as the day approaches. The numbing effect of the Kennedy tragedy of course is the big factor but even before it, the natives were showing no signs of the tribal rowdiness that marked the 1955, 1958 and 1960 games here.

The football-haters in the city (and there certainly are plenty of them — natural products of the gridiron worship the prevails in high places) are at last happy. They maintain that the whole show has now been put in perspective. They're glad to see the Grey Cup reduced to the status of a simple football game.

If the rah-rah atmosphere doesn't reach the heights of hysteria of the other three Grey Cups in the west, it won't be for lack of planning. The Grey Cup festival which officials have done up with a glittering array of events and the parade, as usual, is expected to be the best ever. It's just that the sickening events of Dallas have upstaged the whole show and Vancouver citizens don't feel much like frolicking in the streets — not this week anyway.

Prime Minister Pearson has cancelled his planned appearance as star guest at the festivities but otherwise everything else will go on as scheduled, when Hamilton Tiger-Cats and the Lions bare claws.

Vancouver organizers, eager to show up the Toronto versions of the football classic as rather dull affairs, have packed dozen of events into this week. There's everything from an octopus hunt to a tiddleywink tournament to frostbite races to a tennis tournament.

Officials even managed the formidable feat of listing Friday night's appearance of the Royal London Philharmonic Orchestra as a Grey Cup event. As yet, there has been no rush or VANCOUVER (CP) — The weatherman, off in some of his recent predictions, held firm today to his forecast that it will be cloudy with some rain on Grey Cup Day.

Vancouver today is basking in sunshine for the third consecutive day. The good weather has been a help towards drying out the field at Empire Stadium for the Saturday game.

Once Near Neighbors

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas News reported today that investigators have learned that Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin of President Kennedy, and night club owner Jack Ruby who killed Oswald, apparently were former neighbors.

The News said unnamed peace officers disclosed that a man matching the description of Oswald once rented a room close to Ruby's home.

"This could be the key that we have been seeking," the newspaper quoted one officer as commenting.

So far authorities have not said whether they found any ties between Ruby and Oswald.

In other developments today, a New Orleans library official said the FBI had examined records which showed Oswald last summer checked out books on President Kennedy, political assassination, spying and Communism.

Oswald was a native of New Orleans and spent several months there before going to Texas last August.

Chief librarian Jerome Cushman said he would release only the titles of the books which appeared on Oswald's library card for different dates earlier this year.

They included "Portrait of a President," a Kennedy biography by William Manchester; "The Huey Long Murder Case," an account of the assassination of Louisiana Sen. Huey P. Long, by Hermann B. Deutsch; and a number of cloak-and-dagger novels.

Also on the list was Robert Payne's biography of Red China's Mao Tse-Tung, "Portrait of a Revolutionary" and "Russia Under Khrushchev" by Alexander Werth.

RE-ENACTED

The assassination of the president was re-enacted Wednesday when a grey convertible, similar to the black one in which President Kennedy made his last ride, rolled past the Texas school book depository building.

A man and woman sat in the back seat, just as president and Mrs. Kennedy did last Friday. Two men were in the front.

Looking down on this scene were investigators, and a cameraman. They perched in the same window from which the fatal shots were fired.

This was another phase of the

FOES STILL THERE

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Millions of Americans sit down to their traditional Thanksgiving dinner today, their holiday darkened by thoughts of their assassinated president. But though the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy has aroused a flood of national sympathy, it appears to have left the political climate unchanged.

In fact, the U.S. now appears to be moving towards a period of shaky indecision and legislative paralysis as wrangling within Congress returns, shattering hope for early passage of Kennedy's key programs as a memorial to the fallen leader.

Though President Lyndon B. Johnson fervently appealed Wednesday for swift approval of such important bills as those strengthening Negro rights and reducing federal taxation, the old opposing forces clearly indicated the death of Kennedy has not changed their opinions or positions. Their opposition will continue.

Indeed, one Republican congressman, Bruce Alger, an extreme rightwinger from Dallas, Tex., where Kennedy was slain, accused Johnson of playing politics with Kennedy's death and warned he will continue to battle the encroachment of big government on American liberty as he has done in the past.

And Senator Harry Byrd, Virginia Democrat who heads the Senate finance committee, has made clear he sees no opportunity at this time for early passage of the tax cuts proposed by Kennedy. The conservative Byrd opposed the tax cuts in the past and as committee chairman has effectively bottled up the legislation in his committee.

Johnson had hoped in his first speech to Congress to urge legislators to remain at work until the key bills had been passed. But a quick private survey by his aides indicated the situation was hopeless at this time. Johnson instead called in his speech for "earliest possible

Calver said he gave the 55-year-old president a "complete and thorough" physical examination within the last six or eight weeks—including an electrocardiograph test of the heart that suffered a coronary attack in 1955. The then vice-president was found to be in "excellent shape," the physician said in a telephone interview. He is in Florida.

MP CLAIMS ATOM ARMS 'BROUGHT IN SECRETLY'

EDMONTON (UPI)—Progressive Conservative member of Parliament William Skoreyko (Edmonton East) has charged that nuclear weapons have been brought secretly into Canada.

Skoreyko told a constituency meeting Wednesday night that the weapons were brought in from the United States and taken to the Bomarc missile base near North Bay, Ont.

Skoreyko said his information came from "very good authority" but refused to disclose how he had learned of the move.

The MP said there are "thousands" of American troops in North Bay and nuclear arms already have arrived.

"I don't want to drop any bombshells," he said. "I hope the minister of defence knows."

IN VENEZUELA

Red Terrorists Grab Aircraft

CARACAS (AP) — Terrorists seized a twin-engine Venezuelan airliner on a domestic flight today, hurled pro-Communist leaflets over the city of Ciudad Bolivar and then forced the crew to land the plane on Trinidad.

This incident came as police combed Caracas for Lt.-Col. James K. Chenault, a U.S. Army officer kidnapped by pro-Cuban foes of President Romulo Betancourt. All exits from the Venezuelan capital were blocked.

Armed with machine-guns, five men and a woman, who were among 14 passengers, seized control of the plane, a Convair, after it took off from Ciudad Bolivar, 110 miles east of Caracas, for a flight to Maiquetia, six miles north of this Venezuelan capital. The plane, owned by the National Avensa Airline, carried a crew of three. The pilot was John Power.

Power landed the plane at Port of Spain, the Trinidad capital, in the Caribbean 380 miles east of Caracas.

Presumably the plane seizure was carried out by members of the pro-Cuban Armed Forces of National Liberation, which is trying with a campaign of terror to overthrow Betancourt and block a presidential election set for Sunday.

All the passengers of the plane were believed to be Venezuelans.

A dispatch from Port of Spain indicated the terrorists were arrested promptly upon landing.

Antonio Avila, a passenger, said the group pulled their guns on the crew shortly after the takeoff at 6 a.m.

The Venezuelan ambassador in Port of Sapin, Rafael Echevarria, described the group as extremists financed by Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba. He said efforts have begun to extradite them.

TO BOOST EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

'Have-Not' Provinces To Get More Money

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The Pearson government, while delaying any overhaul of the tax-sharing system pending a study in depth, indicated Wednesday it will propose to the federal-provincial conference Friday an increase in equalization payments starting next April 1.

It is likely to work out details of the proposal today while the conference leaves the central issue of fiscal relations to break into committees.

Premiers made no comments when they went to the committee meetings this morning. Premiers Stanfield, Shaw, Lesage, Robarts, and Roblin attended a committee meeting on pensions, which proved to be the largest meeting.

Other committee sessions were held on the economy, Indian - Eskimo administration, and lotteries.

A committee on health and welfare was to meet later so that its members, including chairman Judy LaMarsh, national health and welfare minister, could attend the pensions committee, over which Mr. Pearson presided.

It was announced at the lunch breakup of the committee meetings that the conference delegates would go back into plenary session tonight to discuss the broad question of cost-sharing programs.

The conference was to discuss in a plenary meeting Friday proposed changes in the tax-sharing agreements between Ottawa and the provinces, including equalization.

Prime Minister Pearson's statement came early Wednesday. A federal source said there was "very little opposition" to the federal position on equalization.

This appeared to be the main import of the federal stand:

1. It is ready to reshape the tax-sharing system, and recognizes the provinces' needs for more money—especially for education. It pointed out that progressively - rising federal tax abatements—to 18 per cent next fiscal year—recognize these rising needs. But in the light of current studies by tax commissions, and the need for a full

Premiers Talk Pensions

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson today led most provincial premiers in a detailed discussion of the controversial Canada Pension Plan — the proposed federal scheme to provide extra benefits to contributing workers.

Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec (which has served notice it will contract-out of the plan) and Ontario (which has expressed several reservations) were said to have participated most actively in the debate.

Neither Ontario Premier John Robarts nor Quebec Jean Lesage would make any detailed comments to newsmen. The committee meeting, one of four being held within the federal - provincial conference, was to continue this afternoon.

Commission Urged For B.C. Hospitals

LANGLEY (CP)—Dr. Patrick McGeer, Liberal MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey, has proposed that a politically independent commission be established to manage the affairs of British Columbia's hospitals.

He said the commission, which would give the health professions a voice in the operation of the hospitals, would help resolve conflicts between the hospitals and the provincial government and would remove the hospital problem from the field of partisan politics.

Dr. McGeer told the Langley Liberal Association Wednesday that the conflict, which flared again recently at a B.C. Hospitals Association convention, is a symptom of a disease which "like any other will tend to get worse until a proper diagnosis is made and an effective treatment program started."

WIRE BRIEFS

Security Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson got a quick briefing on United States security today and then turned to the traditional U.S. observance of Thanksgiving Day. He conferred at his home in the Spring Valley district with John A. McCone, director of Central Intelligence Agency.

Ticats Favored

TORONTO (CP) — Local oddsmakers have established Hamilton Tiger-Cats 7-to-5 favorites in Saturday's battle with B.C. Lions for the Grey Cup. They give the Ticats a two-point edge on the points line.

RCAF Jet Crashes

Warrant Issued

LONDON (Reuters) — A judge today issued a warrant for the arrest of Terence Chandler, 23, one of the leaders of Britain's anti-nuclear Committee of 100 which advocates civil disobedience.

No Agreement

Bennett 'Not Satisfied' With Conference Progress

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA — The B.C. government is not yet ready to assess the federal government's proposal for increased equalization grants to "have not" provinces.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today he was examining the proposition and was not yet prepared to announce a position on it.

He said he was "not too satisfied with progress" being made by the current federal-provincial conference here, characterizing it with the quotation, "the more things change, the more they are the same."

The B.C. premier had demanded at the opening of the conference the total abolition of equalization. His brief said equalization "does not contribute to national harmony or efficient use of public moneys."

UNDUE SUBSIDIES

"The grants are undue subsidies to certain provinces at the expense of others," the B.C. submission stated. As one of the "have" provinces, B.C. receives no equalization.

A full assessment of the equalization proposal, Mr. Bennett said today, was not possible until all details of the scheme are given the provincial premiers. It is expected the proposal for amending the equalization policy will be outlined in detail to the conference by Prime Minister Pearson on Friday.

Meantime, Mr. Bennett's attorney - general, Robert Bonner,

Thousands View Grave

From all walks of life they came to pay their respects at the Arlington National Cemetery burial site, located on a grassy hill overlooking the nation's capital.

'KOREAN KIDDIES FUND'

LUCKY COOLIE LABORER EARNS 12 CENTS DAILY

Fifty per cent of the employable labor force in Korea is unemployed. They have nothing.

The others have something —but not much.

In South Korea, a country not much bigger than Vancouver Island over 20,000,000 people are struggling to survive. Many are refugees who fled from the Communist north in search of freedom. What possessions they owned were left behind.

Today they live in a democracy but what freedom do they have when their bodies are chilled to the bone and their stomachs are empty?

A laborer, if he is lucky enough to find employment as an A-frame carrier, similar to a Chinese coolie, will earn 12 cents a day.

Average Korean family is three to four children. That means five people must try to live on 12 cents a day. Even in Korea that is not enough for one meal apiece.

Three cents will buy less than a handful of barley and eight cents will buy a bowl of soup made of scraps and pealings sold at the 8th Army Officer's Mess.

The Unitarian Service Committee provides milk and barley when possible but their supply is never large enough to go around all the millions that are hungry day after day.

Canadians helped to fight for their freedom, but the battle will be lost unless they keep on fighting.

Food must be supplied so they will at least have freedom from hunger. This is a freedom you can give when you give to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund."

Total contributions now stands at $1,222.27.

Donations should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas. Acknowledgement of gifts will be made in a daily list published in the Times and tax deductible receipts will be issued. The Bank of Montreal main branch, Yates and Douglas, will also accept donations.

Donations of clothing should be delivered to Dowell's Cartage and Storage, 1117 Wharf St.

Arthur Mayse

On my desk today is an advertising page torn from an American hunting and fishing magazine. It gives prices, specifications and pictures of 17 rifles, shotguns and derringers. For a number of these, ammunition is also listed.

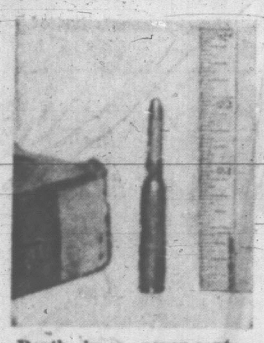

A gun buff, a boy, or even a man plotting murder can spend an hour over that graphic page. Few of the firearms are high-priced, and one is cheap even for an outmoded military arm.

'Only 36" overall, weighs only 5½ lbs. Shows only slight use, lightly oiled and head spaced, ready for shooting. Turned down bolt, thumb safety, 6-shot, clip fed. Rear sight adjustable for elevation. Fast loading and fast firing.'

To an economy-minded assassin, the price of this old but serviceable tool was most attractive.

Klein's asked a mere $11.88 American for the carbine. Fitted with a 'brand new good quality 4x scope', it was offered for $19.95, and a further

$7.50 purchased 108 rounds of ammunition. The firm tossed in a free magazine clip.

So for $27.45 plus postage and express, Lee H. Oswald was able to buy his president killing gear. Since the terms were $1 down and five months to pay, his cash outlay for his deed may not have exceeded three dollars.

* * *

In his Broad Street store, gunsmith Fred Behnsen dug up further information about the cut-rate weapon.

Specifically, it's an Italian Mannlicher magazine (Carcano) carbine, 1891 model. It was named "Carcano" after the ordnance expert at Turin arsenal who changed the breech mechanism to speed up a bolt-operated action borrowed from Austria.

Teamed with soft-nosed ammunition, these compact little Mannlichers make a pretty fair deer rifle. The speedy action helps, and the 18½ inch barrel is right for brush work . . . or for poking through a window overlooking a parade route.

I suspect that Oswald got in some practice with his telescopic-sighted weapon before he left for his brief and bloody appearance on the stage of history. Practice makes perfect: no doubt quite a few empty hulls from the 108-round supply are tarnishing on some rattler flat near Dallas.

The box of 6 mm. (.236 calibre) Italian military ammo Fred Behnsen produced holds cartridges identical with those that fed Oswald's carbine.

Here I can't be exact, but I would guess that the long, slender, steel-jacketed bullets necked into the brass centre-fire casings weigh about 140 grains. The smokeless powder propellant and the rather light slug aren't hefty enough for big game—for a grizzly, say—but have proved adequate in two wars and a presidential assassination.

From the autopsy report, it appears that the thorough-going killer rendered his slugs more lethal by trimming back the hard-metal jackets to expose the lead. The resultant "mushrooming" on impact would ensure maximum damage.

So much for the apparatus which on the blackest Friday we've known for many a year, fired a shot heard round the world.

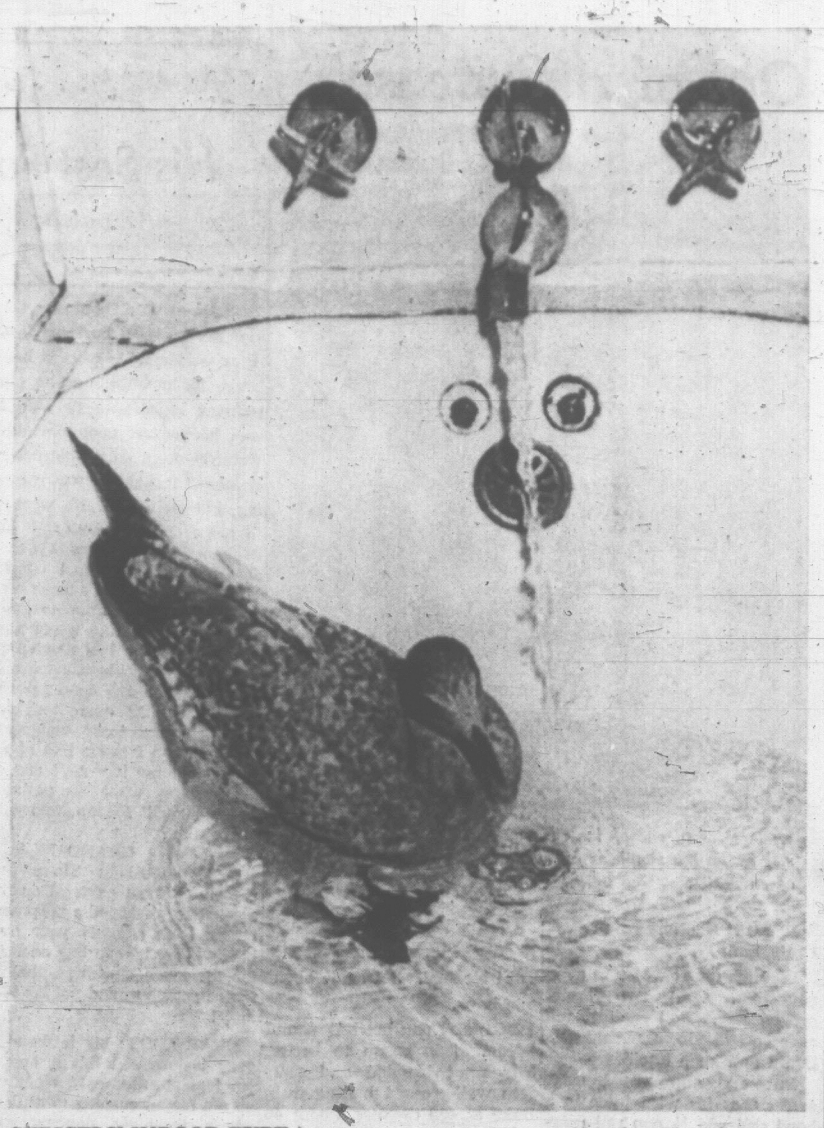

I'm not at all sure it should have been so readily available to a man who for months and years had been stoking fires that flared into murder.

Don't, please, label me as one of those who would outlaw firearms because people can and do get killed with them. I like guns, and one time or another, have owned quite a few.

At the same time, I'm glad to note that the United States proposes to tighten up its regulations governing the sale of firearms, and, I think we could take a thoughtful look at our own.

'One dollar puts your hand on these guns,' the Chicago mail order house proclaimed to adults and minors, good men and bad, with impartial generosity.

That, in the case of Lee Oswald, proved an open invitation to murder.

STRICTLY INDOOR TYPE is young seagull who was adopted three weeks ago by Mrs. Helmet Cordsen, 67 Menzies. Kindly lady noticed bird in distress, caught between two logs on Dallas Road beach while other gulls screamed overhead. She brought bird home, amputated an injured portion of wing. Gull is now tame, has morning swim and drink in bathtub, eats dog food with great enthusiasm. (Times photo.)

Free Water Ends For C. Saanich

City Giving Up Role Of Fairy Godmother

Mayor R. B. Wilson today indicated Central Saanich's free water ride is over.

"The city can't go on playing fairy godmother to Central Saanich so it can have free water," said the mayor. He said a price will have to be negotiated—either as a flat rate lease or a consumption charge approved by the Public Utilities Commission.

The mayor made the statement after Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee and a delegation met City Hall officials to ask for renewal of a $1,000 lease covering the city land on which the Central Saanich-owned pumping station stands at Elk Lake.

It spells the end to a fantastic episode in which Central Saanich has been drawing more than 125,000,000 gallons annually from the city-owned lake for free.

BIG PROFITS

Not only did it take the city's water for free but it turned around and started selling it—at a 100 per cent profit over piping and processing costs—to North Saanich residents. The profits are believed to run to several thousand dollars and are increasing steadily.

And on top of that, Central Saanich council made a good fellow of itself by generously giving the B.C. Toll Authority ferry terminal at Swartz Bay all the Elk Lake water it wanted.

The toll authority in turn has allowed private owners of nearby islands—notably the subdivided Piers Island—to tap its supply with submarine water lines.

"Apparently the city's water is being given away free as far away as the Gulf Islands and what sales are being made in North Saanich goes towards lowering the cost in Central Saanich," said one amazed City Hall official.

BOUGHT STATION

The situation began several years ago when Central Saanich bought the department of national defence pumping station, used to supply Patricia Bay airport, and installed a water distribution system for its own residents.

At that time, city water commissioner J. C. Garnett persuaded city council to allow Central Saanich to draw the water it wanted for nothing while paying a $1,000 lease for the pumpng station land.

Since then, Central Saanich has seen more than 200 connections established to distribution lines inside its own municipality and has laid lines into Deep Cove and other North Saanich areas.

Already more than 100 North Saanich connections — all paying customers — have been made and these are expected to double quickly.

In the meantime, Central Saanich permitted the toll authority to take water from its system and the toll authority subsequently did the same for some Gulf Islanders.

At present, Central Saanich draws an average of 350,000 gallons each day from Elk Lake. Most of this it sells at the subsidized rate to its own residents, gives some away free and sells another 50,000 gallons to its North Saanich customers at double the 17½-cents-per-1,000 gallons cost of piping and processing.

City Hall has asked for audited statements of costs and revenues of the Central Saanich water utility before it will hold a second discussion with Reeve Lee.

Door Smashed In Burglary Of Sign Firm

Burglars who smashed through a door of Bayliss Neon Co., 2519 Rock Bay, carried away free advertising for most of their loot.

The burglars also got $34.32 from a cash box, a drill, and the keys to the office.

They broke a window at the back of the building to get in, released a door catch into the workshop, and smashed in the top half of the door that blocked their way into the office.

DESKS RANSACKED

There, they ransacked desks and filing cabinets, eventually settling for the cash and the cigarette lighters.

It was the latest in a series of break-ins that started over the weekend, and now totals over two dozen.

A wallet containing $18 was stolen overnight Tuesday from the pants pocket of V. Allan, as the trousers lay over a chair in a suite at Kiwanis Village.

Cigarettes and canned food were taken overnight Tuesday from the Cedarwood Grocery, 3011 Gosworth, but police scared the burglars away, and the canned goods were found in tall grass behind the building.

B.C. Chamber Swats Closed Forest Talks

An unexpected assault upon the house select standing committee on forestry was unleashed by the chamber in its annual brief to the Provincial Cabinet.

Only three cabinet ministers were in town to hear the brief, but among them was Forests Minister Ray Williston.

The other two were Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Works Minister W. N. Chant.

"The method of conducting the hearings leaves something to be desired," said the chamber.

NO OATH REQUIRED

"It leads to irresponsible and headline-catching submissions

The forestry committee is usually composed of 13 MLAs.

This year it was headed by Cyril Shelford, the Social Credit member for Omineca.

And it heard some pretty fierce arguments, including charges that logging operators are "blackmailing" their competitors for government quotas

The chamber delegation, headed by president Kenny Stewart of Vancouver, said the in camera meetings at which press and public are barred result in "a breakdown of an otherwise good communications effort."

The brief also charged that there is much evidence to show present government forestry policies are inequitable.

It referred particularly to stumpage rates and zoning.

The chamber urged that the forestry committee in future should make further inquiries into these charges.

Brief Advocates Alternate Vote

A delegation of chamber directors, representing 127 groups, met the cabinet with their annual brief.

The brief also urged redistribution of the seats in the legislature.

It said there are "very obvious distortions" in the allocation of the present 52 seats in the house.

The alternative ballot, the chamber said, is needed to avert the problems of minority government and the threat of stalemate in today's multi-party system.

The present single vote system may "thwart the will of the people" by electing a candidate whom the majority of voters don't want, the brief said

SMALL MAJORITIES

In a contest between five candidates as little as 21 per cent of the votes cast could elect the winner, it added.

The alternative system, which was abolished by the present government after the 1953 election, allows the voter to mark his ballot in order of preference for all candidates.

Recreation Budget Hike Requested

The chamber said the recreation department has done an outstanding job on a modest budget up to now.

But, "The time has come to award this department a larger share of the provincial budget."

This year's budget of $372,700,000 including $3,900,000 for recreation.

At the same time, the chamber urged caution in future spending on education, although it fully endorsed the government's policies for expansion of facilities, particularly in higher education.

The chamber suggested that some future education cost estimates could be curbed by fuller use of existing school buildings.

It also said that each step to improve higher education should be carefully evaluated in the light of possible tax increases.

CUT TAXES

In fact, the chamber urged a reduction in income taxes.

It also proposed abolition of the homeowner grant.

Chamber spokesman Reg Miller of Vancouver said Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, chairing the cabinet, made a formidable defence of the grant.

Mr. Kiernan said that the grant is not intended to make homeowners a preferred class of citizen, but to encourage them to take more interest in their communities.

However, the chamber contended that the grant is discriminatory against industry.

The chamber also opposed Ottawa's plan for old age security.

The chamber opposed state medicare, and urged the government only to provide financial assistance when illness and welfare "is clearly beyond the means of the individual."

Probe on Jet Crash Opens at Dockyard

A naval board of inquiry into the crash of a T33 jet training plane which cost two lives Saturday convened at HMC Dockyard today after returning from the scene of the accident.

Wednesday the five-man board headed by Cmdr. Don Shepherd was landed by helicopter on Mt. Strachan, five miles north of Hollyburn ridge, to examine the wreckage of the plane in which Lt. N. S. Ogden and Lt. Don Clark lost their lives.

The bodies of the two men will be brought to Victoria tonight under naval escort from North Vancouver via Tsawwassen.

A double military funeral will be held Friday, with Command Chaplain (P) and Chaplain W. L. Balton conducting the memorial service at 2 p.m. in HMCS Naden chapel.

Interment will be at Veteran's Cemetery with full naval honors, reserved for servicemen who die on duty.

SECOND PHASE AT GORDON HEAD CAMPUS

Unveiling Set for $6,000,000 Plan

By AB KENT

University development plans for the $6,000,000 second phase of Gordon Head campus will be unveiled to the public at open house Feb. 1.

Public support to the tune of some $2.5 million will be sought in a five-year development phase taking in the period 1965-69, when it is anticipated some 4,000 students will be registered at University of Victoria.

Prof. R. T. Wallace, co-ordinator of campus expansion and acting dean of arts and science, said there are many imponderables and many alternative directions that academic expansion may take. But he said:

"We can anticipate by 1969-70 session 3,600-4,000 students. This means classroom and office facilities will be needed at Gordon Head.

"We will have to contain some special facilities for a number of disciplines, particularly education, geography and psychology.

"We are also developing efforts to make a strong department of theatre, and we hope by then to be granting master's degrees, so we will need graduate study facilities in the humanities and sciences."

A major part of the second phase will be site development, in which the just-started ring road will be completed, parking facilities will be installed, landscaping done, Finnerty Road will be closed between the north and south edges of the ring and walks laid between buildings.

NEARLY COMPLETED

It is estimated between $5 and $7 million will be spent in the phase: $2.5 million by public subscription as in the nearly completed first phase, the same amount by special government matching grant and the last $1 million by government capital building grant.

To allow for 3,600 students on the campus some 2,500 classroom seats would normally be minimum requirement. This is equivalent to three Cleathue classroom blocks for a total cost of some $1.5 million.

A faculty office block to provide for about 250 staff members would cost about $750,000; an administration building would cost about $400,000; some nine residences would be needed to accommodate 20 per cent of the students; a new theatre would be desirable and a stadium is a possible consideration — the latter a high cost factor in itself.

But it is pointed out that many unknown factors can change the picture drastically.

Although planning is for early withdrawl of academic facilities — and later others — from Lansdowne campus, it is anticipated that buildings located there could be used for a long time. They can always be used by adjuncts to the university, such as research institutes.

Planners do not know what demands science will make in the next five years, now what recommendations for academic programming the provincial super-senate will make for UVIC.

Nor is it known what the university grants commission will recommend for apportionment of provincial funds — the members have yet to be appointed.

MP CLAIMS ATOM ARMS 'BROUGHT IN SECRETLY'

EDMONTON (UPI)—Progressive Conservative member of Parliament William Skoreyko (Edmonton East) has charged that nuclear weapons have been brought secretly into Canada.

Skoreyko told a constituency meeting Wednesday night that the weapons were brought in from the United States and taken to the Bomarc missile base near North Bay, Ont.

Skoreyko said his information came from "very good authority" but refused to disclose how he had learned of the move.

The MP said there are "thousands" of American troops in North Bay and nuclear arms already have arrived.

"I don't want to drop any bombshells," he said. "I hope the minister of defence knows."

GASTOWN HYSTERIA OUT OF GAS?

PRE-GAME HUSH SETTLES OVER CITY

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER (CP) — The weatherman, off in some of his recent predictions, held firm today to his forecast that it will be cloudy with some rain on Grey Cup Day.

Vancouver today is basking in sunshine for the third consecutive day. The good weather has been a help towards drying out the field at Empire Stadium for the Saturday game.

VANCOUVER — This city has finally achieved the blase plateau in its attitude toward the Grey Cup.

It its fourth try at hosting the biggest sports spectacle in the land, Vancouver is currently in a state of unusual calm as the day approaches. The numbing effect of the Kennedy tragedy of course is the big factor but even before it, the natives were showing no signs of the tribal rowdiness that marked the 1955, 1958 and 1960 games here.

The football-haters in the city (and there certainly are plenty of them — natural products of the gridiron worship that prevails in high places) are at last happy. They maintain that the whole show has now been put in perspective. They're glad to see the Grey Cup reduced to the status of a simple football game.

If the rah-rah atmosphere doesn't reach the heights of hysteria of the other three Grey Cups in the west, it won't be for lack of planning. The Grey Cup festival which officials have done up with a glittering array of events and the parade, as usual, is expected to be the best ever. It's just that the sickening events of Dallas have upstaged the whole show and Vancouver citizens don't feel much like frolicking in the streets, — not this week anyway.

Prime Minister Pearson has cancelled his planned appearance as star guest at the festivities but otherwise everything else will go on as scheduled, when Hamilton Tiger-Cats and the Lions bare claws.

Vancouver organizers, eager to show up the Toronto versions of the football classic as rather dull affairs, have packed dozen of events into this week. There's everything from an octopus hunt to a tiddledywink tournament to frostbite races to a tennis tournament

Officials even managed the formidable feat of listing Friday night's appearance of the Royal London Philharmonic Orchestra as a Grey Cup event. As yet, there has been no rush or

IN VENEZUELA

Red Terrorists Grab Aircraft

CARACAS (AP) — Terrorists seized a twin-engine Venezuelan airliner on a domestic flight today, hurled pro - Communist leaflets over the city of Ciudad Bolivar and then forced the crew to land the plane on Trinidad.

This incident came as police combed Caracas for Lt. - Col. James K. Chenault, a U.S. Army officer kidnapped by pro-Cuban foes of President Romulo Betancourt. All exits from the Venezuelan capital were blocked.

Armed with machine - guns, five men and a woman, who were among 14 passengers, seized control of the plane, a Convair, after it took off from Ciudad Bolivar, 110 miles east of Caracas, for a flight to Maquetia, six miles north of this Venezuelan capital. The plane, owned by the National Avensa Airline, carried a crew of three. The pilot was John Power.

Power landed the plane at Port of Spain, the Trinidad capital, in the Caribbean 380 miles east of Caracas.

Presumably the plane seizure was carried out by members of the pro-Cuban Armed Forces of National Liberation, which is trying with a campaign of terror to overthrow Betancourt and block a presidential election set for Sunday.

All the passengers of the plane were believed to be Venezuelans.

A dispatch from Port of Spain indicated the terrorists were arrested promptly upon landing.

Antonio Ayila, a passenger, said the group pulled their guns on the crew shortly after the takeoff at 6 a.m.

The Venezuelan ambassador in Port of Sapin, Rafael Echevarria, described the group as extremists financed by Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba. He said efforts have begun to extradite them.

CRUSHED UNDER CAR BOY, 4, CRITICAL

By LESLIE MILLIN

Shipyard workers atop a ferry being built at nearby VMD shipyard said they heard screeching tires on Dallas Road, and looked down to see two cars apparently in a head-on collision.

When they ran down to investigate, they found the cars had touched only lightly—after one driver apparently swerved into the other lane to avoid the child and tricycle in his path.

Both cars, and the tricycle, were stopped a few feet beyond the driveway of 72 Dallas Road when police arrived.

The tricycle was under the passenger-side front wheel of a black, late-model sedan that was over in the southbound lane near the launching ramp.

Both cars were damaged only lightly.

Road surface was dry, and there were only short skid marks near the rear wheels of the black sedan, indicating low speed.

Reported Former Neighbors

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas News reported today that investigators have learned that Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin of President Kennedy, and night club owner Jack Ruby who killed Oswald, apparently were former neighbors.

The News said unnamed peace officers disclosed that a man matching the description of Oswald once rented a room close to Ruby's home.

"This could be the key that we have been seeking," the newspaper quoted one officer as commenting.

So far authorities have not said whether they found any ties between Ruby and Oswald.

In other developments today, a New Orleans library official said the FBI had examined records which showed Oswald last summer checked out books on President Kennedy, political assassination, spying and Communism.

Oswald was a native of New Orleans and spent several months there before going to Texas last August.

Chief librarian Jerome Cushman said he would release only the titles of the books which appeared on Oswald's library card for different dates earlier this year.

They included "Portrait of a President," a Kennedy biography by William Manchester; "The Huey Long Murder Case," an account of the assassination of Louisiana Sen. Huey P. Long, by Hermann B. Deutsch; and a number of cloak-and-dagger novels.

Also on the list was Robert Payne's biography of Red China's Mao Tse-Tung, "Portrait of a Revolutionary" and "Russia Under Khrushchev" by Alexander Werth.

RE-ENACTED

The assassination of the president was re-enacted Wednesday when a grey convertible, similar to the black one in which President Kennedy made his last ride, rolled past the Texas school book depository building.

A man and woman sat in the back seat, just as president and Mrs. Kennedy did last Friday. Two men were in the front.

Looking down on this scene were investigators, and a cameraman. They perched in the same window from which the fatal shots were fired.

This was another phase of the

TO BOOST EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

'Have-Not' Provinces To Get More Money

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The Pearson government, while delaying any overhaul of the tax-sharing system pending a study in depth, indicated Wednesday it will propose to the federal-provincial conference Friday an increase in equalization payments starting next April 1.

It is likely to work out details of the proposal today while the conference leaves the central issue of fiscal relations to break into committees.

Premiers made no comments when they went to the committee meetings this morning. Premiers Stanfield, Shaw, Lesage, Robarts, and Roblin attended a committee meeting on pensions, which proved to be the largest meeting.

Other committee sessions were held on the economy, Indian - Eskimo administration, and lotteries.

A committee on health and welfare was to meet later so that its members, including chairman Judy LaMarsh, national health and welfare minister, could attend the pensions committee, over which Mr. Pearson presided.

It was announced at the lunch breakup of the committee meetings that the conference delegates would go back into plenary session tonight to discuss the broad question of cost-sharing programs.

The conference was to discuss in a plenary meeting Friday proposed changes in the tax-sharing agreements between Ottawa and the provinces, including equalization.

Prime Minister Pearson's statement came early Wednesday. A federal source said there was "very little opposition" to the federal position on equalization.

This appeared to be the main import of the federal stand:

1. It is ready to reshape the tax-sharing system, and recognizes the provinces' needs for more money—especially for education. It pointed out that progressively - rising federal tax abatements—to 18 per cent next fiscal year—recognize these rising needs. But in the light of current studies by tax commissions, and the need for a full

Did Johnson Plead In Vain for Action?

WASHINGTON (CP) — Millions of Americans sit down to their traditional Thanksgiving dinner today, their holiday darkened by thoughts of their assassinated president. But though the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy has aroused a flood of national sympathy, it appears to have left the political climate unchanged.

In fact, the U.S. now appears to be moving towards a period of shaky indecision and legislative paralysis as wrangling within Congress returns, shattering hope for early passage of Kennedy's key programs as a memorial to the fallen leader.

Though President Lyndon B. Johnson fervently appealed Wednesday for swift approval of such important bills as those strengthening Negro rights and reducing federal taxation, the old opposing forces clearly indicated the death of Kennedy has not changed their opinions or positions. Their opposition will continue.

Indeed, one Republican congressman, Bruce Alger, an extreme rightwinger from Dallas, Tex., where Kennedy was slain, accused Johnson of playing politics with Kennedy's death and warned he will continue to battle the encroachment of big government on American liberty as he has done in the past.

And Senator Harry Byrd, Virginia Democrat who heads the Senate finance committee, has made clear he sees no opportunity at this time for early passage of the tax cuts proposed by Kennedy. The conservative Byrd opposed the tax cuts in the past and as committee chairman has effectively bottled up the legislation in his committee.

Johnson had hoped in his first speech to Congress to urge legislators to remain at work until the key bills had been passed. But a quick private survey by his aides indicated the situation was hopeless at this time. Johnson instead called in his speech for "earliest possible

By ALEX YOUNG

OTTAWA — The B.C. government is not yet ready to assess the federal government's proposal for increased equalization grants to "have not" provinces.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today he was examining the proposition and was not yet prepared to announce a position on it.

He said he was "not too satisfied with progress" being made by the current federal-provincial conference here, characterizing it with the quotation, "the more things change, the more they are the same."

The B.C. premier had demanded at the opening of the conference the total abolition of equalization. His brief said equalization "does not contribute to national harmony or efficient use of public moneys."

"The grants are undue subsidies to certain provinces at the expense of others," the B.C. submission stated. As one of the "have" provinces, B.C. receives no equalization.

A full assessment of the equalization proposal, Mr. Bennett said today, was not possible until all details of the scheme are given the provincial premiers. It is expected the proposal for amending the equalization policy will be outlined in detail to the conference by Prime Minister Pearson on Friday.

Meantime, Mr. Bennett's attorney - general, Robert Bonner,

Commission Urged For B.C. Hospitals

LANGLEY (CP)—Dr. Patrick McGeer, Liberal MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey, has proposed that a politically independent commission be established to manage the affairs of British Columbia's hospitals.

He said the commission, which would give the health professions a voice in the operation of the hospitals, would help resolve conflicts between the hospitals and the provincial government and would remove the hospital problem from the field of partisan politics.

Dr. McGeer told the Langley Liberal Association Wednesday that the conflict, which flared again recently at a B.C. Hospitals Association convention, is a symptom of a disease which "like any other will tend to get worse until a proper diagnosis is made and an effective treatment program started."

Appeal Hopes Dim In Cuban Conviction

OTTAWA (CP) — The same judicial tribunal that convicted Canadian Ronald Patrick Lippert of smuggling explosives into Cuba and sentenced him to 30 years in prison may also hear his appeal against the sentence, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons on Tuesday.

Mr. Martin said such a practice was unusual and not in accord with Canadian appeal procedure.

The minister, pressed by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas for more information, declined to say anything more until the result of the appeal is known.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the 30-year jail sentence against the 32-year-old Kitchener pilot was difficult to understand on humanitarian principles.

MILNE FREED

While Lippert was convicted Saturday of the smuggling charge, another Canadian—William David Milne, 31, of Montreal—was acquitted and was freed by Cuban authorities.

Mr. Douglas said reports from Havana say Lippert confessed that he was acting as an agent for the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

He asked Mr. Martin whether any investigation was planned by the Canadian government to find out whether Lippert actually was an agent for the CIA.

If he was, then there should be a protest to the United States for allowing one of its agencies to use a Canadian for a hostile act against Cuba, he said.

Mr. Martin said he would not comment on the alleged confession. He would not say whether it was true or false, or whether Canada had any "indications" that it might be true.

INVENTED WEAPON

Is your pain RHEUMATIC or ARTHRITIC?

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS
by Barbara Brent

MONTREAL, November 28th — Oops! . . . only 22 more shopping days 'til Christmas. But I'm not going to get caught like I did last year . . . rushing around madly at the last minute because I'd waited too long to decide what to buy those special people on my gift-list. My local BANK OF MONTREAL supplies the perfect answer to this problem. You can't beat holly-decorated Christmas cheques or B of M money orders in their brightly coloured envelopes or folders for popularity. And the youngsters just love to receive a B of M passbook — with a nice balance inside — enclosed in a gay Christmas passbook cover. Why not save yourself worry and shoe-leather this year . . . do that "difficult" shopping first — at your neighbourhood B of M.

BELIEVE ME, this vegetable 'with-a-difference' is a treat to eat at any meal, noon or evening, hot or cold. It's sauerkraut and it's particularly delicious when it's LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT . . . high in appetite appeal and low in cost. Here's one way I like to serve it . . .

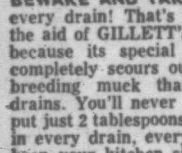

JIFFY WINTER SALAD

1 15-oz. can (1¾ cups) Libby's Sauerkraut, drained; ½ cup commercial sour cream; 1 to 2 teaspoons caraway seeds. Combine drained sauerkraut and sour cream; turn into a small salad bowl; sprinkle with caraway seeds. Chill or serve at once. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

I know you'll agree with me that Libby's Sauerkraut is something . . . crisp, mellow and uniform in flavour, it's 'just right' — hot or cold!

LIKE SO MANY PEOPLE, I insist on making cereal part of my breakfast. It's light and provides necessary food energy. Occasionally, however, I want a change from the puffed, flaked and sugared cereals which children so dearly enjoy. When that happens, I reach for POST GRAPE-NUTS. Easy-to-eat Grape-Nuts is a wheat cereal — concentrated — with food energy in every spoonful. A rich, crunchy, nut-sweet flavour that's so different. Try it. You'll agree — a change to Grape Nuts is a welcome change. Start your day a little bit better with a cereal fresh from Post. GRAPE-NUTS!

BEWARE AND TAKE CARE . . . for dangerous germs lurk in every drain! That's why I urge you to enlist the aid of GILLETT'S DRAIN CLEANER . . . because its special churning, boiling action completely scours out every bit of the germ-breeding muck that collects in clogged-up drains. You'll never miss the time it takes to put just 2 tablespoons of Gillett's Drain Cleaner in every drain, every week . . . that's all! So keep your kitchen sink a safe place to wash your family's food and dishes, keep your bathroom tub and basin wonderfully clean . . . by making one day a week your "Gillett's Drain Cleaner Day"!

ONCE YOU'VE TRIED IT, I'm sure you'll agree that the greatest difference in your family wash is the difference CALGON makes. Not a soap — not a detergent . . . Calgon is the highly effective water conditioner that cleans away washing film — the "bathtub ring" of the washing machine. Simply add it to your wash water along with less soap or detergent . . . and to the rinse, too. Calgon cleans away washing film, restores brightness and natural softness. Linens 'sparkle' with cleanliness . . . colours come out bright and clear . . . towels fluff up like new. Washer makers recommend Calgon water conditioner and so do I.

DO YOUR HOUSEHOLD CHORES seem twice as difficult because you've spent sleepless nights with the pains of neuritis, rheumatism or arthritis? Then here's wonderful news for you. Thousands of men and women get long-lasting relief from such suffering by taking TEMPLETON'S TRC's, Canada's largest-selling medicine . . . specially made for the relief of such pain. And more good news! . . . you can get even faster, DOUBLE ACTION relief by applying Templeton's FLAME-cream Liniment externally at the same time as you take TRC's internally!

'KOREAN KIDDIES FUND'

LUCKY COOLIE LABORER EARNS 12 CENTS DAILY

Fifty per cent of the employable labor force in Korea is unemployed. They have nothing.

The others have something —but not much.

In South Korea, a country not much bigger than Vancouver Island over 20,000,000 people are struggling to survive. Many are refugees who fled from the Communist north in search of freedom. What possessions they owned were left behind.

Today they live in a democracy but what freedom do they have when their bodies are chilled to the bone and their stomachs are empty?

A laborer, if he is lucky enough to find employment as an A-frame carrier, similar to a Chinese coolie, will earn 12 cents a day.

Average Korean family is three to four children. That means five people must try to live on 12 cents a day. Even in Korea that is not enough for one meal apiece.

Three cents will buy less than a handful of barley and eight cents will buy a bowl of soup made of scraps and pealings sold at the 8th Army Officer's Mess.

The Unitarian Service Committee provides milk and barley when possible but their supply is never large enough to go around all the millions that are hungry day after day.

Canadians helped to fight for their freedom, but the battle will be lost unless they keep on fighting.

Food must be supplied so they will at least have freedom from hunger. This is a freedom you can give when you give to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund."

Total contributions now stands at $1,222.27.

Donations should be sent to the "Korean Kiddies' Fund," care of the Times, 2631 Douglas. Acknowledgement of gifts will be made in a daily list published in the Times and tax deductible receipts will be issued. The Bank of Montreal main branch, Yates and Douglas, will also accept donations.

Donations of clothing should be delivered to Dowell's Cartage and Storage, 1117 Wharf St.

'HIS HEART IN EXCELLENT CONDITION'

Calver said he gave the 55-year-old president a "complete and thorough" physical examination within the last six or eight weeks—including an electrocardiograph test of the heart that suffered a coronary attack in 1955. The then vice-president was found to be in "excellent shape," the physician said in a telephone interview. He is in Florida.

Security Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson got a quick briefing on United States security today and then turned to the traditional U.S. observance of Thanksgiving Day. He conferred at his home in the Spring Valley district with John A. McCone, director of Central Intelligence Agency.

No Agreement

Former Trujillo Police Aide Ousted

OTTAWA (CP)—Arturo Rodriguez Espaillat, former head of the secret police of the Dominican Republic, has been ordered deported from Canada for a second time, the immigration department said today.

Grain Ship Returns Empty From U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—A Canadian vessel headed back to Toronto empty today after unsuccessfully attempting since Oct. 4 to take on a load of grain.

'A Friend' Seeks Mrs. Oswald

All she wants to do is help, Mrs. Pultz said as she arrived Tuesday night. She wants Mrs. Oswald to join her family in their three-bedroom home at San Antonio, Tex.

Said Mrs. Pultz, who speaks Russian and English:

"I feel sorry for her, living in America and not speaking the language. She needs someone who understands."

Mrs. Pultz' husband is an airline employee and she has three teen - age children. She finds time to sell real estate, too.

She came to the United States 15 years ago from Kiev in Russia's Ukraine.

15 CENT LOAN

Rare Kennedy Coins Still Taped to Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — The story of a 15-cent loan to the late President Kennedy, then a senator, was told Tuesday by a Washington man.

Millard A. Dorsey, 41, recalled that he was standing in line at a theatre in June, 1954, when he noticed the man in front of him evidently searching for additional change.

"I recognized him as Mr. Kennedy because he reminded me of Jimmie Stewart," Dorsey said. "He had $1.85 but the tickets cost $2.

"I offered to lend him the 15 cents, and he insisted that I give him my name and address. He wrote it down on a scrap of paper."

A week later, Dorsey received a note from Mrs. Kennedy. The note apologized for the delay, and added:

"I couldn't have been more touched by the way you lent us money to go to the movies and neither could my husband —but when we got home we couldn't find the piece of paper he wrote your address on and it took a week of sifting through his pockets to find it."

Taped to the letter were three nickels—which Dorsey still treasures.
